Cyclist killed, 6 other persons hurt in holiday accidents

The three-day holiday for valley travelers ended in tragedy Monday with the death of a 19-year-old Ontario motorcyclist.

Three other motorcyclists, including an off-duty Los Angeles police officer, a Walnut man and a Corona woman, were injured in separate accidents Monday and three persons were injured in a three-car collision.

Ronald Joseph Sudol, 19, of 1638B S. Laurel Ave., Ontario, died Monday night at Ontario Community Hospital shortly after he lost control of his motorcycle in soft dirt on Phillips Avenue near Cypress Street about 10:20 p.m.

Police said that three street barricades with flashing yellow lights removed by thieves two hours before the accident may have been a contributing cause of the crash.

Police said a witness reported seeing Sudol pass him at about 50 miles per hour on Phillips Avenue. A moment later, the motorcycle flipped over several times in the dirt, throwing Sudol to the ground. The motorist told police that the motorcyclist, just before passing him, appeared to be weaving back and forth across the highway.

Police said that Sudol may have been drinking before the accident, but they are attempting to locate several youths seen removing the flashing barricades about two hours earlier. Police said the youths placed the barricades in a light blue pickup truck.

In the Diamond Bar area, a Walnut resident was injured Monday night when his motorcycle overturned on the Brea Canyon Road south of Colima Road.

Oscar Ford, 46, was treated at the San Dimas Community Hospital for facial lacerations and later transferred to the County-USC Medical Center.

He was riding south on the Brea Canyon Road and lost control as he attempted to negotiate a curve, said highway patrolmen.

Donald Lee Holloway, 36, of Ontario, an off-duty Los Angeles police officer was injured about 8:45 a.m. Monday when a car collided with his motorcycle on Mountain Avenue and Sixth Street in Ontario.

Police said that Holloway was making a right turn from Sixth Street to Mountain Avenue when a car northbound on Mountain Avenue apparently ran a red light and hit the motorcycle. Holloway was taken to Kaiser Hospital for treatment of multiple injuries and was later released.

Police said the driver of the car, Margaret Jean Pruett, 42, of Rialto was not injured in the accident.

A 26-year-old Corona woman was injured when a motorcycle she was a passenger on went out of control and slid on its side on Fourth Street west of Grove Avenue.

The woman, Joette Manning, was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital for treatment of an ankle laceration and later released.

The driver of the motorcycle, John Henry Broadly, 23, of 822 W. D St., Ontario, was not injured in the accident. Police said that Broadly was arrested for investigation of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Three persons suffered minor injuries Monday in a three-car, rear-end collision on the San Bernardino Freeway's Indian Hill Boulevard off-ramp in Claremont.

They were treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and later released.

The injured were Derrick Tinsley, 18, 630 Carlton St., Claremont, a driver; Denise Hutson, 23, Los Angeles, passenger in a second car, and Denise Minano, 14, 4536 N. Rhodela St., Claremont, passenger in the third vehicle.

Tinsley was driving east on the off-ramp and failed to stop for other vehicles waiting for a traffic signal, said highway patrolmen.

The Tinsley car hit an auto driven by Felix Oduyemi, 10372 Ramona Ave., Montclair, which was pushed into the third car operated by Rose Minano, 4536 N. Rhodela St., Claremont.

Demo governors endorse Carter

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Democratic governors performed the rite of endorsement today, pledging "our support and united efforts" to elect Jimmy Carter to the White House. The former Georgia governor promised them a place in administration counsels if he wins.

About 30 of the 36 Democratic governors had breakfast with Carter and voted without dissent to pledge him their backing. Among the absentees: Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, still a candidate for the Democratic nomination, and Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana, who is supporting Brown.

The other governors said Carter, the virtually certain nominee, "has demonstrated his ability to heal the divisions of the past and unify our national party."

Carter told a news conference here that he would interview Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., on Thursday in the second of his meetings with possible running mates. He met with Sen. Edmund Muskie on Monday.

Carter made an overnight trip to the National Governors Conference for the endorsement breakfast. He also got a Monday night briefing on foreign and security matters from CIA Director George Bush.

Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida, who once opposed Carter's nomination, presided at the caucus, and Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland, who had been sharply critical of the Georgian, sponsored the resolution of support.

The Democratic ritual was worked out in advance. National party chairman Robert Strauss met with the governors Monday to discuss the resolution of support, and talked to Mandel about sponsoring it. Mandel agreed. Then Strauss took the package to Carter on Monday night.

While Carter was promising cooperation and consultation with governors, he stood by his opposition to revenue sharing with the states, one of their favorite programs. He favors revenue sharing with county and local govermnents. But he said the governors, "very graciously," did not bring up that issue.

Carter said he favors a welfare reform plan nearly identical to one before the governors' conference, including a federally financed minimum income provision. He has said a full federal takeover of welfare expenses would be too costly.

But with the minimum income plan he endorsed, there wouldn't be much more for the federal government to take over anyhow. And Carter said he would seek to ease the welfare burden on states "as soon as that is financially feasible."

"I want to make a new partnership with the governors to evolve programs," Carter said. He said he would bring governors in on the ground floor as budgets and bills are drafted by a Carter administration.

Republican governors caucused, too, but they had no business to conduct so they campaigned against Carter. Gov. Dan Evans of Washington said Carter is like a skyrocket — "He's burst so spectacularly ... but he'll go down just as fast."

Evans said voters will turn to President Ford in the end. "They'll realize that solid accomplishment is more important than good teeth and a smile," he said.

In a statement prepared for a closed-door breakfast with his former colleagues, Carter reminded them that not since 1945 has a former governor (Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York) served as president.

"I promise you that if I am fortunate enough to be elected president, I will not preside over an administration which ignores the lessons of my own personal experience," Carter said.

"... It is time that the federal government recognized that states and localities retain a special knowledge of local problems and that responsive and flexible local leadership is essential to representative government in this nation," Carter said.

He also promised to work closely with the governors in welfare reform, saying there should be a simpler program "with one fairly uniform standard of payment adjusted to the extent feasible for cost of living differences by areas and with strong work incentives built in."

The governors have under consideration a welfare reform resolution with such provisions.

As Carter met with the Democrats, the National Governors Conference was working out the terms of a call for welfare reform to include a proposal that the federal government provide financing for a guaranteed minimum income.

Carter has opposed a federal takeover of welfare costs as too costly. But he told the governors he would seek a "phased reduction of the states' share as soon as that is financially feasible."

Mandel said Monday that once Carter sits down with the governors "and tells us what his position is, it's going to be very difficult for anyone to misunderstand it or change it." Mandel had earlier in the campaign accused Carter of shifting positions.

But a spokesman said the Maryland governor had agreed to the statement of campaign support for the sake of Democratic unity.

L.V. mother kills 2 young sons, self

A La Verne woman shot her two small sons to death and then killed herself sometime during the Fourth of July weekend, police reported.

The bodies of Joy Stewart Christian, 39, and her children, 4-year-old Matthew and 6-year-old Michael, were discovered late Monday morning in their apartment in the Los Arbolitos complex at 1849 Foothill Blvd.

Police said the building manager found the bodies just before noon when he went to the second-floor apartment to see why friends of the family had been unable to contact Mrs. Christian during the weekend.

Investigators said Mrs. Christian's body was in one bedroom. One boy's body was in another bedroom and the other was in the living room. All three victims apparently died of bullet wounds in the head.

Police said Mrs. Christian had been separated from her husband about two weeks, or just about the length of time she, Matthew and Michael had been living at the apartment. They also said a suicide note was found, in which Mrs. Christian blamed her action on mental depression.

The victims may have been dead since Friday, officers said.

A .38-caliber pistol found in the apartment was believed to be the weapon used in the double homicide and suicide, officers said.

The bodies were taken to the coroner's office for autopsies and the pistol was taken to the sheriff's crime lab for testing.

The slayings were the fourth and fifth in La Verne this year. In February, Mrs. Jeannie Beth Fitzjohn, 30, and her companion, Gary Ernest Keltz, 35, were slain in another double homicide in Mrs. Fitzjohn's apartment at 2421 Foothill Blvd. Mrs. Fitzjohn's estranged husband, Don Merrill Fitzjohn, 39, is awaiting trial in connection with those killings.

Discriminatory

U.S. nixes father-son, mom-daughter events

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials have decided that public schools may no longer sponsor father-son or mother-daughter events because they violate new rules against sex discrimination.

That's the word quietly passed to school administrators in Scottsdale, Ariz., last week, more than five months after the officials asked if such activities were still lawful under regulations approved by President Ford last summer.

In a letter cleared through Washington channels, John E. Palomina of the San Francisco regional Office for Civil Rights wrote to the officials telling them that "functions such as father-son or mother-daughter breakfasts would be subjecting students to separate treatment and would not be permitted."

And that decision applies, said a spokesman at Washington headquarters, even if the school offers separate events with equal facilities for both sexes.

Though no public announcement has been made on the issue, the spokesman said the Palomina letter represented a policy ruling that had been approved by rights office director Peter E. Holmes.

Violating of the decision could lead to a cutoff of federal assistance or even court action by the Justice Department.

The Palomina letter, dated June 25 and addressed to Dr. Ira King of the Scottsdale school system, declared that "If the purposes of such functions is to enhance community relations as your letter (of last February) states (they) would be just as effective if they were student-parent affairs.

"Such an arrangement would prevent a situation which would exclude a male student, for example, who does not have a father to accompany him to a father-son affair."

The Office for Civil Rights, part of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, drafted the new regulations last year.

Mandatory death penalty stricken

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today struck down Oklahoma's death penalty law.

The action followed the court's ruling last Friday that the death penalty is a constitutional punishment for murder but may not be imposed generally under laws which make it mandatory.

In Friday's decision the court struck down mandatory death penalty laws in Louisiana and North Carolina.

Ruling today in six Oklahoma cases, the court set aside the death sentences of six inmates and sent the cases back to the court of criminal appeals of Oklahoma.

"The imposition and carrying out of the death penalty under the law of Oklahoma constitutes a cruel and unusual punishment" in violation of the Constitution, the court said. The Oklahoma law makes death mandatory for a limited number of crimes.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist did not join in the ruling on the Oklahoma law but merely said they favored sending the cases back to the lower court for further proceedings in light of last Friday's ruling.

In another follow-up action to Friday's decision, the court sent 33 North Carolina death sentence cases back to the North Carolina Supreme Court for action in line with the Friday ruling.

Also sent back to a lower court for further proceedings were three cases from Louisiana.

The court refused to review nine death sentences from Georgia and six from Florida. The court upheld death penalty laws in the two states.

The North Carolina cases included that of Jesse Thurman Fowler. The court heard arguments on the case last term but failed to decide it then.

Fowler was sentenced to the North Carolina gas chamber for the fatal shooting of an acquaintance, John Griffin, in July 1973.

CIM escapee held in shooting of Novato policeman

Novato police this morning are holding a California Institution for Men escapee for the alleged shooting of a Novato police officer investigating a burglary, according to CIM officials.

CIM officials said they received a call from the Novato Police Department this morning informing them that escaper Dale Allen Tuttle was booked for the attempted murder of a police officer in their city.

Prison authorities said that the Novato police officer had been shot three times, but was not killed in the incident. Novato police said that the officer interrupted the inmate during the course of a burglary. Novato police told prison authorities that Tuttle may have been involved in a bank robbery in New York as well.

Tuttle escaped from CIM on May 14 after walking away from a minimum security section. He was serving a term for burglary.

Reagan gives 'important speech' tonight

ARRIVES FOR TAPING

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan waves to newsmen as he arrives at a Hollywood studio Monday night before taping a half-hour speech for national television to be aired tonight.

Former California governor hopes taped talk will persuade uncommitted delegates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan says he hopes his appearance on national television tonight (Ch. 7 ABC 10:30 p.m. PDT), will persuade uncommitted GOP delegates to vote for him.

"It's an important speech," the former California governor said Monday before taping the half-hour talk at a Hollywood studio.

He said President Ford's television exposure at Bicentennial events Sunday and Monday had nothing to do with his decision to present his nationwide message.

"We decided a long time ago to do this," Reagan said.

"Kansas City is drawing close and there are a lot of uncommitted delegates. I would have liked to have made the taping closer to the convention, but we had to take the time when it was available."

According to an Associated Press survey, Reagan has 976 delegates to Ford's 1,004 with 179 uncommitted and 98 delegates yet to be selected. A total of 1,130 delegate votes are needed to win the Republican nomination.

Reagan again predicted he would win the nomination on the first ballot at the August GOP convention at Kansas City, Mo.

Before the taping, Reagan would say only that the TV talk would emphasize his idea of "what America is, and what I believe it should be," but a campaign aide said that Reagan concentrates on his theme of excesses in government and inflation.

The aide said Reagan's message deals with the subject of whether government "cares about the Americans who keep the country going — the ones who fight wars, drive the trucks, raise the kids, the farmers, firemen, craftsmen and cops."

The aide said Reagan reiterates his attack that "inflation is theft by legislation."

"It is the government's way of getting more tax revenues without raising the rates," the aide said, quoting the text of the speech.

Reagan said Ford's Bicentennial exposure was "what would be expected of a president."

"If it helps him, it hurts me," Reagan said. "If it hurts him, it helps me."

Reagan said the stunning Israeli commando raid to rescue 100 airline passengers and crewmen from Palestinian terrorists reminded him "of the way Americans used to act.

"The tragedy of it is that we still live in a world where countries will not join in and make it plain that they will not put up with that terrorism."

Cannery workers plan walkout

Last-minute negotiations continue today

PALO ALTO (AP) — Lastminute negotiations were to continue today in efforts to prevent a walkout by 70,000 California cannery workers at 6 a.m. Wednesday.

A strike could halt operations at 95 per cent of the state's fruit canneries at the start of their peak season, leaving growers with no place to market most of their produce.

"The union has given us a counterproposal to our offer, and we will be bargaining in good faith," said a representative of the canners' group, California Processors, Inc. "In a situation like this, you just have to hope for the best."

Talks have been held sporadically over the past two months between canners and representatives of 13 Teamsters Union locals, which represent the workers. A three-year pact expired June 30 and 6 a.m. Wednesday is the deadline for a new agreement.

According to a union spokesman, workers are paid a base salary ranging from $4.23 to $6.50 per hour. The union initially asked for a $3.50 per hour increase to be spread over three years. Any changes in the proposal are being kept secret.

Monday, three members of state farm advisory boards urged the public to exert pressure to avoid a "disastrous cannery workers strike."

Paul Growald of the Apricot Advisory Board, and Jean Thom and Leonore Bravo of the Cling Peach Advisory Board, warned that a strike would seriously cripple California's peach, apricot and tomato industries and cause a multi-million dollar loss to the state's economy.

At a morning press conference here, the three government-appointed consumer advocates speculated that canners might not care about a quick settlement because 20 per cent of their goods from last year remain unsold.

Canners' representative Ross Wurm denied the charges and said the three were seeking "self-publicity."

Smoking areas: One supporter changes mind

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Of 49 Los Angeles County school boards given the option under a new state law to establish smoking areas in high schools, only eight have decided to take that route.

And one of those eight, so discouraged by the results, has decided to join the other 41 school districts in continuing a ban on smoking on its high school campuses.

The Los Angeles school board was among the overwhelming majority that refused to allow smoking on its high school campuses, and has, in fact, initiated a crackdown on student smokers.

"Our position was based on the fact that nicotine is poison to the human body," said Julian Nava, board member who recommended the crackdown.

However, some school districts that have lifted the ban against smoking find that it has created an improvement in student-teacher relations and has also resulted in cleaner restrooms, the site of illegal smoking activities.

"It has cut down on smoking altogether," said Lewis Grimard, principal of Duarte High School, where a smoking area was created. "There is no smoking in the lavoratory and no loitering in front of the school."

Agoura High School officials, though, were not quite so happy with their trial run at legalized smoking areas, saying that students still smoked in unauthorized areas.

Statewide, a random survey by the California School Boards Association showed 52 of the 126 boards responding had decided against authorized smoking areas, 42 approved the areas, and 32 were undecided.

State briefs

Sanitation workers strike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — County sanitation workers went on strike today in a contract dispute involving paid cleanup time.

Pickets were set up by members of the Service Employes International Union Local 66, AFL—CIO, at the Joint Water Pollution Control Plant, where 360 million gallons of sewage are treated daily.

Vic Hochee, general manager of Local 660, said the walkout was over "what's decent and equitable for people forced to work all day around raw sewage and garbage contaminants."

Hochee said that although his local had been offered a 5.1 per cent pay increase, the loss of paid cleanup time would mean a net loss in pay.

More than 425 million gallons of raw sewage and 15,000 tons of garbage are treated daily by the joint sanitation district which covers more than 70 communities in Los Angeles County.

A strike two years ago by sanitation workers was called off after three days when state health officials complained that untreated sewage was contaminating coastal waters.

Barley grown in salt water

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — Plant scientists say they have successfully grown a new strain of barley in salty ocean water, usually a killer of dry land vegetation.

Emanuel Epstein, professor of plant nutrition at the University of California at Davis, and research associate Jack Norlyn, conducted the research.

Epstein said in an interview they crossed 6,200 different barley strains from around the world to obtain the salt resistant varieties used in the experiments.

Epstein said the results were "amazing" and he predicted the day may come when sea water farming is possible.

He said some of the barley plants thrived in full-strength sea water and that only nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium fertilizers were used.

Two escape from Patton

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — Authorities were searching today for two patients who escaped from Patton State Hospital through an unlocked door.

Meanwhile, officials at the hospital, where 120 patients are confined, imposed a "lockdown" as a security measure. All the patients at Patton are penal code violators.

Hospital officials said the lockdown was imposed to prevent other escapes and to cut down the flow of drugs, weapons and other contraband.

Rubidoux man arrested in drug-sniffing deaths

RIVERSIDE (AP)—An 18-year-old man has been arrested for investigation of murder in the deaths of two youths who became fatally ill after sniffing a drug at a party, authorities said.

Raymond Glen Robison, 18, of Rubidoux, was arrested Monday while being treated at Riverside General Hospital for illness suffered after taking the drug himself, officials said.

Riverside County Sheriff's Department officials said that Rollin L. Steeg, 17, of Fontana, and John Stevens, 15, of Rubidoux, died after inhaling a white powder allegedly given to them by Robison.

The drug was not immediately identified by police. But doctors at Community Hospital, where several of the ill youths were taken, thought the drug might be procaine, a local anesthetic, authorities said.

Mike Barker, 18, and James Kent, 19, both of Rubidoux, were in stable condition, also after sniffing the drug, authorities said.

Det. Bill Russell of the County Sheriff's Department said Robison allegedly brought a pot of white powder to the house occupied by Carol Leslie and her daughter, Lydia, 16.

Lydia said there were about 10 young people at the house and that Robison purportedly produced a pot half full of the powder.

"I told them not to mess with it," Lydia said. "They didn't know what it was. About 10 minutes after they sniffed it, it started to get to Johnny (Stevens). He said his feet got real stiff, then his legs got bad, and he turned a real dark purple."

Police said Lydia phoned her mother and said the drugs had been taken by the boys and that some of them were sick.

The substance was sent by sheriff's officers to a laboratory for analysis.

Grand jury focuses on welfare fraud

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The county grand jury has urged the district attorney to prosecute welfare fraud "more vigorously" in efforts to reduce the amount of wasted welfare funds.

In a year-end report issued Monday, the panel also suggested that Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp set up a specially trained unit to handle child abuse cases.

The report said more than $1.5 million in fraudulent payments were uncovered by the fraud unit of the Department of Public Social Services between November, 1974, and October, 1975.

And, the report said, the fraud unit was unable to estimate the amount of undetected fraud.

"A primary concern in the deterrence of welfare fraud is the lack of emphasis by the district attorney's office on welfare fraud as a 'real crime,' coupled with the court's failure to impose strict sentences upon conviction.

"This has led to an attitude among offenders that a fee or low cost loan can be obtained by committing welfare fraud, repayable only if the offender is caught," the report said.

Referring to the problem of child abuse, the report noted that the sheriff, county counsel and Social Services Department already had established special child abuse units.

Van de Kamp said he was "generally in agreement" with the report.

Legislator denies deal with Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Clifford P. Hansen, R-Wyo., denied today that he promised to deliver the votes of seven uncommitted Republican National Convention delegates to President Ford in return for Ford's signature on a bill the administration has opposed.

"That statement is untrue," Hansen said in a Senate speech.

Report Mao not in poor health

TOKYO (AP) — A Chinese Foreign Ministry official says reports that Chairman Mao Tse-tung is in poor health are a "groundless fabrication," the Peking correspondent of Japan's largest newspaper, Asahi Shimbun, reported today.

Japan's Kyodo News Service reported from Peking last week that the Communist party central committee had decided the 82-year-old party chairman would no longer receive foreign visitors. A Foreign Ministry official said Mao was "too old and too busy," Kyodo reported.

The report heightened foreign speculation that Mao's health had deteriorated.

Elsinore fire injures three

LAKE ELSINORE (AP) — Three persons were injured, several small structures razed and more than 300 acres blackened as a raging fire burned through brush near Lake Elsinore before firemen quelled the blaze, authorities say.

Two California Division of Forestry fire fighters were injured Monday while fighting the blaze, authorities said.

Steve Fosmo, 28, of Woodcrest, suffered an allergic reaction to a bee sting while fighting the blaze, and was in stable condition after being treated for respiratory failure, officials said.

A woman fire fighter, Olga Vogt, 21, of Borrego Springs, was treated for second-degree burns and released, authorities said. Philip Williams, a 15-year-old resident of the threatened area, also suffered minor injuries while trying to ward off the flames, officials said.

New Viking landing site looks okay

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A giant radar dish in Arecibo, Puerto Rico, aimed at the spot chosen for Viking 1's landing on Mars, has so far failed to turn up anything that might reverse the decision.

As scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory went through the data from Arecibo Monday, Project Manager Jim Martin said: "I have heard no data that would shake our belief in the Northwest area."

The Northwest area is the flat plain — probably an ancient basin or dry lake — that became Viking's destination when the spacecraft's cameras found the original site to be inhospitable.

The cameras show the new site to be relatively free of mounds or boulders. But radar examination from earth can sometimes spot smaller hazards.

On Thursday, if the good news continues, Viking 1 will be ordered to adjust its orbit to bring it over the landing point. The landing is scheduled for July 17.

Photographs released here on Monday showed another region that could become the landing site for Viking 2, now on its way to Mars.

COULD BE LANDING SITE

Viking I photographed huge Martian sand dunes a few degrees south of the equator during its reconnaisance July 1 of a possible landing site for Viking 2.

The pictures showed a cratered landscape that reminds many scientists of plains on the moon. Some of the craters were nearly filled with windblown sand — Dr. Michael Carr, a geologist with the Viking team, called them "ghost" craters — and around them, smooth deposits of sand or volcanic lava created featureless plains.

"This is the kind of material we would like to use to locate landing sites," Carr said.

Another photo showed the bottom of a canyon that is part of the 3,000-mile-long system of canyons rending the Martian crust near its equator.

The canyon bottom was filled with a field of sand dunes, each measuring about 1,600 feet across. The dunes were piled up by the fierce Martian winds that helped dig out the canyon.

Carr said the dune fields were much like those on the earth, particularly in Peru, Southern California and Arizona. He said Viking scientists had studied the earthly versions of the dune fields to better understand comparable features on Mars.

Though in some respects Mars does resemble the moon, recent information has shown it is much more active than earth's cold, dead satellite.

"There is a much greater range of morphology (surface features) on Mars because there are a greater number of processes to work on them," Carr said.

CROWDS SEEK CLOSER LOOK

Thousands of visitors wait in line at a Hudson River pier Monday to view one of the tall ships that participated in Op Sail July 4th celebration in New York.

Thousands jam piers to look at 'tall ships'

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of visitors have jammed the city's waterfront to get a closer look at the tall ships of Operation Sail and the men-of-war of the International Naval Review.

Police estimated that 60,000 were welcomed aboard 14 majestic square-rigged sailing ships at various docks, while about 135,000 were able to set foot on the 49 military vessels from all over the world also tied up along Manhattan's waterfront.

Those who didn't make it Monday were advised to return today or Wednesday and try again.

The Soviet square-riggers Kruzenshtern and Tovarisch were at anchor in the middle of the Hudson River off 79th Street and allowed no visitors. It was reported there had been threats of anti-Soviet demonstrations against them.

But to Leon Schertler, vice president of Operation Sail, that wasn't entirely a bad thing.

"I had been pushing all along to keep some ships out in the stream, where they'd be on full display," he said. The Soviet ships floating in bright sunlight proved his point.

Meanwhile, at the South Street Seaport Museum on the East River, where four of the tall ships were tied up, a huge crowd got so out of hand that police had to close off the pier and many visitors went away disappointed. Some streets in the area had to be closed off to keep still more crowds from pouring in.

But thousands got to walk the decks of the Op Sail host ship, the Coast Guard's Eagle. Or they got to visit the Danmark, or Norway's Christian Radich, or the Sir Winston Churchill, a favorite with its all-girl crew.

At Pier 86, where the Chilean ship Esmeralda was moored, several hundred demonstrators shouted against the current Chilean government and called the sailing vessel a "torture ship." Many managed to get onto the pier, but police kept them from boarding the ship.

But mostly it was one vast demonstration of international amity, good cheer and fun.

"I've never seen the city like this," said Jack Liczkowski of Wayne, N.J., who brought his family over to see the Polish ship Dar Pormorza. "New York is absolutely different, such a spirit of joy and celebration."

80 women going aboard at U.S. Naval Academy

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The U.S. Naval Academy, the oldest of the tradition-bound U.S. service academies, bowed to a new tradition today as women joined the ranks of the uniformed and regimented.

Eighty women freshmen — "plebes" — were scheduled to go aboard with 1,320 males.

On Wednesday, 110 women are scheduled to enter the U.S. Military Academy's freshman class.

But the Navy and the Army are playing second fiddle in the Air Force Academy in Colorado admitted women last week as its freshmen — or "doolies" — arrived.

The Coast Guard Academy in Connecticut also admitted its first women last week, but admission was voluntary since the school is run by the U.S. Transportation Department. The Merchant Marine Academy, run by the Commerce Department, admitted its first women last year.

The opening of Big Three academy doors to women was done under a law passed by Congress to cover the Defense Department-run schools.

The coming of women was fought by dyed-in-the-wool military men who said the academies were set up to train combat officers and federal law does not permit women in combat. But Congress prevailed, and women were ordered in for the first time this year.

Officials at the Naval Academy say the women will be treated the same as men with a few exceptions. Housing will be in coed dormitories.

One change in academy's rule book is that cadets of the opposite sex visiting each other in a dorm room must keep the door "open-fully."

The coeds, who are to be formally called midshipmen the same as their male counterparts, are not allowed to kiss or hold hands with male classmates in public and they may not date upperclassmen.

Since the law bars women from serving on combat vessels, the female freshmen will not be allowed to go on overnight cruises. Naval Academy officials said they hoped to change that rule by the time of the annual summer cruise at the end of the freshman year.

Football, wrestling and lacrosse are out for the women at Navy because they are body contact sports. But the coeds will be expected to take part in other athletic programs, both intercollegiate and intramural.

At the Air Force Academy's June 28 opening, the 150 new female cadets marched under the sign "Bring Me Men" leading into the campus in the shadow of the Rocky Mountains. They are part of the 1,600-student freshman class.

The entrance of women a year ago at the Merchant Marine Academy has been marked by controversy. A woman cadet resigned under pressure after being accused of sleeping with a male cadet — her fiance. School officials said the male cadet was allowed to graduate because he had a better academic record than the woman.

What it was like to sail on the 'tall ships'

NEW YORK (AP) — By the millions they crowded the concrete shore on their nation's 200th birthday, spectators from skyscrapers gawking at white-winged sailing ships.

These are the "tall ships" — quite small, in fact, next to this city. But there is majesty and magic in these vestiges of the past.

One hundred years ago, you wonder, what was it like at sea?

Here are some glimpses of what it was like aboard two of the sailing ships that went from Bermuda to Newport, R.I., and then to New York for the July 4 Parade of Sail:

Four days out of Bermuda, the becalmed British schooner Sir Winston Churchill finally found its wind—20 knots from the west, rolling the cobalt-blue waters 350 miles from Newport, R.I. The swells grew to eight to 10 feet.

Soon it was nighttime, thousands of brilliant stars above, the graceful curve of taut canvas stretched 100 feet up. You use few lights at sea — a dim red glow from the compass, a blue and white light atop the mainmast to show other ships you are there.

And what you hear is near-silence. The generator is off. So is the engine. Voices are muted so others can sleep.

The bridge is a raised open area, with lookout platforms on either side and a spoked wheel in the middle. You hear the rush of water, its crash at the bow. A block clanks in the rigging. The topsails luff, like fresh-laundered towels snapping on a line.

We are heeled over, perhaps 20 degrees. Water gushes through the lee rail. It is hard to stand, but if you let your knees go loose it is easier. You sway with the ship as it bucks up and down.

The Churchill is a well-balanced ship, good when pointed into this wind. For 24 hours the wind pushes us over, but we roll very little. The cook, Derek Allen, gets a workout as grease splatters in the galley and cups fly through the petty officers' mess.

By day, many are seasick. The eight male officers and permanent crew are experienced at sea but most of the crew of civilian trainees, 42 young women, is not. When one lurches to the lee rail, another runs to clamp her into a harness so she isn't washed overboard. Nobody on watch is allowed to stay below, and very few ask to.

This ship, though light for a tall ship, is 150 feet long, 100 feet high. There are more than 50 people on board. It could easily go round the world. And its fore-and-aft sails — the important sails on a schooner — act a bit like wings when sailing into the wind. The wind rushes past the sails, creating a vacuum into which we rush.

The watch officer, Dr. A.P. McGowan of England's National Maritime Museum, says in a sense we are in a far more sophisticated machine than a motor vessel. The forces we harness are enormous, but we are just harnessing them — not making our own force. The key to handling them is balance.

For example, we go fast only in rough weather. But for 10 hours, the woman on the helm does not have to touch the wheel to hold it steady.

That much balance is extraordinary, says McGowan. But, he adds, "All sailing ships must be balanced to a certain degree. Without that no person would be able to steer her. No man by himself is capable of that kind of force."

A week later, the U.S. Coast Guard bark Eagle, sailing from Newport to New York, emerged from thick fog off the coast of Long Island.

A 295-foot bark rigged like an old-time trading ship or whaler, the Eagle can make as much as 15 or 16 knots in a 30-knot blow. She has five squaresails on each of the first two masts, a fore-and-aft sail called a spanker on the mizzen.

Now a wind was coming up. The ship was turned so the wind was behind it, and the command "Lay aloft" rang out. Gangs of cadets climbed the ratlines, to a first platform, a second, then the topmost yards. They braced their feet on footropes slung below the yards, throwing their torsos over the yards to keep balance.

They loosened the sails, let them drop a bit, then climbed down to the deck, where they unfurled the sails and set them taut by hauling on ropes linked to blocks and stretching upward.

It seems that so many things on this ship look the same — it is all rope and canvas, wire and masts. But each rope does something different, each wire has a purpose. The cadets must learn them all.

The commands, shouted by the sailing master from the quarterdeck, are an arcane vocabulary straight out of "Two Years Before the Mast": "Stand by to man the t'gallant braces. ... Tell him to haul on the starboard. ... Get everything bunted up and clewed up."

The sails tower 150 feet above deck, and great ropes the size of a man's wrist are used to set them. On some, the cadets work in relay teams, running forward in a line of 15. When the lead man runs out of room, he runs back to the rear of the line.

Soon the sails were billowing, and the great ship's bow was dipping and then rising out of the Atlantic. In a 10-knot breeze, we made five knots.

Two days later we sailed up the Hudson past the millions on shore.

There was only one problem. The wind would be behind us when we sailed downriver, but was directly against us all the way up.

But this exercise, for once, had little to do with seamanship. We set our sails anyway, the motor pushing us into the wind, our sails taking on an unseamanlike curve to the rear.

CWO "Red" Shannon, the ship's sailing master, looks like a master sergeant and is demanding with his crew. He knows that to be caught "aback" like this is an embarassment. But he smiled.

He looked at the millions who had been following his ship's exploits as it went from Bermuda to Newport, and now to New York, and he said they expected a good show.

"And," he added, "most of them won't know the difference."

New York City still can throw real party

NEW YORK (AP) — The shine of the Big Apple may be tarnished a bit by countless problems, but New York City showed as never before that it knows how to throw a party better than any place on earth.

For one glorious weekend, the city that was once acknowledged to represent the biggest and best of America acted as if nothing had changed.

Gone, if only fleetingly, were the specter of bankruptcy, the pain of deterioration and the cynicism for which New Yorkers are known.

Dirty, depraved New York did itself proud on the 200th birthday of independence.

"I've never seen anything quite like it," said one young lady who came here from California. "New York must be the most wonderful city in the world." This weekend it may have been.

For a nation born of the sea, New York put on the greatest maritime spectacle in America's history. Tall ships, the windjammers of another era, led a parade of magnificent sailing vessels past the Statue of Liberty, the welcoming beacon to millions seeking a better life.

Past skyscrapers and modern men of war in naval vessels. Past millions of people, into a celebration the likes of which the city has never seen.

But New York this weekend was more than sailing ships.

—It was 22 ethnic festivals, where the men and women and children who are the American melting pot celebrated their past.

—It was a nighttime parade up the Avenue of the Americas.

—It was street festivals and carnivals, families camping out along the shores of rivers and bays.

—It was the residents of one building, shielded from each other's view as they sat on balconies, joining each other in singing "God Bless America" as the tall ships sailed by.

—It was sailors jamming into the city at night, and prostitutes turning out in full force.

—It was the Statue of Liberty, brilliantly aglow in new lighting that made her four times brighter, and a fireworks display which sparkled above as thousands on shore sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

—It was Christopher Columbus the 17th, who came here by jetliner from Spain because "there is no better time for us to come in our happy circumstances of discovering a new world with our lives."

—It was international parties and block gatherings, a time to celebrate the past and forget the problems of the present.

And the future? Even in New York, at least on this weekend, there was reason to smile. And to hope.

Kjell Thorsen, captain of the Norwegian tall ship Christian Radich, said, "Never before have so many ships gathered like this in peace and friendship. I am a navy man, a fighting man. But it is time to stop fighting. This is a chance to get together for peace. It will not happen again, I shouldn't think. I hope this time it will work."

Queen Elizabeth opens six-day visit to U.S.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Britain's Queen Elizabeth II made a sentimental Bicentennial visit today to the historic city where American patriots 200 years ago declared their freedom from her nation.

She is spending the day in Philadelphia on the first stop of a six-day, nine-city American tour before she goes to Montreal to open the Olympic Games.

The royal yacht Britannia docked at Penn's Landing, where William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania, first came ashore in 1681.

More than 5,000 persons crowded along the Delaware River under heavy security to greet the queen and her husband, Prince Philip.

The welcoming group included about 50 demonstrators protesting the Bicentennial Bell, Britain's birthday present to the United States.

The protesters, led by the Rev. Carl McIntire, said the new bell should have a Biblical quotation like the old one. He said the fact there is no Biblical inscription "literally takes God out of our concept of freedom."

The Liberty Bell bears a quotation from Leviticus: "Proclaim liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." The inscription on the Bicentennial Bell says: "Let Freedom Ring."

The Rev. Mr. McIntire has called the new bell a phony and has said the Queen should take it back.

The 10-ton Bicentennial Bell, cast at the Whitechapel Bell Foundry in London where the Liberty Bell was made in 1752, hangs in a 130-foot-high brick bell tower at the new Visitors' Center.

Mayor Frank L. Rizzo led the official welcoming party as the Queen came down a long red carpet for a limousine trip 15 blocks to City Hall. She rode in President Ford's specially designed car, which was sent here for the trip.

As the royal yacht moved into the dock, helicopters flew overhead in the hazy sky and fireboats along the river turned on their hoses.

The queen is a great-great-great-great-granddaughter of King George III, the British monarch at the time of the American Revolution. She is also a second cousin, seven times removed, of George Washington.

The queen's Philadelphia itinerary includes a visit to Independence Hall; Carpenter's Hall, where the First Continental Congress met in 1774 to denounce British colonial policies; and the Liberty Bell pavillion where the famed, but cracked, Liberty Bell is displayed.

Depree trial jury selection continues

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Three remaining jurors and two alternates were to be selected today, with testimony to follow in the trial of a white fundamentalist preacher's wife charged with killing a black man.

Nine jurors, one of them black and three of them women, were selected Monday as the first-degree murder trial of Sandra Dupree, 34, opened in Vance County Superior Court.

Just outside the city limits, a tent city of about 30 blacks, gathered to demonstrate for equal justice in the trial, spent a second night of mild harrassment and catcalls by whites passing by in cars and on motorcycles.

Arthur Vann III, a member of Mrs. Dupree's defense team, said he anticipates the prosecution will call only three or four of the 10 witnesses it has subpoenaed for the trial.

Vann said the defense expects to call more than 30 witnesses. He said only about six of them will be character witnesses.

Although attorneys for Mrs. Dupree entered a plea of innocent Monday, defense lawyers concentrated on the concept of self-defense while questioning prospective jurors. Defense lawyers, led by Arthur Vann Jr., asked potential jurors if they believed they could acquit someone charged with murder on grounds of self-defense.

While questioning prospective black jurors, Vann also asked whether they would be reluctant to acquit a white woman in the shooting of a black person. Defense attorneys excluded all blacks from the jury except the one chosen.

Dist. Atty. W.H.S. Burgwyn questioned jurors on their religious beliefs, rejecting those who professed fundamentalist Christian beliefs similar to those of the Duprees.

Mrs. Dupree, the mother of four and wife of Free Will Baptist minister Harvey Dupree, 33, is charged with the pistol slaying of Harry Lee Dickens, 21. He was shot once in the head while in his front yard in the town of Scotland Neck March 11.

Mrs. Dupree's son Mark, 14, had scuffled with several blacks while selling the newspaper "Grit" in the area about a week before the shooting. He was selling there again when the shooting occurred.

Twenty blacks, their mouths taped shut, stood for ten minutes at the U.S. Post Office in Henderson Monday afternoon as a silent demonstration for equal justice in the trial. Police were present but kept away from the demonstrators.

A tent used as headquarters for the protestors burned early Monday morning while its occupants were away, and leaders of the group blamed the fire on arsonists.

Mrs. Dupree, who has been free on $75,000 bond, has been the subject of protests by blacks in Scotland Neck. They said she got lenient treatment from authorities. Her bond was raised from $10,000 after initial protests. There have also been counter demonstrations by whites in Scotland Neck.

Half million bank robbery

MONTERREY, MEXICO (AP) — Guerrillas have made off with nearly half a million dollars in one of the smoothest and most audacious bank robberies ever seen in Mexico, police reported today.

"It was the biggest haul on record," said police officer Javier Garcia Montes in this third largest Mexican city 600 miles north of the capital.

He reported five members of the September 23rd Communist League, Mexico's most notorious guerrilla band, staged the hold-up Monday at the Bank of London and Mexico.

Soviets launch new space test

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched a Soyuz spacecraft with a two-man crew today to carry out "joint experiments" with the Salyut 5 space lab which was put into orbit on June 22, the official news agency Tass reported.

The Soyuz 21 spaceship was launched at 3:09 p.m. Moscow time (8:09 a.m. EDT) to carry out near-earth space exploration, Tass said.

For V.P. nomination

Democrat delegates like Brown, Church

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter isn't saying who is at the top of his list for a running mate on the Democratic ticket, but delegates to the party's convention name Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Sen. Frank Church as their top choices for the second spot.

The delegates who will meet in New York City next week named more than 50 politicians and nonpoliticians as their choice for vice president, a continuing Associated Press survey of delegates found.

Carter, who has enough delegate votes to win the Democratic presidential nomination, says he will interview five possible running mates before the convention.

His first interview was with Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie in Plains, Ga., on Monday. Carter said that because Muskie was the first to be interviewed does not mean he is Carter's first choice.

The former Georgia governor, who has not released the names of the four other contenders besides Muskie, has said no one speaks for him on this decision.

And it is Carter's vote that will count at the convention. In the past, the convention always has approved the presidential candidate's choice for his running mate.

Brown, who defeated Carter in three late primaries, was named as the choice of 155 of the 988 delegates who stated a preference for vice president in interviews with The AP.

Another 153 delegates named Church, who also defeated Carter several times in later primaries.

In contrast, Muskie was named for the second post by only 15 delegates of the 2,222 who have been interviewed thus far in the AP survey.

About 54 per cent of the delegates did not give a choice for the vice presidential nomination when asked in the continuing AP delegate survey.

After Brown and Church, in order of total number of delegate mentions, were Sen. Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois, chosen by 115 delegates, and Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, by 81.

Both Stevenson, who was a favorite son contender, and Bayh, who dropped out of the presidential race midway through the primaries, drew much of their support from their home states. About a third of Stevenson's support was from Illinois, with almost half of Bayh's coming from Indiana.

Minnesota Sen. Walter Mondale, was named by 70 delegates, about 50 of whom currently are listed as Carter delegates in the AP survey.

Rep. Morris Udall, who amassed more than 300 delegates in his bid for the nomination, was named by 62 delegates for the second spot.

Six women and four blacks were among those mentioned by at least one delegate in the AP survey, but all those who ranked among the top 10 in total delegate support were white male politicians.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., was the choice of 38 delegates, while Ohio Sen. John Glenn also was named by that number.

Sen. Henry Jackson, whose presidential campaign stalled in May, and Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., rounded out the top 10 in delegate preference with 30 and 26 supporters, respectively.

The AP survey found that Brown, Church, Udall and Jackson still have support from a relatively large number of delegates for the presidential nomination, support that might be transferred into a vice presidential contest.

Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., was named for the second post by 19 delegates. Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley was named by two delegates, as was Georgia State Rep. Julian Bond.

Among the others named by less than 10 delegates:

And former presidential hopefuls Fred Harris, Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, Sargent Shriver, Texas Sen. Lloyd Bensten and Terry Sanford.

In Brazil

Descendents of Southerners plan own celebration

AMERICANA, Brazil (AP) — About 200 Brazilians will gather at a little red brick church near Americana Sunday to celebrate the U.S. Bicentennial. And the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy will be hung prominently and proudly alongside the Stars and Stripes.

The Brazilians are descendants of Southerners who fled to Brazil after their defeat in the Civil War. They are scattered throughout Brazil and have become assimilated into Brazilian life.

But every three months they gather at the little church in the rolling hills 10 miles outside Americana to hold religious services and have a picnic dinner.

"Brazil is our mother country, but the United States is our grandmother country," says Judith McKnight Jones.

In front of the church stands the Confederate Memorial, an obelisk displaying Confederate flags and the names of the families who settled in Americana. Behind the church is a little cemetery in which many of the early immigrants are buried; the Protestant Southerners had to have their own graveyard because in those days the Roman Catholic Church would not admit them to its burial grounds.

The American Descendancy Fraternity, formed by the descendants about 20 years ago to preserve their heritage, had bad luck trying to start a museum on the church grounds.

Jimmy Carter visited here in 1972 while he was governor of Georgia and laid the cornerstone for the museum building. But heavy rains apparently weakened the foundations of the building, and part of it collapsed. The fraternity hasn't decided whether to try to rebuild.

Mrs. Jones, who wrote a history of the American settlement, says about 3,500 Southerners came to Brazil in the 10 years after the Civil War. More trickled in until the turn of the century.

The hardships of the rough frontier country, disease and the difficulty of learning Portuguese drove many back to the United States. The only community that thrived was Vila Americana, or American City. Later the Vila was dropped.

The town 75 miles west of Sao Paulo was incorporated as a city in August 1875. Now an industrial and agricultural center of 80,000 people, it celebrated its centennial last year and adopted a coat of arms bearing the Confederate flag. A few streets still carry American names, but little else is visible to distinguish Americana from other medium-size Brazilian cities.

Mrs. Jones estimates that some 300 descendants of the exiled Confederates still live in Brazil. About 200 usually gather for the quarterly meetings.

The descendants have achieved prominence in medicine, farming, law and especially in education. Mrs. Jones' husband, James, a lawyer, dentist, farmer and former city councilman, feels it is no accident that Americana has one of the highest literacy rates in Brazil, one of the best school systems and a library with more than 10,000 volumes.

Samoa fete on July 5

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (AP)—An hour-long parade, a mix of native Samoan and American heritage, wound its way through this tiny city Monday, launching two days' of tardy celebration of the Fourth of July.

Because of the strict religious traditions here, Samoans did not join other Americans in celebrating the Bicentennial birthday throughout the country on Sunday.

Rica Laymon, of San Diego, Calif., who sailed into this South Pacific harbor with her husband last year, said, "they may have had their Fourth of July in the states first, but we've got the best one."

Natives in their traditional costumes carried the American Flag along with Samoa's flag to lead the patriotic floats parading past local dignitaries and a crowd of thousands.

Participants in the parade were dressed like colonialists and other characters of American history, many with powdered white wigs, not quite large enough to cover the bushy black hair common to most Samoans.

The patriotic speeches were carried out in the tradition of Samoa's talking chiefs, where a chief's second-in-command conducts a lengthy oratory.

The events Monday included a number of sporting events such as copra cutting, fire making, climbing a greased pole, catching a greased pig and basket weaving.

The big event was scheduled for Tuesday with a race of the fautasi, which are 90-foot-long boats powered by 44 rowers each.

In the helm of each boat is a beater, who pounds out the cadence on a large-square tincan while the rowers chant.

Mondale next for Carter

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Jimmy Carter said today he will interview Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota as a possible vice presidential running mate Thursday.

Mondale is the second vice presidential possibility with whom Carter has met. The former Georgia governor talked with Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine at his Plains, Ga., home Monday.

The man who is virtually assured of winning the Democratic presidential nomination next week has said he plans to meet with at least five vice presidential prospects before and during the convention.

Carter made his announcement about Mondale at a news conference held with Democratic governors.

Moynihan

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Hebrew University here has presented an honorary doctorate to Daniel Patrick Moynihan, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

In an acceptance speech Monday, Moynihan praised the Israeli rescue of those aboard a hijacked Air France plane in Uganda, calling it "the most explicit instruction ... that free men can and will prevail."

Moynihan, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for senator from New York, said the terrorist assault on the plane "has become a metaphor for the general assault on democracy and decency which is the sustaining ethos of totalitarianism in our time."

Gromyko

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko was the first member of the Soviet Communist party's ruling Politburo in recent years to attend the annual July 4 gathering here.

This year's Fourth of July party was to celebrate the American Bicentennial and was held at the official residence of U.S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr.

Gromyko, 67, a former ambassador to the United States, chatted at length with Stoessel and others at the reception, which drew between 2,000 and 3,000 guests, most of them Russians.

Kreisky

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — Chancellor Bruno Kreisky of Austria says the United States is going through "a process of self-purification" that will strengthen rather than weaken it.

In a Bicentennial speech, he mentioned "tough disputes" of recent U.S. domestic affairs, referring apparently to the Watergate affair and recent sex scandals in Washington.

Addressing the Salzburg summer school for American university students on Monday, Kreisky said America remained true to its 1776 principles when it provided a haven for the persecuted of Europe.

Elizabeth

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II has asked the Angolan government for clemency on behalf of three British mercenaries sentenced to death by a court in that country.

A spokesman said Monday that the queen sent a message over the weekend to President Agostinho Neto of Angola from the royal yacht Britannia, on which the queen was sailing from Bermuda to the United States.

The British mercenaries sentenced to death June 28 for their part on the losing side in the Angolan civil war are Costas Georgiou, Andrew McKenzie and John Barker. The fourth man sentenced to die is Daniel Gearheart, 34, an American Vietnam war veteran from Kensington, Md.

The text of the queen's message was not disclosed.

Out of arrogance flows compassion

From the ashes of Watergate...a 'new' Ehrlichman

By IRA BERKOW

At breakfast recently John Ehrlichman wiped a splotch of poached egg off his face — off his brambly greying beard, actually. He looked at the fellow with him through steel-rim glasses that shield very penetrating, very intelligent hazel eyes. He raised in thought a bushy right eyebrow which set in motion a score of squiggles in his broad forehead.

"Do I like myself?" He repeated the direct question just asked of him.

"It's not a question of like or dislike," he replied without belligerence. "I think it is a question of evidencing or embodying the things which I know to be true about me."

What did he say? What was he saying? Such was often wondered of Ehrlichman when he served as one of the nation's most powerful and haughty men, assistant to President Nixon for domestic affairs, from 1969 until the spring of 1973 when Nixon was forced to "terminate" him under pressure during the Watergate disclosures.

Ehrlichman is now appealing a five-year conviction for obstruction of justice for his part in the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist by the now infamous "plumbers," for whom he was near the top of their chain of command.

Ehrlichman, wearing dark blue tie and light blue shirt and light blue suit with the jacket buttoned over his expansive belly, was in Manhattan to promote his recently published novel, "The Company," in which he attempts to describe what life is like in the White House.

"I laid this book over three administrations deliberately," he said. "I wanted to deal with the hypothesis that what goes on in the White House is strongly influenced by precedent. You must deal with what appears to be a trap, or a Catch-22 situation.

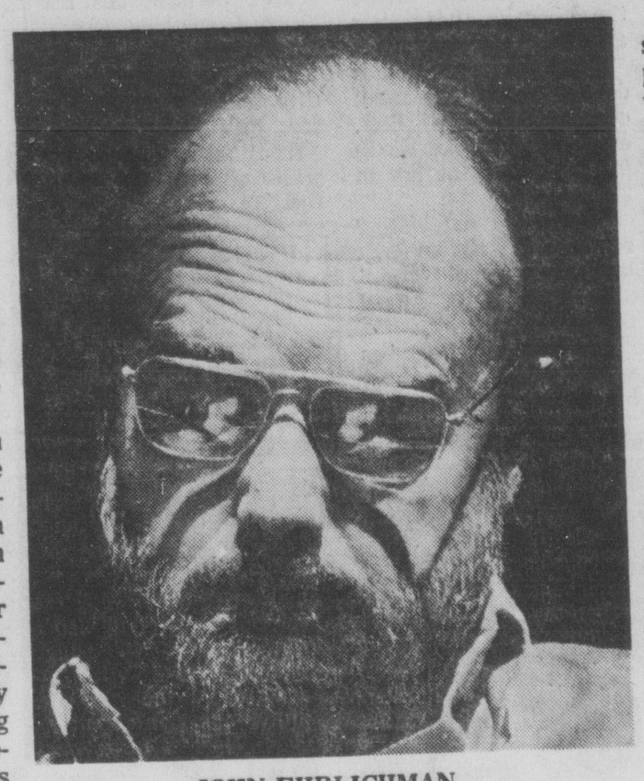
"When you set foot in the White House, the roles and actions of previous occupants play a very important part in the actions of the incumbent. It's rather subconscious, it's hanging from the four corners of the rooms. Very seldom does something pop up that's disassociated from the actions of others.

"For example, let's take presidential home improvements. We had a standard or high-water mark. We decided we shouldn't be any more elaborate than building something comparable to Lyndon Johnson's construction of a private airfield near his home in Texas.

"Well, as is normally the case, each succeeding administration goes a little beyond the previous. And the so-called improvements and security structures at San Clemente were what we called a matter of quantified excess.

"As for political spying, well, it's public now that previous administrations pioneered it. And I'm not sure it reached its apex in the Nixon administration.

"But here's the catch. When you're making a legal or moral judgment, should you be held to the standard of the past or to the standard of the future? It's a kind of time warp.



JOHN EHRLICHMAN
'Lost sight of what was important'

"This may sound like an implicit cop-out. I don't know if it is or not.

"Now, I have no trouble with the concept of accepting responsibility for one's actions. It's called 'respondiat superior,' that is, the principal is liable for the actions of his agent which are authorized. It was what the Nuremberg trials were all about, it was what the Eichmann trial dealt with.

"But obviously there are limitations. And they get kind of fuzzy. In the tradition of government service, you either follow orders or you leave. There are no other alternatives. There was a pattern set in the framework of the White House, and all of us followed it. Even when I'd say to Bob Haldeman, 'Gee, what the hell can the President be thinking of?' And Haldeman would say, 'John, you know the President is right.'

"I sometimes did not carry out certain orders because I thought the President was just in a pique. Later, he realized his mistake and appreciated my action. But there are limitations there, as well. If the President decides on a matter of high national interest, how is he going to get decisions effected if you've got a bunch of philosophers talking into skulls with ravens on their shoulders? The White House cannot be a Socratic school. So this is the dilemma.

"Only two people in our administration quit, and they did so just before they were going to be fired. There are things keeping you on, even when you know things are going wrong. It's almost a physical force, centripetal I think the word is. It holds you in the center.

"First, you feel if you stay you can accomplish things. I thought I was one of the few people who could communicate with the President. Second, the whole system of blandishments makes it so comfortable to stay. Cars, human bodies to help you, adulation of the community, summer cottages on lakes for your family — it was seductive.

"And then, well, I guess I felt I deserved such things by accident of birth. I was brought up in a socially prominent family in Seattle. I became a lawyer with good social standing. All my life I never questioned what I thought, what I'd do the next day. Never was challenged. I guess there was a kind of implicit arrogance. Poor people? Who knows poor people? I could intellectualize about them. They were a problem. But I didn't know poor people. None of us in the White House did. I've got regrets. You bet I do.

"I've been living in Santa Fe for the last couple years, in a small adobe. And I'm learning more about life, more about myself. I've worked with Indians, with Mexicans — I've seen for the first time the depths of their problems. Who had ever considered, for example, the hurdles kids like these must try to overcome when they enter school without knowing English?

"My writing and my artwork have also expanded me. For the first time, I'm more interested in the process than in the product. I'm striving to learn what is truly important. What happened in the White House, that cataclysm, may have been the best thing to ever happen to me. It blew away all of my mores. Now I live day to day, living by unstructured volitional dictates. And for the first time, I have a compendium of unanswered questions."

He was asked if he felt perhaps that the nation should sympathize with him, that we ought to say, "There but for the Grace of God go I?"

"No," he said, "I think they should say, 'I'd have been smarter than that dumb bastard. He let his vanity get in the way of his good sense. He began to believe his press clippings, of how powerful he was. He lost sight of what was important. Maybe he knew what was important, but it was so deep down that it had a hell of a time surfacing.' "

Latest computer game has grim sense of humor

SEATTLE (AP) — The latest computerized game at the local bar or poolroom is called "Death Race." For 25 cents, you can pretend you're running down pedestrians with a car.

The game puts the player behind a steering wheel and accelerator pedal and lets him chase "gremlins" across an electronic playing board for 99 seconds.

The skeletal figures bear a strong resemblance to people. When hit by a car, they emit a shrieking sound — something like the scream of a child — and turn into gravemarkers.

"If people get a kick out of running down pedestrians, you have to let them do it," said Paul Jacobs, director of marketing for Exidy, the Palo Alto, Calif., company that designed and distributes the game.

Jacobs said "Death Race" has been distributed nationwide but that it's a "trade secret" how many there are. He did say the game "happens to be our most popular game at this time. In fact, the business it attracts far outvalues any of the other games we've ever marketed."

The game scores points for each figure run down, and when it's over the player is rated on a scale ranging from a futile "skeleton chaser" to an accomplished "expert driver."

"The name 'Death Race' may shock a few people," Jacobs said, "but we find the game humorous."

"We decided to put a twist on that idea, so we added the graveyard effect and the shrieking sound, which makes for a lot more excitement," he said.

Jacobs said the game offended some distributors who refused to contract for it.

Bill Aubbon, director of the Seattle Center arcade, said the game has been in the arcade for about two weeks, "and so far no one has complained."

When first contacted, Aubbon said he wasn't aware of the game, but "it sounds a little hard to imagine." Checking further, he said he was relieved to find out "those are gremlins that you run down. You're not supposed to think they're people."

Intended or not, "I suppose they do resemble human forms," Jacobs said. "I don't think people really get off on thinking they ran down a pedestrian. I think they just like to see how good a marksman they are."

Dr. Byrde Meeks, a Seattle psychologist who once worked with aggressive inmates at California's San Quentin Prison, disagrees.

"A game like that appeals to the morbidity in a person," she said. "That type of preoccupation with violence was common in the prisoners I dealt with. They would have loved the game. ...

"Someone could argue that people act out their hostilities by playing games, but it has been proven time and time again that violencé often comes from modeling."

Jacobs maintains the game is harmless.

"Most people take it in the right frame of mind," he said. "They laugh about it and enjoy it, and that's what it's for."

Snake charmer, but not by choice

NEWPORT, Tenn. (AP) — Nellie Pack is a preacher's wife who has six children and keeps a copperhead snake in a dirt-filled wooden box on top of her refrigerator.

"I'm scared to death of them. Just the thought of them," she said. "I can't even pick up one of those red worms when we go fishing."

But Mrs. Pack has more than gotten used to the poisonous snake because it is a part of her family's religion. Her husband, the Rev. Liston Pack, is pastor of the Holiness Church of God in Jesus Name, which believes the Bible directs believers to "take up serpents."

The Rev. Mr. Pack, a truck driver during the week, handles the snakes at weekly religious services. Members of the congregation, including his wife, also handle the reptiles.

"I guess I'm the only woman that does now," she said. "I just talked to the Lord about it."

Mrs. Pack said that after praying, she felt the power of the Lord and was able to put her hands into the box full of writhing snakes.

At first, she said, she handled only one snake at a time, but felt moved at a later service to pick up eight serpents at one time.

"When the annointing of the Lord is there, it's amazing," she said.

Cocke County authorities do not bother the small congregation in the hollow, even though snake handling is against the law in Tennessee.

"We're not out looking for them. Just so they don't bring the snakes to town," said Dist. Atty. Alfred Schmutzer Jr.

The Rev. Mr. Pack has served a jail sentence for his beliefs and the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear his appeal challenging the law against snake handling. But the high court's decision has not changed anything among his congregation.

"The Bible doesn't say if they take up serpents, it says they shall," he said. "Them fellows keep you walking straight with God."

Fires damage four Pomona structures

Flames apparently caused by fireworks resulted in $9,000 damage to a house owned by Cleophas Simmons of 1047 Blakely Court, Pomona, Monday at 2 p.m.

Two firemen, Capt. Jerry Wetzler and fireman Mike Hewitt, were overcome by smoke while fighting the fire. They were treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and returned to duty.

Children had been playing with fireworks in the area all morning, firemen were told. The blaze started on the roof and destroyed two-thirds of it.

A fire at the home of Robert Fisher, 2278 Belinda Ave., Pomona, caused $1,900 worth of damage today shortly after 2 a.m.

Fisher was awakened by the smell of smoke in his bedroom. He had no phone and went next door to a neighbor's to call the Fire Department.

Cause of the fire, which destroyed the bedroom and its contents, is under investigation.

Fire caused $3,500 in damage Monday to a two-story barn which had been converted to a shop and storage building at 640 E. Kingsley Ave., Pomona.

The blaze started at 10:55 a.m., apparently from electrical equipment in the downstairs shop area, and spread to the second floor. The property is owned by Jack Burks.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed half a vacant house at 1030 Ashfield Ave., Pomona, late Sunday night, said Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes.

Loss estimate on the repossessed structure was $10,000.

Fowlkes said the blaze had started in the livingroom area at the front of the house.

Cause is under investigation.

Ken Pine may need surgery

Ken Pine, a member of the Pomona school board, may have to undergo surgery to correct a painful spinal condition which has kept him hospitalized since June 14.

Pine attended the school board meeting that evening to cast his vote for Charles C. Carpenter as superintendent of the school district.

He is kept in traction at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, to relieve pressure caused by three locked discs.

Doctors say there is a "99 per cent chance" of surgery, Pine said Monday.

Australian flag found

Upland city officials this morning carefully replaced its sister city's Australian flag in the permanent City Hall Bicentennial display after it had been reported stolen Sunday.

The flag, presented to Upland by its Australian sister city, Madrid, turned up stolen from the display Sunday night. Monday the flag, still in good condition, was returned to the city by an Ontario woman who reported taking it away from several youths.

Cal Poly club's giant ant gone

Ontario police wouldn't be surprised if someone were to call today to report that a giant "ant", about 10 feet high, and five feet wide with five black legs was on someone's driveway.

The giant ant, an entrant by the Cal Ply Circle K Club in the All States Parade Sunday, turned up missing sometime Monday from its parking place at Chaffey High School. The theft was reported about 7 p.m. by Richard Holder of the All States Parade Committee.

Ontario building permits climb

June was "busting out" all over in Ontario in the construction of new homes.

City officials reported issuing building permits for 227 houses valued at $6,938,228.

This boosted the total number of house permits issued the first six months to 679 with a $22,150,341 valuation.

And officials believe the new home construction will continue as the June permits included seven for model homes in two developments.

The Mize Co. plans to build three model homes on S. Fern Ave. These are valued at $81,210. In addition, the Chevron Construction Co. proposes to construct four model homes valued at $145,792 on Placer Place.

The building firm, Presley of Southern California, was issued permits for 162 homes valued at $4,788,929 for three developments. These include 78 homes valued at $2,126,139 on Latana Avenue, Tropicana Court, Valentine Court, Jacaranda Street and Eucalyptus Court; 42 homes valued at $1,169,840 on Quince and Montezuma courts; and 42 homes valued at $1,492,950 on Cypress Avenue, Jacaranda Street, Locust Street and Zenia Court.

The American National Housing Corp. received permits to construct 57 homes, valued at $1,891,434, on Cedar Ridge Place and Desert Forest Avenue.

For the month of June, officials issued 160 permits with a $7,316,302 valuation for all building projects.

In addition to new homes, these included:

—Alterations to dwellings, 62, $173,895 valuation; commercial building, one, $71,280; and additions and alterations to commercial and industrial buildings, 10, $55,205.

The June building activity boosted the six months total to 776 permits and a $27,872,159 valuation.

Chino council

The Chino City Council will consider adoption of the 1976-77 fiscal budget following a public hearing at tonight's meeting.

The $8 million budget prepared by City Manager Bob Fast, has already received glowing praise from councilmen. Approval of the fiscal plan is expected to be handled routinely at the 7:30 p.m. meeting in the Community Building.

Spotlight on area crime

Pizza Hut held up by two armed men

Two men, each armed with nickel-plated revolvers, robbed the Pizza Hut at 320 E. Foothill in POMONA late Monday morning, police reported.

Manager Robert A. Steadman, 32, said the pair entered his office, pulled the weapons and ordered him to lie on the floor. After taking money they forced him inside the walk-in cooler and told him to remain there until they had gone, he said.

Steadman described the robbers as white. One was about 23 years old, 5 feet 8 weighing 140 pounds. He had dark brown hair and wore a light-colored short-sleeved shirt and blue jeans.

Sheriff's deputies captured an UPLAND man and three juveniles after they fled in a stolen truck with $2,349 worth of power tools and office equipment taken from an ETIWANDA business firm.

Kenneth E. Larson of 1085 Loma Place, Upland, and the three youths were booked in connection with the burglary at San Diego Prestressed Co., 12167 Arrow Highway, Sunday.

Deputies said they spotted the three suspects near the plant after the burglary. They allegedly had taken a company truck valued at $1,600, used to transport the stolen property.

The suspects were forced to abandon the truck after it became disabled, however. They fled on foot and were soon captured, deputies reported. The truck and all the stolen tools were recovered.

A 47-year-old Ontario man was booked in the West End Jail this morning after he allegedly fired several shots at a Chino woman near Walnut Street and Bon View Avenue in ONTARIO, Sunday night.

Jack Adolph Wilson of 7709 Walnut Ave., was arrested by West End sheriff's deputies and Chino police in a horse barn at the rear of his home, minutes after Kathleen Marie Robinson, 25, of 12534 Magnolia Ave., Chino, reported being shot at.

Miss Robinson was not injured in the incident, deputies said.

Deputies said that Wilson was hiding in the barn, but had no weapon at the time of his arrest. He is being held in jail for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Two Ontario men were undid by the items they stole in the MT. BALDY area, West End Sheriff's deputies reported today.

The items were three beehives full of bees.

The pair, Richard Rice, 20, of 1855 Riverside Drive and Steven Warner Leuck, 21, of 1178 Nocta St., were booked by deputies Sunday after allegedly taking the beehives valued at $225 from a bee keeper south of the ranger station on Mt. Baldy Road.

Deputies said the men picked up the beehives in the Mt. Baldy area. Shortly after, Rice, driving a pickup truck, was attacked by the bees. His truck turned over on the road and the beehives spilled onto the highway.

Further investigation led to the capture of the thieves, said deputies. Owner of the hives was Arthur Haynes of Garden Grove.

Busing failure of Riverside

If someone a few years ago had come up with a scheme that would have increased racial discord in the nation, caused disruptions in the schools and fomented violence in the streets, he would have been branded a menace to society.

Well, they did come up with such a scheme. They called it busing. The tragedy of the situation is that where busing has worked, it has worked well, at least in its logistical aspects. Where it has not worked, as in Boston, it has been disastrous.

Almost entirely forgotten in the controversy, however, is the question of whether school busing to achieve desegregation, workable or not, accepted by a community or not, actually results in any academic or other benefits for minority children.

Riverside is about as far away from Boston as it is possible to get, geographically or by any other measure. A 10-year-long study of the impact of voluntary school desegregation in that city of 150,000 reveals that not only has busing failed to improve the self-esteem of minority children but that they "did not gain in achievement, either absolutely or relative to national norms."

The study was conducted by psychologists Dr. Norman Miller of the University of Southern California and Dr. Harold B. Gerard of UCLA, who report in Psychology Today magazine that when they undertook their study they were true believers.

"We expected to document the successes of the whole program: busing to achieve ethnic balance in school, the rising competence and ambition of minority children and their subsequent academic rise to equality with whites. We have been profoundly disappointed."

Indeed, they discovered that not only did minority grades not improve, they went down after desegregation, and even after several years there appeared to be no change in minority achievement motivation. Ironically, though, white children from families in the bottom five per cent of the socioeconomic ladder did show gains in self-esteem, which seems to be about the only positive accomplishment of Riverside's experiment with busing.

"We cannot expect busing programs to lead straight to better minority education," the author authors conclude. "It was quixotic, if not arrogant, to have thought at the outset that sitting next to white classmates would cause Mexican-American and black students to take on good, white middle-class values and enter the mainstream of American society.

"It just did not happen. We found, instead, that the children in each ethnic group became more and more cliquish over the years and less accepting of those outside their own group."

If it could be shown that busing achieves worthwhile goals for which it is designed, it might be worth all the turmoil. But when it results in precisely the opposite effect and leaves minority children worse off than they were before, even in a city like Riverside which undertook its program voluntarily, how much longer can this scheme be defended?

Drug ads don't make addicts

Does exposure to proprietary drug advertising on television — headache nostrums, cold cures, etc. — encourage youths to experiment with illegal drugs?

The charge received widespread publicity a few years ago, as well as legislative concern in the form of Senate hearings. About that time, NBC undertook a study of the subject.

Over a three-year period, information was obtained five different times from the same lower and middle-income teenage boys, white and black, in two medium-sized cities. Additional information was obtained from their parents, friends and schools. The sample of boys was mostly 13 to 15 years of age when the study began — the years in which experimentation with drugs begins — and 16 to 18 when the last data were collected.

The results of the study have been reported in The Public Opinion Quarterly, published by Columbia University Press, and its overall conclusion is that exposure to TV drug advertising "neither directly nor indirectly leads young people to use illicit drugs."

In fact, the key finding of the study is that the greater the exposure to TV drug advertising, the less the use of illicit drugs. Independent research by others shows the same result, says NBC.

In addition to examining the direct connection between TV drug advertising and illicit drug use, the possibility that such advertising fosters an attitude of "readiness" to take drugs and an acceptance of "pill popping" and thus indirectly leads to illicit drugs was also investigated.

While there was a slight tendency for those boys who saw more TV drug advertising to use more proprietary drugs, the suspected second link in the chain was found not to exist. That is, the use of proprietary drugs does not lead to illicit drugs.

Cozy lives of congressmen

Dear Editor:

The letter from Commander Holmgard, "Jim Lloyd works hard," doesn't address the features of the Hays mess which have so aroused the public's ire. We aren't worried about Wayne Hays' sex life- that's incidental to his ability to serve in Congress. What outrages me is the revelation that Hays, Lloyd and all of the other Washington politicians spend millions of dollars of our tax money to make their lives as Congressmen as cozy as possible.

The Congressional pay raise approved last year is a prime example of how our congressmen are duping the American public, picking our pockets to improve their lot. What is worse, there was hardly a whisper of this raise which has been in effect for nearly a year, until the Hays scandal prompted a full scale inquiry by the press into other congressional abuses of our tax dollars. It seems that Congress quietly passed this bill last July by including it as a "rider" to an insignificant Post Office bill. Jim Lloyd voted to raise his pay while the rest of the country was making personal sacrifices to cope with the recession.

I don't care if Jim Lloyd has one hundred mistresses, so long as they aren't being supported by my tax dollars. But I do care when Lloyd casts the deciding vote to raise his pay (the issued passed by one vote) while the rest of us are scraping to make ends meet.

The Bolles story—Part II

WASHINGTON — The loudest cries of outrage over the brutal murder of Don Bolles, investigative reporter for the Arizona Republic, have come from members of the political establishment.

Since his death last month, the state legislature has whittled away at the wrongs he had exposed, including the Funk-Emprise dog racing monopoly, and has come up with $100,000 for the murder investigation.

Yet during all the years Bolles was warning how hoodlums were robbing the taxpayers, Arizona officials squirmed a little but did nothing. Bolles would have condemned the hypocrisy.

We sent one our own investigative reporters, Larry Kraftowitz, to Phoenix to follow up the stories that Bolles never finished. Kraftowitz learned that Bolles had been in secret contact with a Phoenix businessman, named Fred Porter Jr., who was battling the Funk-Emprise dog racing interests.

In an earlier column, we reported that the two had worked together closely right up to the day Bolles was blown up in his car. Among the last words he gasped were: "Mafia . . . Emprise . . . They finally got me."

The frightened Porter sought protection from the Phoenix police who kept him under guard for three days. The same day the guard was withdrawn, Porter was slugged over the head twice with a pipe and left for dead on the ground.

Retracing Bolles' steps, Kraftowitz also learned that the Arizona Republic reporter was working on another story. Six days before he climbed into his bomb-rigged car, Bolles contacted Phillip E. Jones, who had helped to prepare a legislative staff report on land fraud.

We can now publish the story that Bolles probably would have uncovered if he had lived. We have learned that the land fraud report was mysteriously torn up. The research division, which drafted the report, was also disbanded as part of a staff reorganization. Several of the staff members were fired.

Some powerful legislators apparently were unhappy over their investigative zeal. The suppressed report, according to sources who saw it before it was destroyed, accused certain regulatory agencies of failing to cooperate with land fraud investigations. The report also hinted that high state officials were aware of the land frauds but were treating them with massive indifference.

Two watered-down reports eventually were published. But the staff members who worked on them were harassed. When portions of the second report leaked to the press, the staff man who wrote it, Leone Beene, was chewed out by his supervisor, Harry Gutterrman. At the time, Gutterman reported to the legislative leadership.

Tersely, Gutterman warned Beene never to make a move without first consulting him. Beene continued to meet secretly with police investigators, nevertheless, warning that he'd be fired if caught.

Footnote: Beene confirmed he had drafted the reports on land fraud but refused to discuss his reprimand. Gutterman had no comment.

CREEPING CORRUPTION: The corporations that do business in Washington seldom resort to anything so gross as bribing public officials. Rather, the corporate pleaders engage in creeping corruption so gentle that the officials often don't recognize that they have been corrupted.

By a series of small favors, the influence artists seek to instill in the officials a feeling of personal obligation. The favors range from theater tickets and imported liquors to French perfumes and free transportation. It is the accumulation, rather than any single gift, that gradually obligates the courted officials.

Throughout the process, the officials often persuade themselves that there is no connection between the favors they receive and the decisions they make. But they wind up losing their sense of dedication to the public and feel a greater loyalty to their new corporate friends.

Aerojet-General, for example, wanted to sell about $2 million worth of rocket equipment to a Japanese firm. This required an export license from the State Dept., which consulted the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for advice on the Aerojet contract.

One of NASA's deputy assistant administrators, Steve Doyle, played an important role in providing the State Dept. with the answers about Aerojet. Suddenly, the corporation sought out and befriended this obscure official.

Doyle was wined and dined by Aerojet executives. One executive, Tony Piantes, took Doyle and his wife to dinner and the theater. Aerojet also offered Doyle some scarce Washington Redskin football tickets and invited him to a corporate Christmas party.

Footnote: Doyle acknowledged that he had been a luncheon and dinner guest of Aerojet. He was invited to the football game, he said, but did not attend. Doyle conceded that he had "participated" in reviewing cases involving Aerojet for the State Dept. but both Doyle and Piantes strongly denied any wrongful intent.

Our declaration of dependence

In our nation's Declaration of Independence there is a significant declaration of "dependence," also. And one without the other won't work. Our text for today is taken from the next to last sentence in our nation's Declaration of Independence.

Understand, I am no preacher. The pulpit is a responsibility infinitely higher than any to which I would aspire. But I am an historian and inevitably our professions overlap.

Our nation's recent Fourth of July celebrations have tended to focus on the word "freedom." Yet even as our nation's founders offered their lives and fortunes to win for our fledgling nation "freedom" from British rule, in that same eloquent document they sought the guidance and blessing of the Almighty.

They appealed "to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our institutions." "Rectitude" — God's standard of integrity and honesty.

Our founders proclaimed themselves "free" to do whatever they might want? Hardly. They declared themselves free to do "what they'd ought." They prayed, "THY KINGDOM come, THY WILL be done on earth . . ."

They bound themselves to God's will, and that is when, in an instant as historical time is measured, our 6 percent of this planet's population began to accumulate more than half of all the world's good things — collecting on God's written promise that "believing" in certain things and "behaving ourselves" all else would be added.

And so it was. It was only in recent generations that Americans, mouthing platitudes about "freedom," have obscured the very meaning of America and now all over the bleak, black and bloody front page it is apparent that self-government without self-discipline won't work.

You can say that another way: Capitalism without God is no better than communism. The Third Reich was a classic example of capitalism without God. The land which had produced Bach, Beethoven and Brahms ended up producing Auschwitz, Dachau and Buchenwald.

Self-government without self-discipline won't work. Today once-free Americans have to be searched before they can board an airliner — not because there is a dictator in Washington, but because a handful of irresponsible ingrates are running around loose.

Because some who are free don't deserve to be none of us can be. They are taking away our Fourth of July fireworks and threaten to take away our guns because some misuse theirs. Because some sickies hide razors in apples, whole states have had to outlaw Halloween.

Again, not because there is tyranny in government, but because there is anarchy in the unbuttoned brains of a handful.

And it's down the road of thumbing our noses at rightness and wrongness that whole nations go from regulation to regimentation to tyranny.

Much more important than our nation's Declaration of Independence from foreign domination is our nation's declaration of dependence on Divine providence and sacred honor.

Ignore the "guidance system" that was built into our republic and we are, like any unguided missile, inevitably destined to self-destruct.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

In a country where accentuating the minimal has become one of the more productive methods for winning friends and influencing people, it is not at all surprising that some automobile manufacturers are making a big thing out of the fact that cigarette lighters are now standard equipment on their cars. This in spite of the Surgeon General's warning that cigarette smoking can be a health hazard.

Shakespeare called such practices "Much Ado About Nothing," but to hear the auto manufacturers tell it, it's the greatest automotive achievement since whip sockets were removed from automobile dashboards. Which, so far as I am concerned, is just further proof that today's advertising experts are not only psychotic, neurotic and erotic but also about 90 percent tommyrotic.

Speed law being defied

By EARL G. WATERS

Enacted in haste as a method of saving energy, the 55 mile speed limit is being perpetuated on the claim slower speeds are reducing death and injury on the highways.

That the restrictive law has saved fuel or lives can be debated although government, reveling in the increased revenues from fines, and the Highway Patrol, glorying in an excuse to justify more troops and heretofore unacceptable enforcement methods, advance statistics to prove their case. What is not debatable is that is is an unpopular law, and as such is widely defied by the public.

The whole idea of reducing speed was a fallacy. If the need to conserve energy was real, then high-powered cars should have been ruled off the road. The public wouldn't have held still for that but they did go along with what they thought was a temporary measure in the spirit of cooperating with the supposed energy crises. That need seems to have gone.

As for safety, if 55 MPH is safer than 70, than 45 is even safer and 35 is safer than that. Traffic fatalities on city streets, where speeds are limited to 35, seem to refute that logic.

The speed law ignores the fact California highways were designed to support traffic at speeds of 75 and higher. It also ignores the differences for safe speed caused by congestion, inclement weather and darkness, to say nothing of the type and condition of vehicles.

The state was blackmailed into passing the law. At the time Senate Transportation chairman, Senator Larry Walsh, resentful of federal officials dictating this state's laws, openly admitted sponsoring the reduced speed law for no other reason than avoiding the loss of federal highway funds. Since Gov. Jerry Brown has all but halted highway construction in his effort to compel "lowered expectations" by forcing people to mass transit which doesn't exist, the threat of losing federal highway money becomes an idle one.

Far more important than either the energy or safety issue is what the 55 MPH law is breeding in law enforcement. Not only is it diverting huge funds and resources to the apprehension of one of the most minor law violations conceivable in the face of police inability to cope with violent crime, it is also creating a tolerance for police methods which in the past have been deemed reprehensible.

Thus the CHP is now spying in the sky, demanding electronic spying devices, and complaining about not having unmarked cars to further their cloak and dagger police operations. All to catch some guy whose only offense is that he is driving at a speed which, until the energy crunch, was determined to be both legal and safe.

It is a galling irony that near Gestapo methods should be sanctioned to catch citizens whose only crime is a speed violation when neither the public nor the courts will permit the use of spying devices upon organized crime and violent criminals.

In their suggestion that the CHP should be allowed radar and unmarked cars it is clear that there is a frightening lack of understanding as to the proper role of peace officers. As the name implies their mission is to maintain the peace. Only by being most visible can they best do the job of preventing law violations. That is why police wear uniforms and drive well marked cars.

Of course, if the idea is to put everyone in jail, then do away with not only the marked cars but the uniforms as well. Put everybody to spying on everyone else and the country can really become a police state.

If such ideas are repugnant in the efforts to control violent crime, why are they acceptable when proposed to enforce an unpopular minor infraction? Sir Robert Peele, who founded the modern British police system, said any law which does not have public support is a bad law. Prohibition proved just how bad a law can be.

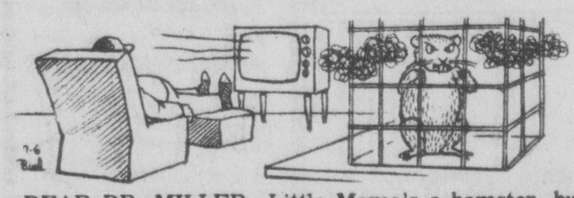
Dr. Miller

Better adhere to pet's sked



DEAR DR. MILLER: Little Mama's a hamster, but she never has been a mama because she's always alone. I'm disappointed, but that's the way it is. She's another disappointment. She sleeps all day and wants to play at night. This is bad because I want to watch television. How can I rearrange her sleeping schedule so I can play with her during the daytime? — C. C.

DEAR C. C.: It's more logical for you to do the schedule-switching, since Little Mama is a nocturnal animal. It's natural for her to be sleepy in the day and then sociable at night. To be the best of playtime pals, you'll either have to give up some of your TV or, and this may prove difficult or impossible, find programs she's willing to watch with you.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When I first noticed our Cocker had this bad odor, I thought it might be his ears and I checked, but it wasn't. It sort of seems to be coming from his mouth and yet his breath isn't really that bad. Besides, all his teeth are clean and white and his gums look perfectly natural. No redness or anything. The strangest thing is, the odor os more on one side of his head than the other, but no swellings and Dandy feels just fine. Where could this strong, sickish odor be coming from, anyway? — S. N.

DEAR S.N.: Dandy's doctor will undoubtedly detecth the source of that odor in a hurry. I can't from here. I can say, though, from your description, that one possible cause could be an ulcerative process involving the lower lip area along the side of the jaw. The skin in this area, particularly in a heavily-coated dog, may be kept constantly moist by an overflow of saliva. As the area becomes increasingly irritated, it tends to become odoriferous, inflamed, and eventually ulcerated.

In the very early stages of this "stinking saliva" syndrome, simply wiping the affected lower lip area twice daily with cotton and a safe, mild astringent solution to remove accumulations and allow the area to dry may be all that's necessary. But the condition would tend to recur, so recheck frequently for malodor or signs of that lower lip irritation.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Someone said that crow is on the rare and endangered bird List? They've got to be kidding!? — D. F.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're prone to take foolish risks today, both materially and where work or career is concerned. Leave your checkbook at home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Guard against placing too much stock today in someone you're not sure is really deserving. You could be backing a loser!

GEMINI (May 21-July 20) Make realistic evaluations today. Don't try to kid yourself or others. You still can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It would be folly to be neglectful today and put major projects off till the last minute. As time grows short, so do your talents.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) It's nice to be generous, but it's just plain foolish to be too open-handed and so extravagant that you indulge all your whims today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today, you may feel you have to come on strong to impress your friends. Being boastful does not become you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Very little will be gained today if you try to defend or expound upon issues you know nothing about. Silence can truly be golden for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Think twice today before you lend something to one who treats his possessions carelessly. Do you think he'll handle yours differently?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to misdirect your energies today in pursuit of goals that are of small purpose. Aim towards things that really matter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you're very self-reliant. Today you may try to palm off your duties at the first opportunity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Social gatherings you normally enjoy, ones with large groups of new faces, may not appeal to you today. It'll be tolerable if you don't expect too much.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Reevaluate your goals today. Something you have placed a high priority on acquiring may not be worth the price.

Opportunities may be available to you this year through established friends. However, if they feel you don't make the most of them, you may get a second chance.

Ann Landers

Schools for the non-achiever?

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest your comment, "The sooner we get back to basics in our schools the better." As one who has worked in education for 30 years, I share your concern.

The problem lies in the philosophy of education today. Instead of stressing academic achievement, the idea is to make the student "feel good about himself." A child is allowed to progress at his own rate, which means he can move ahead if he feels like it. Discipline is at the lowest ebb in the history of the public school system. Teachers must spend valuable teaching time maintaining order in the classroom.

Memorizing facts is considered old hat. Competition and rivalry are said to be damaging, because they "create pressure." Grades are "bad," because they can be hard on a child's ego. Our schools are geared to the non-achiever. The result is mediocrity.

In our day we learned how to compete and cope with the world. Now students are encouraged to "do their own thing." If they don't learn anything, the world is supposed to cope with THEM.

Teachers are no longer the focal point for education. They have been replaced by a fanatical preoccupation with programs. So, Ann, what can be done to get schools back to teaching children? May I suggest that parents attend local school board meetings and demand that their tax dollars be spent to educate their children? Thanks for the forum. — From The Athens Of The Midwest — Madison, Wis.

Dear Athens: Several teachers and principals wrote to express a similar point of view, but you said it best. Thanks to all who wrote. I couldn't agree more. (Are you listening, parents?)

Dear Ann Landers: Please answer in the paper so our whole family can see it. We are split right down the middle on this one and you are going to settle the argument.

Sis will be married sometime in August. My folks are going to give her a beautiful wedding. It will cost a lot of money. We want everything to be perfect. The problem is my mother's brother and his wife.

This uncle has a very foul mouth. He tries to get personal with every woman he talks to, family or not. He also has a serious drinking problem. My aunt is under psychiatric care and there are times when she doesn't make a whole lot of sense. Between the two of them you can never be sure of what will happen next.

Some of us think they should not be invited to the wedding. Others say we MUST invite them or they will be mad at us for the rest of their lives. Please say yes or no. Thank you. — The Tribe

Dear Tribe: I'm saying yes — and with your kind permission I'd like to add a few more worlds.

To exclude your uncle and aunt would be inexcusable. Invite them — but have a "rescue squad" on the alert. At the first sign of unacceptable behavior, four individuals should quietly usher the two of them out and they should be driven home.

Hays case stirs imagination

This thing with Congressman Hays, who allegedly hired a secretary who couldn't type or answer the phone, has really opened up a can of worms.

Some men are so devious. One guy told his wife he hired a secretary who was handicapped. It turned out she was married.

A group of us were working on an embroidered sampler the other afternoon and were talking about our husbands' secretaries.

"Come to think of it," said Jan, "John's secretary doesn't type, take dictation, answer the phone or file."

"Why not?" we asked.

"Don't be ridiculous!" she said. "She doesn't speak English. She's French."

"That sounds reasonable. A man needs to expand his mind," we nodded.

"Joe's secretary is bright enough," said Marci. "In fact I helped him select her."

"That's smart," we said.

"Only one thing bothers me. On her application under 'sex' she wrote in 'yes.'"

"A man needs a secretary with a good sense of humor," we nodded.

"Ken's secretary is a real stitch," said Margaret, "I don't have to worry about her. She really keeps Ken loose all the time."

"Like how?"

"Like they assigned her to the secretary pool and she reported wearing a bathing suit."

"A man needs someone around who can relieve tensions once in a while," we nodded.

"Well, I trust my husband implicity," said Judy, dialing her husband's office number. Speaking into the phone she said, "Hello, darling. Miss you. Come home early. I'm at Erma's and we just had the most stimulating discussion. Why don't you call me at home at three?"

"You got straight through to your husband without going through a secretary?" we asked.

"Oh she doesn't answer the phone," said Judy. "I was recording my message on tape."

"Maybe they're at lunch," we suggested.

"She doesn't come in that early," said Judy.

We all worked in silence on our sampler which read, "NO MAN STANDS SO TALL AS WHEN HE STOOPS TO HIRE A HOMELY SECRETARY."

Dr. Lamb

Low blood sugar controversy

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 59 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall with a large frame and weigh 165 pounds. Recently I had a thorough physical examination and tests. A five hour glucose tolerance test showed that I am hypoglycemic and blood tests showed that my cholesterol is elevated to 312 milligrams.

Being somewhat overweight I have been advised to lose weight and keep it off. I understand that I am to eat high protein foods to control the hypoglycemia and low cholesterol foods to bring down the cholesterol. My problem is that I do not know what to eat, when to eat, how much to eat and still lose weight too. Can you help me?

DEAR READER — My first problem would be in agreeing with the diagnosis of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar). I do not think such a diagnosis is valid at all unless the blood test shows a low level at the same time the person is having typical symptoms. Too often a patient has a test like you had and one or more readings are low. Despite the fact the patient doesn't have one symptom that could be caused by low blood sugar he gets the diagnosis. The truth is that lots of normal people in tip-top health have intermittent low blood glucose readings. One of the more recent reports of this was in the Journal of the American Medical Assn. of a study done at Fitzsimmons Army Hospital. Healthy people had levels below 40 milligrams and no symptoms. Unless you had symptoms with your low reading I think your diagnosis is incorrect.

Assuming that you did have symptoms and that your diagnosis is correct then you will have to construct a diet based on lean meats, lean fish, lean poultry. Cut all the fat away. Prepare by broiling, boiling (poaching) or roasting. Lean fish would include sole, cod, flounder, turbot. Young chicken and young turkey is lower in fat than larger birds. Remove the skin to eliminate fat and use only the white meat for the least fat.

For the rest of your diet concentrate on leafy vegetables that you would get in a salad and do not use fatty salad dressings. Use some of the dietetic low calorie dressings. You can use cabbage, lettuce, broccoli and bulky vegetables of this type and raw vegetables such as carrots.

You need some cereal and I would suggest a bowl of Bran Buds or All Bran each day to maintain some bulk in your diet. You can reverse the order of your meals each day if you really have had symptoms of hypoglycemia. By that I mean have the meat and vegetables in the morning and at lunch. Eat the cereal at night before going to bed. Be sure to include at least seven ounces of meat, fish or poultry in your diet each day. You could eat a whole pound of lean round steak (raw weight) and it would only contain 600 calories.

Now you may not need to limit your carbohydrates as much as I have indicated if you have no symptoms of hypoglycemia. In that case you could use a normal reducing diet. I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar: Hypoglycemia, to give you more information. Others who want information on this subject can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I suspect that if you can eliminate your weight problem your high cholesterol will take care of itself. You should also start a daily exercise program. Start with a walking routine and increase your daily walking activity.

Jacoby's bridge

Automatic finesse backfires

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Remember the mountain climber who wanted to climb a mountain because it was there. Some bridge players like to take finesses because they are there. Most of the time they are playing correctly, but there are a few times when they should shun a finesse like the plague.

South was one of those automatic finessers. He couldn't wait to play the jack of spades from dummy at trick one. East produced the queen and our hero won with the king and plunked the queen of diamonds on the table.

That finesse lost to East's king and a second spade was led. After this start there was no way for South to score nine tricks.

It was incorrect for South to play the spade jack at trick one. Had he played small and then taken the diamond finesse East would not have been able to clear the spades for his partner and South would have been sure of 10 tricks.

Also, after losing the spade finesse at trick one South could have recovered by leading a club at trick two. If West held back his ace South could go after diamonds; if West took the trick one spade duck would save South's goose from the cooking pot.

He sentenced her to stand for three days outside the city hall with a sing that read: "I've been convicted of prostitution." Only later was he informed that she handed out business cards during her sentence and subsequently expanded her client list ten-fold.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q "In what part of the human body are the blood vessels most concentrated?"

A. In the feet. And the sweat glands are more concentrated there than elsewhere, too.

Q. "Where did the Ohio city of Akron get its name?"

A. Comes from the Greek word "summit." Akron was built on the high divide between two rivers.

Q. Is it possible for a brown bear and a polar bear to mate?"

A. Possible, yes. It happened in the Washington Zoo. But there's no record of such ever occurring in the great outdoors.

DOGS

Among the more common mistakes made by city families who buy a little acreage in the outer suburbs is the way they deal with their dogs. Now that they're in the country, they tend to believe, they can let their pups run loose. Too bad. Owners of cattle and sheep and goats know better, and so do chicken raisers. Their mutually respected unwritten rule lets them shoot unattended dogs that come onto their properties. Only the green newcomers object to that bit.

It was the bridegroom, not the bride, who wore white at the wedding in 1776. Knee pants of white velvet. White brocade vest. White wig. White stockings. White shoes. The bride in those days wore light blue which was supposed to signify first love. Chet Switell told me that, too.

Foreign journalists can't find 'typical' American

GARRETSON, S.D. (AP) — They think our bread is like putty. They can't seem to find the "typical" American. But they know that a truck with a CB antenna is a "front door to a high-speed convoy."

After 10 days of a four-week tour of the United States, a group of foreign journalists has developed some strong first impressions of America and its people on their Bicentennial.

The journalists are trying to reconcile the image of Americans they had formed at home with what they have encountered here.

On her way to a state park where the group of 30 families camped recently, Ilona Thies of Spain's Europa Press said she "passed a village of 241 population which seemed so rich.

"There were silos and huge farms and big cars. There was more money in this small town than all over Spain."

"I've been pleasantly surprised to find the average American is just an average person who is willing to listen and not ram down your throat how great his country is," said Liz Brook, a photographer for a New Zealand news service.

Like all tourists on a tight schedule, the journalists believe they are missing some essential parts of the America they read about.

"I want to visit the black communities," said Mulumba Kinkiey, Paris, a correspondent for a Zaire newspaper and secretary general of the French paper Black Hebdo.

"I enjoy the visits to the parks, but there is another picture of the United States we don't see. I want to visit many towns."

The tour was sponsored by the Wally Byam Foundation, Discover America and the Society of American Travel Writers. The group is accompanied by a staff member of the U.S. Information Agency.

On the Washington-to-Seattle tour, the visitors are driving donated large American cars hauling camper trailers.

Although warned to drive at 50-55 miles per hour while towing the trailers, the writers soon found they were holding up traffic.

"Now we know about CB," said Gottfried Aigner, a writer from the German magazine D.M. "Now if we see a big truck with an antenna, if he's running at 65, we move behind him. So we learn quickly!"

They also learned quickly that American bread is not homemade.

"It's a real problem," said Gottfried. "In Germany we have 200 kinds of bread, here maybe 20. But all the bread is like putty."

Miss Brooks also remarked on American food and on its results, saying she was "horrified" to see so many fat people, men, women and children. "What's the reason? Too many French fries, or riding lawn mowers? Everything in America is too easy."

But Z.U. Kahn, chief diplomatic reporter for Pakistan's Daily Jang, saw something not so easy — work. "When you see the people working," he said, "then you know how this nation has progressed after 200 years of work.

"The feeling of nationhood is there. They work as a nation in every sphere. After 200 years, the prosperity is quite visible. Everybody has a car, and a good home, stores and parks nearby. This is God-given prosperity."

Dead or alive, he's still Alex Monroe

MIAMI (AP) — Sixty-two-year-old Alex Monroe is alive and well in Miami only months after his daughter, aunt and sisters mourned at his funeral as they gazed on his body in an open casket.

"I'm not dead," Monroe said recently after visiting with his daughter, Mamie Higgs, and talking to police. "I just came from North Carolina."

Miami detective Richard Bohan said somebody else was in Monroe's grave. And that somebody else was named Alex Monroe, too.

Bohan also said:

—Each Alex Monroe was 62 years old, 5-feet-9 and 140 pounds.

—Each Alex Monroe lived in downtown Miami. Although their homes were just six blocks apart, Alex Monroe never met Alex Monroe.

The dead Monroe was fatally shot last April during a fight in which he had gone to a friend's defense, Bohan said. A cousin of the dead man identified him correctly at the scene and said his relatives were in Nassau. But police said they couldn't locate them.

Then the funeral home which had been designated to give the dead man a pauper's funeral at county expense tried to find the relatives. A man delivering some flowers saw a note on the funeral home bulletin board, and said, "I know his daughter." He notified Mrs. Higgs. By then, the man had been dead 18 days.

"I thought it was him," Mrs. Higgs said. "I hadn't seen him in a year. The scar was on the same place — from the temple to the cheek. He had the same small ears, the same salt-and-pepper hair."

So Mrs. Higgs, 31, took out a $500 loan to pay for her father's funeral. And Monroe's family and friends mourned.

Monroe said he returned to Miami and was walking down a street when a friend driving past slammed on her brakes and shouted, "You're dead."

He denied it. The friend called Mrs. Higgs.

Revealing reflections in diary

Autopsy on Aiken's last Senate years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate was overrun with presidential hopefuls in the several years prior to his retirement in 1974, George D. Aiken, a senator for 34 years, says in his diary.

He said the presidential hopefuls were more interested in gaining publicity and advancing their own ambitions than in attending to legislation and furthering the public interest.

"Too many candidates for promotion simply constitute a costly nuisance and impede the work of those who want to serve their state and the country well," he wrote.

Aiken, now 74, was a Republican senator from Vermont and was the senior Republican in the Senate and top-ranking minority member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee when he retired.

In his book — "Aiken: Senate Diary," published by the Stephen Greene Press — he records his impressions as he dictated them at the end of each week during his last three years in the Senate.

These were the years of the wind-up of the Vietnam war, the Watergate break-in, resignations of President Richard M. Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, the Arab oil embargo and other historic events.

The book has no startling disclosures of "inside" information, but it is a revealing account of how the Senate operates, of clashes with the White House and Aiken's assessment of many of his colleagues.

He tells of a Senate stalled by absenteeism, of Senate committees and subcommittees overloaded with staffers to promote the chairmen, of the influence of corporate and labor lobbies, and of members ducking tough issues by passing the buck to the President.

At one point he wrote: "I have never seen so many incompetent persons aspiring to high office ... Politics and legislation have become more mixed and smellier than ever ... Good legislation seems to be unimportant compared to voter appeal."

On the Watergate, he said, "The raid on the Democratic headquarters at the Watergate a few weeks ago smells to high heaven." But throughout his diary he accuses the Democrats of trying to make political hay out of Watergate and of ignoring campaign skeletons in their own closet.

When the Senate's special Watergate investigating committee finally folded, Aiken called it "a good riddance." But in the end he said it had become obvious to him that Nixon "had tried to protect the guilty parties."

Aiken was among 15 members of Congress called to the White House to be told by Nixon of his decision to resign, in advance of the announcement to the nation.

"It was an extremely sorry and emotional occasion with many tears being shed, including those of the President himself," Aiken said in describing the meeting in the Cabinet room.

"How he recovered his poise enough to speak on TV a half hour after the meeting with us was a surprise to me," Aiken wrote.

Aiken deplored the "face-saving" war in Vietnam, just as he did the Watergate break-in. But here also he finds Democrats trying to take advantage politically.

"The war in Indochina has been the vehicle upon which many normally sane members of Congress and of the Democratic party hope to ride to glory," he said in one entry in his diary.

He said some people were determined to prevent completion of U.S. withdrawal until after the election, in the belief it would help the Democratic presidential candidate.

Aiken said that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger "oozed conceit from every pore" and that "the thirst for publicity appears to be the overwhelming characteristic of Mr. Kissinger.

But after Nixon announced a Vietnam cease-fire agreement, Aiken wrote, "I now have to admit that the work done by the President and Henry Kissinger and his associates appears to be a masterpiece of diplomacy."

And still later is this entry about Kissinger: "His apparent desire to be the most important man in history may be fully justified."

When Aiken returned to Vermont after his retirement he found it "a welcome relief from the atmosphere in our nation's capitol for the last few years."

At times, he had written earlier, he got "very discouraged with our democratic form of government, but then I think, what would be better? And my mind fails to come up with the answer."

HEADS UP

Portland's John Rodgers, left, and Los Angeles' Ron Davies soar high in air to head ball during North American Soccer League game in Portland Monday. Aztecs won, 2-1.

Burt Hooton's mastery of Phils continues, 6-0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — On a night when you get shutout 6-0, manage only two hits, smell out the joint before a record crowd and a national television audience it's hard to find a silver lining. Right?

Not for Dave Cash, the irrepressible second baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, the player most experts credit with changing the attitude of the club from losing to winning.

"The Pirates lost eh," said Cash after the Phillies were beaten by the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday night. "That ought to tell you something."

Cash wasn't concerned that Dodgers pitcher Burt Hooton had humbled the Phillies for the seventh consecutive time dating to 1974. He wasn't upset that his team had played one of its poorer games on a festive evening, replete with holiday fireworks, singing of "America the Beautiful," and the Happy Birthday America theme.

"I don't see anybody panicking," Cash said. "Our record stands for itself coast-to-coast. We just have to hang in there, show up tomorrow (Tuesday). This one is history. What have we got, two games more in this series? We can still win the series."

The 26-year-old Hooton and teammates Bill Russell and Steve Garvey upstaged the Phillies. Hooton, who pitched a no-hitter against the Phillies in 1972, gave up two hits, a single in the third and a double in the eighth, both by Garry Maddox. He walked just one, pinchhitter Tim McCarver in the sixth, and McCarver was eliminated in a doubleplay.

Garvey gave the Dodgers a 1-0 lead in the first inning with his seventh homer of the season and had three singles, one driving in a ninth inning run. Russell, now 14-for-29 for a .483 average and eight RBI against the Phillies, made it 2-0 with a second inning home run, his fourth, and followed a Reggie Smith triple with an RBI single in the fourth.

Hooton, of course, was asked about this mystery he appears to hold over the Phillies, one of baseball's hardest hitting teams. He beat them late in 1974, four times last season and twice already in this bicentennial year. Does he feel as if he can just throw his glove out on the mound and beat this team?

"No, I just go out there and challenge them," said the blond Hooton, a former University of Texas pitcher. "They're challenging me. They're like Pittsburgh when it comes to hitting. You try to stay close to your pattern of pitching, hope if you make a mistake it doesn't hurt you."

Hooton, now 6-9, hadn't won a game since he last beat the Phillies 3-2 in Los Angeles June 9. He's lost four games since.

"I haven't pitched as bad as the record indicates," Hooton insisted. "The Mets beat me 2-1, San Francisco 1-0. I've thrown a few bad pitches and they hurt me. I had been thinking negative though. And I decided on the plane coming here (Philadelphia) to eliminate the negative aspects."

Hooton shrugged his shoulders when asked to explain his hold on the Phillies, a team playing .700 baseball.

"I don't know. Why don't you ask them?" he suggested.

Cash talked for "them."

"I guess he figures he can do it everytime he goes out there," said Cash, hitless in four at-bats, despite hitting the ball hard each time. "I think the big secret is his ability to stay ahead of the hitters against us.

Angels stage heavy attack

ANAHEIM (AP) — California Angels Manager Dick Williams could scarcely believe his eyes. Pitcher Gary Ross could hardly believe his good fortune.

Something different occurred at Anaheim Stadium Mondy night—an outpouring of hits and runs by the home team.

Before a Family Night gathering of 20,240, the Angels exploded for a seasonal high of 15 hits and Ross displayed his appreciation with a five-hitter as California whacked the Cleveland Indians 8-1.

"That was nice and enjoyable," grinned Williams, unaccustomed to such luxury. "These kind of nights have been so few and far between."

Gary Ross knows all too well.

Ross began the season by dropping his first five decisions, mostly due to a steady diet of non-support.

But he has endured and today his record is 6-9.

"He has worked himself right up there with Nolan Ryan and Frank Tanana in our rotation," Williams lauded. "We gave him a chance to pitch and he grabbed it. His record could easily be 10-5 if we would have given him any kind of help early in the year.

Ross has been especially effective at Anaheim Stadium recently.

In the last 36 1-3 innings at home, Ross has permitted just two earned runs.

He fanned three and walked one Monday to win his fourth straight at home, losing a shutout on a pair of singles, his lone walk and Boog Powell's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the fourth inning.

The victory was California's fifth in a row over Cleveland and also represented the Tribe's fourth successive defeat.

Bobby Bonds, emerging from a slump, slammed a double and two singles—as did rookie Dan Briggs—while Dave Chalk and Andy Etchebarren drove in three runs apiece to highlight the offensive fireworks for California.

Bonds said he wanted to start the second half with a fresh outlook.

"I know I've been going bad," he admitted, "but I haven't really been that worried. Basically, I think it's because I've consciously been trying too hard to hit home runs.

"I'm just not going to think home run in the second half. I'd much rather get my average back up. I'll shoot for .300."

Ten-game winner Pat Dobson, who entered the game looking for his eighth straight win and a 2.79 ERA, left with his sixth loss and a 3.27 ERA. Dobson was tagged for seven runs and seven hits in 2 2-3 innings.

Verhoeven promoted by Angels

ANAHEIM — La Verne College product John Verhoeven has made the big jump to the major leagues in just two seasons when he reported to the Angels Monday prior to the game against the Cleveland Indians.

Verhoeven was promoted by the Angels from their top farm club at Salt Lake City after compiling a 7-2 record with eight saves and a 2.25 earned run average in the Pacific Coast League.

The Angels are hoping Verhoeven, who signed with the Halos after being drafted in June of 1974 after leading La Verne to a third place finish in the NAIA World Series, will prove to be the stopper in the bullpen.

While Verhoeven was a starter at La Verne, he has been used as a relief pitcher in the Angels' chain. He compiled an 1-0 record with a 3.14 ERA for Quad Cities in the Class A Midwest League in 1974 and was 4-0 with an 1.60 ERA at El Paso (Class AA Texas League) last year before being promoted to Salt Lake City. He was 3-1 with a 4.50 ERA at Salt Lake.

The 23-year-old righthander will replace Andy Hassler on the Angels' staff.

Hassler, a 24-year-old lefthander, was sold to the Kansas City Royals for an amount in excess of the $20,000 waiver price Monday.

Verhoeven, a product of Valley Christian High in Artesia, played just one season (1974) at La Verne after transferring from Westmont College.

He compiled a 14-1 record at La Verne with a sparkling 1.22 earned run average to earn NAIA All-American honors.

Angels' general manager Harry Dalton decided on bringing up Verhoeven after watching him pitch for Salt Lake last Friday and made the sale to Kansas City to make room for him.

West Covina takes Legion crown

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

"I really didn't expect to win the award," West Covina catcher Mark Bridgewater said after learning that he had been named the most valuable player of the 16th annual Upland American Legion Baseball Tournament.

West Covina stopped Ontario on four hits to win the tourney championship 6-0 for the third time Monday night at Upland Memorial Park. Glenn Swires iced the title with a three run homer in the seventh inning.

Pomona, hoping to win the consolation title, was blanked on just three hits by a pair of Redlands' hurlers. Redlands took the title with a 1-0 whitewash job over Post 30.

Bridgewater, who attends Mt. San Antonio College, earned the award by knocking out eight hits in the four day tournament. He had a double and triple, threw out several runners at second, and Bridgewater caught Groh's perfect game.

"I was very surprised at the selection," noted Bridgewater after the announcement was made. "I knew that I had done very well in the tournament but we have a whole team of guys hitting the ball well.

"We've been averaging almost 14 or 15 hits a game. Any team that hits the ball that well shouldn't have any one guy picked out to receive an award. We've won the tournament with just a great team effort."

West Covina jumped off to an early 2-0 lead and behind the four hit pitching of Mark Weimann went on to take the tournament crown. Weimann, who only lasted three and two-thirds innings Sunday against La Verne, came back to pitch a strong game. He fanned nine Ontario batters while walking just two batters.

Bridgewater doubled to open the second inning and scored moments later on a bloop hit down the left-field line by Jerry Mendoza. Mendoza advanced to third on a base hit by Steve Bridgewater and came home on a base hit by Weimann.

The two runs were enough for Weimann but West Covina added a single run in the fourth to lead 3-0 before adding three more runs on Swires three run round tripper over the 348 marker in left-field. The ball was a towering drive that sailed over the fence giving West Covina a commanding 6-0 lead.

Ontario's only chance of the night to break the shutout was in the fifth inning. Tom Bessetti walked and advanced to third on a ringing double to left off the bat of John Torres. But Weimann rose to the occasion and whiffed Randy Johnson before John Mattke grounded out to the second baseman.

West Covina's Gil Hawkins noted, "We played a very good game tonight. It was a little better than the last two games we had played which were slugfests.

"We knew we had fairly decent pitching despite the two slugfest games but Mark Weimann came back to throw an excellent game.

West Covina's 12 hit attack was paced by M. Bridgewater (two-for-three), Mendoza (two-for-three) and Weiman with two hits.

Pomona Post 30 was completely stiffled by hurlers Don Smith and Tim Driver of Redlands as the Pomona outfit never got a baserunner any farther than second base. Mike Keegan's fourth inning double to left-center was wasted as the next three batters made out. Seven Post 30's batters struck out as Redlands' only allowed to fly ball outs.

Redlands' Chet Dawson's triple to open the third frame and Francis Connor's double broke a scoreless pitching duel between Pomona's Gregg Handy and Smith. It was the only run Handy allowed as he held Redlands to just two hits over the final three innings he worked.

Redlands threatened to add another tally to their 1-0 lead in the fifth frame but Post 30 third baseman Joe Chapa robbed Connor of a run producing single with a great back hand stop at third. He got to his feet and forced the Redlands' runner sliding into second to kill the uprising.

Anthony Munoz doesn't fool anybody. He's built like a football player.

And he plays like one.

"I have no doubt in my mind he'll be playing pro ball someday. He'll be outstanding in college," declared clyde Francisco, for 23 years the athletic director at Chaffey High.

The 6-foot-6, 280-pound Munoz, bound for USC this fall, will represent Chaffey as one of the 56 outstanding pre-college athletes selected from throughout Southern California to participate in the 25th Shrine All-Star Football Classic Saturday evening, July 17 at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena.

The Shrine game, from which all net proceeds help support the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children in Los Angeles, annually features such stars as Greg Horton (Rams), Lionel Aldridge (Chargers), Jeff Siemon (Vikings), George Kunz (Falcons), John Vella (Raiders) and Marv Fleming (Packers).

Size has helped make Munoz an outstanding tackle, but he also has enormous talent, according to Francisco.

"Anthony has all the tools — the physical ability and the mental temperament," Francisco said. "He's quick, he's got good lateral speed and tremendous agility for such a big person."

Chaffey utilized Munoz on the tackle-eligible play, on which he gained 45 yards for the deciding touchdown in an 8-7 win over San Marcos last season. In addition to his first-teams all-Citrus Belt League, all-CIF Southern Section 4-A and prep all-America honors, he was second-team all-CIF in baseball. He played third base, first base and pitched for Chaffey last season.

"He received tremendous publicity in Little League," Francisco said. "He's always been a super athlete and he's always been large. We've been looking at him since he was an 11-year-old in Little League.

"But he's been able to handle it and keep his head — it's never fazed him one bit. He's a great, great person with regard to attitude," he said.

Francisco said he thought Munoz would have been selected in the pro baseball free agent draft if he hadn't decided to attend USC.

Tickets for the Shrine game, Munoz' last pre-college event, are available at the Shrine Football Office, 655 West Jefferson Blvd., Los Angeles, or by calling the office at (213) 749-0166. All seats are reserved and priced at $5.25 and $2.25. Parking at the Rose Bowl is free.

Aztecs top Timbers, 2-1

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A header by Ron Davies on a George Best corner kick started Los Angeles on its way to a 2-1 victory over Portland on Monday night in North American Soccer League play.

The shot wobbled into the cage with 29:56 left in the first half.

Although Portland controlled the ball in Los Angeles' territory for more than 29 of the game's 90 miuntes and took 14 shots on the goal against four for Los Angeles, the Timbers were unable to penetrate a tight Aztec defense. Los Angeles had little trouble penetrating Portland's defense.

The Timbers botched several close-in scoring opportunities in a game that ended to boos and exploding firecrackers for many of the 19,375 fans.

Fidrych, Tanana on All-Star team

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie sensation Mark "the Bird" Fidrych and five-time 20-game winner Catfish Hunter head the American League's nine-man All-Star pitching staff, announced today by Boston Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson.

Johnson, manager of the American Leaguers for the 47th All-Star Game July 13 at Philadelphia, hopes his staff of five starters and four relievers can reverse the trend that has carried the National Leaguers to victory in 12 of the last 13 midseason games, including last year's 6-3 triumph.

Four of the nine hurlers are All-Stars for the first time, including Fidrych, the exciting nonconformist of the Detroit Tigers, whose crowd-pleasing antics include talking to the ball and getting down on his hands and knees to smooth out the pitching mound. He leads the regular AL pitchers with a 1.85 earned run average and has a 9-1 record. The other All-Star newcomers are AL strikeout leader Frank Tanana of the California Angels, Bill Travers of the Milwaukee Brewers and relief ace Dave LaRoche of the Cleveland Indians.

Completing the staff are Boston's Luis Tiant, selected for the third time, Oakland's Rollie Fingers, also for the third time, and second-timers Rich Gossage of the Chicago White Sox and Sparky Lyle of the Yankees.

The veteran of the staff is Hunter, the New York Yankees ace righthander, who has been named for the eighth time—six times while he was with the Oakland A's. Hunter has appeared in five All-Star Games. He was tagged for two of the three runs the National League scored in the ninth inning last year, when it broke a 3-3 tie and sent Hunter to his second All-Star loss. He was the loser in the 1967 game.

The regular starters include Hunter, 10-7; Tiant, 10-5; Tanana, 10-5; Travers, 9-6, and Fidrych. Tanana and Travers are the left-handed hurlers among the group.

Tiant's two appearances on the AL All-Star staff both have resulted in losses, in 1968 when he was with Cleveland and in 1974 when he was with Boston.

The relievers on the squad are lefthanders Lyle and LaRoche and righthanders Fingers and Gossage, who has doubled as a starter and reliever this season.

Lyle tops the relievers with 16 saves, while Fingers has 11 and LaRoche has 10.

Johnson said he hasn't made up his mind yet on which pitchers will get into the game, and in what order.

Borg won't enter Grand Slam tourney

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Bjorn Borg, the 20-year-old Swedish tennis player who captured this year's Wimbledon mens' singles crown, won't be playing in the first Grand Slam of Tennis tournament in Myrtle Beach.

He will be replaced by Jimmy Connors, who agreed Monday to compete in the three-day tourney that gets under way Friday.

Tourney officials said Borg aggravated a muscle strain he had at Wimbledon and would be unable to compete. He has been ordered by doctors to rest.

Designed to pit the winners of the game's most prestigious tournaments against each other, the four-man competition will bring together on the clay composition court 1975 Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe, 1975 U.S. Open winner Manuel Orantes, Masters champion Ille Nastase and Connors.

In future years, the tournament field will be made up of the previous year's Wimbledon, U.S. Open, French Open and Grand Slam winners. If any player should win more than one of the tournaments, the winner of the Italian or the Australian Open will be invited to compete. The tournament is expected to become an annual event held each January at different locations.

The three-day event offers a total purse of $150,000, with the winner claiming $75,000. Second place will be worth $40,000, third place $20,000 and fourth place $15,000.

Olympics boss looks for solution

MONTREAL (AP) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, is seeking a solution for the Taiwan question at the Montreal Games, which are only 11 days away.

The IOC and the Canadian government appeared still at odds over Taiwan though External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said officials of his department are willing to meet Killanin.

Some observers saw a turn for the better Monday when Killanin—while non-committal—did not reject a government proposal that the IOC revive a 1960 formula under which Taiwanese athletes competed in the Rome Olympics only as Taiwanese without carrying the name of the Republic of China.

The Irish peer, who came to Canada Monday, asserted, however, that Canada's action— prohibiting use of the Republic of China's name, anthem and flag—could establish a dangerous precedent for the 1980 Moscow Games and other Olympics in the future.

Meanwhile, a Peking broadcast demanded that Taiwan— under whatever name—must be eliminated from Olympic competitin because only the All-China Sports Federation can represent China in international sports contests.

The mainland-based federation "is the sole legitimate national sports organization governing sports in the entire territory of China, including Taiwan province."

MacEachen told the Commons he has rejected demands by the People's Republic of China that Canada bar entry of Taiwanese Olympic athletes.

But the minister reiterated government policy that those athletes may enter the country only as Taiwanese—not under the banner of the Republic of China as demanded by the IOC.

Prime Minister Trudeau and MacEachen called on the IOC to extend Canada the same rights accorded Italy in 1960 regarding Taiwanese.

"I will not commit myself in any way," was the comment of Killanin, and he repeated accusations earlier made in Europe that the government had violated IOC rules by denying Taiwan athletes their republican name, their anthem and their flag at the Games.

Conservative opposition members jeered the government's Taiwan statements, which were made at about the same time as Killanin arrived in Montreal on a transatlantic flight in an effort to solve the crisis that blew into the open last Thursday.

He met reporters only to make a statement and answer a few questions. While giving no details of possible talks with federal officials, he said discussions with leaders of world sports federations and national Olympic committees would take at least two or three days.

While confirming that the Taiwanese went to Rome in 1960 on the terms outlined in the Trudeau-MacEachen statements, Killanin noted the Taiwanese athletes unfurled a banner proclaiming their protest in the Olympic stadium.

Observers recalled that the 1960 formula was laid down by the IOC in the course of a fruitless attempt to work out a two-Chinas Olympic policy. That attempt was scuttled by Peking and the National Olympic Committee of the Republic of China was later recognized in an IOC vote.

Canada extended official recognition to the Peking government in diplomatic terms in 1970, withdrawing recognition from the Nationalist government on Taiwan.

MacEachen told newsmen that while Canada could not comply with Peking's demand for banning Taiwan athletes it could not accord official recognition to another group which says it represents China.

But Killanin said in Montreal and Conservative MPs contended in the Commons that the government should accept the Taiwanese as representatives of the Republic of China because it had been given an undertaking in 1969 when Montreal was awarded the Games that it would accept teams recognized by the IOC.

Killanin also differs widely from government spokesmen as to when he was made aware of the government position. The IOC chief declared Monday he knew nothing about any change until only five weeks ago, while government officials say he was made aware of it more than a year ago.

Killanin said he was extremely surprised to receive a telephone call May 28 from James Worrall, IOC member in Canada, apprising him of the government's intentions regarding the Taiwanese, who had been invited by the Olympic organizing committee.

"In April last year, I met with representatives of the department of external affairs who asked me questions regarding participation of Rhodesia and China," Killanin reported.

He gave his "personal views" that probably Rhodesia would be excluded from the Olympic Games at the next IOC session in Lauzanne. The prediction proved correct.

"I also told them that, as far as I could see, I thought there would be no change in the China situation," Killanin recalled.

Canada had guaranteed free access to the Games when Montreal made its bid against Moscow and Los Angeles in 1970 and without that guarantee the Canadian city would not have been awarded the Olympics.

"Beyond that the rules are clear. It is not the business of the government or the national Olympic committee to tell any other national Olympic committee what its flag and anthem should be. This is their business. Even we at the IOC are not involved.

"The nomenclature given the National Olympic Committees is normally approved by the IOC and in the opening ceremony the name of the committee is normally shown as the name of a country," Killanin added.

Sports briefs

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — A record $201,045 purse has been set for the Aug. 8 running of the Talladega 500 Winston Cup Grand National stock car race.

Officials at the speedway said the purse is 28.8 per cent larger than last year's total prize money — $156,070. The Talladega 500 purse boosts total awards past 0470,000 for all events at the 2.66-mile track this year.

The winner of the August race will receive $20,060 plus a portion of $9,400 in lap money. Qualifying for the race starts Aug. 5. The winner of the qualifying will receive $1,000 in addition to the first pole position at the start of the race.

In May, drivers at the Winston 500 race at Talladega split $216,235 in prize money. During that race, Buddy Baker set a record 500-mile race average speed record of 169.887 miles per hour.

OTTAWA (AP) — Rookie quarterback Joe Barnes threw an eight-yard touchdown pass to Brock Aynsley in the fourth quarter to give the Montreal Alouettes a 26-22 victory over the Ottawa Rough Riders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Monday night.

LOS ANGELES — Earl Anthony, averaging 218, held the lead after the fifth round of the Professional Bowlers Association's $60,000 Southern California Open bowling tournament.

LE CASTELLET, France — Britain's James Hunt, driving a McLaren, won the 62nd French Grand Prix, taking the checkered flag ahead of France's Patrick Depailler in a Tyrrell.

MADISON, Ind. — Bill Muncey, driving the Atlas Van Lines, finished 11 seconds ahead of Miss U.S. to win the 28th Madison Regatta and Indiana Governor's cup for unlimited hydroplanes.

SAPPORO, Japan — Takashi Murakami of Japan rallied with a closing, five-under-par 67 and won an international golf tournament by three strokes over countryman Masashi "Jumbo" Ozaki.

BOSTON (AP) — Royal Ski, owned by former Boston Bruins goalie Jerry Cheevers, won the 42nd running of the $27,300 Mayflower Stakes at Suffolk Downs Monday.

The winner, ridden by Don Meade Jr., beat out Wally Pop by three-quarters of a length and covered the six furlongs in 1:11.4. It was the final day of Suffolk's 132-day meet.

Cheevers received a Paul Revere Bowl for the horse's victory.

McKay, Bucs ready to work

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — "We'll work on the fundamentals of the game," Coach John McKay said as his gung-ho Tampa Bay Buccaneers prepared for their first workout today.

McKay, who took the helm of the National Football League expansion team after winning four national collegiate championships at Southern California, said twice-daily drills will start Wednesday.

When about 90 rookies, free agents and veterans reported Monday, there were no secret plays on the blackboard. The chalk scrawl only said, "blackboard."

McKay is literally starting with a clean slate. He's said that nobody has been assured a place on the team roster, so most veteran players showed up even though only rookies were ordered to report. The veterans are not required to report until next Tuesday.

McKay said he's excited about starting his first pro football season.

"It's going to be fun seeing young players mature into a team," McKay said, "and the fans should look at it the same way."

The coach has said the only way he would move from collegiate to pro football was with an expansion club, because of the challenge.

"Statistics show that expansion clubs win 2.7 games in their first season," he said. "Maybe I can find out in the preseason games where that point-seven comes in."

The Buccaneers will make their base in a new building next to a luxury motel. They'll train on real grass because Tampa Stadium is one of the few NFL stadiums that hasn't been converted to synthetic turf.

Meanwhile, the Bucs Monday purchased the rights to kicker Rod Garcia from the Baltimore Colts, team officials said. Garcia, 5-feet-9 and 170 pounds, played the past two years in the World Football League. He was drafted as a seventh-round choice out of Stanford in 1974 by the Oakland Raiders, who traded the draft right to Baltimore.

The Bucs also announced signing of their last remaining draft choice and two free agents, all defensive backs. Mel Washington, 5-feet-11 and 170 pounds from Colorado State, was the Bucs' 11th-round draft pick. He signed a series of one-year contracts for an undisclosed amount of money, team officials said.

Also added to the team were free agents Robin Sinclair, a rookie from Washington State, and Pete Rome, a rookie from Miami of Ohio. Both are six feet tall and weigh 190 pounds.

NFL officials have not set the maximum size for team rosters this year, but some have said they may allow the new expansion franchises, Tampa Bay and Seattle, a few more players than established teams. The team limit last year was 43 players without a taxi squad.

The first cut will come after the Bucs' July 31 opener against the Los Angeles Rams in the Los Angeles Coliseum — McKay's home turf during his coaching career at Southern California.

Taiwan supported

TAIPEI (AP) — The Olympic committees of Chile, Puerto Rico and Venezuela cabled their support for Nationalist China on the China issue at the Montreal Olympic Games, an official of the Nationalist Chinese Olympic Committee here said today.

In their separate messages, the three Latin American Olympic committees denounced the Canadian government's decision to bar the Nationalist Chinese team from competing under the name of the Republic of China or displaying the Nationalist Chinese flag.

A spokesman of the nationalist world sports body said the three cables were sent by Luis Felipe Rodriguez, president of the Venezuelan Olympic Committee, Armando Gellona, president of the Chilean Olympic Committee, and Jose Enrique Arraras, president of the Puerto Rican Olympic Committee.

He did not say when the Taiwan team will leave for Montreal. However, Shen Chiaming, president of the nationalist committee, said earlier over the weekend the 51-member delegation from Taiwan would proceed to Canada as originally planned.

Red Sox ready to 'zoom to top'

By Associated Press

In 1967, the Boston Red Sox pulled off "The Impossible Dream."

In 1976, would you believe "The Possible Dream?"

"We had a lot of hits today and that's what we need to get going," outfielder Rick Miller said Monday after the Red Sox rapped out 11 hits and trounced the Chicago White Sox 11-2 to climb into a second-place tie with the Cleveland Indians in the American League East. "Now we can zoom to the top. If the Yankees lose 10 and we win 10, we're there. That's wishful thinking maybe, but that's the way we have to think."

If the Yankees lose 10 and Boston wins 10, the Red Sox will actually be one game in front. They trail by nine—it was 11½ a little more than a week ago—since New York dropped a 2-1 squeaker to the Kansas City Royals.

Elsewhere, the Texas Rangers rallied to beat the Detroit Tigers 8-6, the California Angels whipped the Indians 8-1, the Oakland A's downed the Baltimore Orioles 4-1 and the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Minnesota Twins 3-2.

Rookie Butch Hobson and Cecil Cooper drove in three runs apiece and Luis Tiant scattered 11 hits for his 10th victory as the Red Sox won for the sixth time in their last eight games and reached the .500 mark (37-37) for the first time since April 29.

Hobson, called up from the minors last week, hit a sacrifice fly in the fifth and singled home two runs in the sixth. Cooper delivered a sacrifice fly in the third and a bases-loaded single in the eighth.

Royals 2, Yankees 1

The Royals scored both their runs with two out in the first inning on George Brett's double and singles by John Mayberry, Hal McRae and Al Cowens. Paul Splittorff posted his sixth consecutive victory with help from three relievers, including Steve Mingori, who put down a bases-loaded, one-out threat in the ninth.

The Yankees played the game under protest. In the ninth inning, Kansas City center fielder Amos Otis injured his shoulder trying to make a diving catch and was replaced by McRae, the designated hitter. Yankee Manager Billy Martin cited an American League rule specifying that any substitute other than a pitcher is only allowed five warm-up throws. Umpire Lou DiMuro, the crew chief, agreed with Martin that McRae took more than five although DiMuro tried to stop him.

Rangers 8, Tigers 6

Tom Grieve's bases-loaded single keyed a four-run seventh-inning rally that rallied the Rangers to victory after they blew an early 4-0 lead. Five Rangers hit safely in the seventh, including Gene Clines, who had four hits, and Jeff Burroughs, who cracked a pair of doubles. Grieve's two-run shot came between run-scoring singles by Mike Hargrove and Lenny Randle.

Burroughs opened the scoring with a bases-loaded double in the first inning as Texas remained 3½ games behind Kansas City in the AL West.

A's 4, Orioles 1

Phil Garner's three-run homer and 22-3 innings of scoreless relief pitching by Rollie Fingers paced Oakland's victory. The A's got all their runs in the fifth inning against Rudy May on a walk, an error, Garner's homer, a double by Bill North and a single by Bert Campaneris. Fingers struck out Terry Crowley with the bases loaded in the seventh and went on to preserve Mike Torrez' first triumph since May 31.

Brewers 3, Twins 2

Milwaukee used a pair of errors by Minnesota first baseman Rod Carew to score three unearned runs in the seventh inning and Bill Travers scattered seven hits for his ninth victory. Gorman Thomas opened the seventh with a walk and Carew mishandled Jack Heidemann's bunt. Art Kusnyer also bunted but Carew's throw to third, in plenty of time to force Thomas, was wild, allowing both runners to score. Kusnyer eventually tallied what proved to be the winning run on Robin Yount's single, a walk to Don Money and Hank Aaron's checked-swing grounder.

"It's the worst inning I've ever experienced," said Carew."

Reds 11, Expos 2

Joe Morgan drove in five runs, four on a grand slam home run, and Jack Billingham pitched an eight-hitter as Cincinnati walloped Montreal. Billingham, 6-6, walked two and struck out six in picking up his first victory in two decisions against Montreal this year.

The only runs off Billingham came on Pete Mackanin's leadoff homer in the fifth and Andre Thornton's homer leading off the seventh.

The Reds scored five runs on just one hit, Morgan's grand slam, in the sixth inning, to turn the game into a rout as they rocked five Montreal pitchers.

Braves 8, Pirates 6

Darrell Chaney capped a seven-run eighth inning with a three-run triple, helping Atlanta beat Pittsburgh.

A crowd of 48,467, drawn partly by the prospect of a giant fireworks display afterwards, saw Atlanta break a seven-game losing streak to the Pirates, who had not lost to the Braves this season. Atlanta wiped out a 6-1 Pirate lead with their rally.

"I've seen a lot of comebacks in my life," said Chaney, "but this one has to be the best. Even the Big Red Machine (Cincinnati) didn't do this sort of thing. The fans sure got their money's worth tonight."

Cubs 1, Padres 0

Steve Renko and Joe Coleman combined for a three-hitter and Chicago scored an unearned run in the sixth inning to beat San Diego. Brent Strom was the victim of poor defensive work by his San Diego teammates when the Cubs broke a scoreless tie in the sixth.

Two of the three hits allowed by Renko, 3-4, who left after seven innings, were of the infield variety. Strom, 8-8, has been the victim of shutouts in four of his last eight starts.

Giants 6, Cardinals 4

Bobby Murcer smashed a double leading off the eighth inning and eventually scored on a double play to snap a 4-4 tie and help San Francisco beat St. Louis. Murcer's hit, his third of the game, came off St. Louis right-hander Harry Rasmussen, 3-7, and helped San Francisco left-hander Gary Lavelle to his third victory against four losses.

Astros 7, Mets 3

Bob Watson's two-run homer ignited a six-run Houston fourth inning, leading the Astros over New York. Houston right-hander Joe Niekro, 4-7, scattered seven hits over the first 6 2/3 innings before retiring in favor of reliever Ken Forsch.

TV creates instant fans

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing creates instant fans faster than television exposure of a classic sports event.

The sensationally dramatic 1975 World Series turned countless lukewarm baseball fans into rabid followers of the Boston Red Sox and the Cincinnati Reds.

And television makes the Olympic Games no different. The statisticians at ABC are already predicting a combined audience—instant fans and bona fide followers—of 170 million Americans for TV coverage of the 1976 Summer Games which open in Montreal on Saturday, July 17.

As usual the superlatives are abundant. ABC promises more coverage, more announcers, more prime time programming and more hours of television from Montreal than from Munich in 1972 and Innsbruck in February.

Network sources estimate that the total production coasts for the 79 hours of television coverage (including specials) of events from Montreal will be approximately $35 million. ABC plans about 15 more hours of television from Montreal than it produced from Munich four summers ago.

Don't expect any spectacular changes in ABC's approach to Olympic coverage though. The marriage between the network and the Olympics has been a happy one punctuated mostly with rave reviews of ABC's Olympic techniques.

Pressed as to what new element the TV viewer might find in ABC's Montreal treatment, a network spokesman thought a minute and pointed to the addition of artist LeRoy Neiman as "color commentator" of sorts.

Artist Neiman has been associated with various sports events, including the 1972 Olympics in Munich, for several years. His primary task in Montreal will be to create a nine-by-12-foot mural of Montreal Olympic action which TV fans will watch unfold behind the anchor as he did in Munich. Neiman's talents might also serve to keep the viewer in touch with places which the television cameras are not allowed to visit.

But ABC's Olympic success never was based on change. More a result of steady, and informed, but flexible, looks at the competition. The network promises that those approaches will not change this year in Canada.

ABC's top announcers will provide the basic "play-by-play" type reporting and a large group of experts—the list reads like an Olympic competitors list—will provide the color comentary.

"Mobility will be the key to our coverage," promises Geoff Mason, ABC's director of planning who has already spent weeks at the Olympic site in Montreal. "The more we can move around, the more effective we can be. We want to be able to go wherever we want at anytime of day or night."

ABC will use five mobile units for coverage of track and field, swimming, diving, gymnastics, boxing, basketball and wrestling. Only two mobile units were used at the winter games in Innsbruck.

In addition to the mobile units, ABC will also deploy four Electronic Sports Gatherers, self-contained miniaturized cameras and compact power sources, which can be carried in a backpack. The ESG's will be used, too, for the extensive off-beat feature coverage that ABC will provide on the Olympic participants, both in the Olympic Village and from the City of Montreal.

Faces are bound to be familiar. Jim McKay, whose handling of the terrorist incidents at Munich in 1970 revealed his broadcast versatility, will once again anchor all the Olympic telecasts. He will coordinate the heavy schedule of weekend programming and the primetime coverage, the majority of which will be shown between 7:30 p.m. and 11 p.m., EDT, weekdays.

Each day's events will be wrapped up from 11:30 p.m. to 11:45 p.m. each night by Warner Wolf, one of the three broadcasters on ABC's Monday Night Baseball.

Television coverage will start with the opening ceremonies from 2:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday, July 17. Weekend programming will be heavy. Over the weekend of July 24 and 25, for instance, ABC will originate 15 hours of coverage. The network promises at least one live prime-time event each night.

Although the Olympics will close officially on Aug. 1 with five hours of coverage, the network will review the Games via a two-hour special from 9 to 11 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 3. Monday Night Baseball will resume after a month's vacation on Monday, Aug. 2.

As many as 15 former athletes, many of them Olympic champions, will provide the color commentary. Bill Russell, a member of the 1956 Olympic gold medal team and coach of the NBA's Seattle SuperSonics, will do basketball. Mark Spitz, who won seven gold medals for swimming in 1972, will cover swimming events. Medal-winning Olympian Bob Seagren, in 1968 and 1972, will cover track and field events.

NEARLY READY — While Canadian workers put finishing touches to a board for infield of Olympic stadium, relay runners, one of them carrying the Olympic torch, arrive during a dress rehearsal. Runners carried torch over four miles through downtown Montreal.

U.S. team shoots for pentathlon medal

NEW YORK (AP) — The modern pentathlon has long been a European-dominated event and the 1976 Olympics shouldn't be any different, although the United States squad could break the medal monopoly.

The sport, considered a minor one here, consists of five events in which athletes compete over a five-day period—swimming, fencing, running, shooting and riding.

The first event, considered the most challenging, is horsemanship. It takes place on a 1,000-meter course and includes an assortment of jumps and obstacles. The final event is a 2½ mile cross country run.

In the 1975 World Championships in Mexico City, the Americans finished a surprising second behind Hungary although Russia's Pavel Lednev took his third straight individual title.

Lednev is the favorite for the gold medal at Montreal but the competition should be very close for the remaining medals.

The American squad, composed entirely of Armed Forces personnel, will be different from that at Mexico City but has a good chance at preventing a European medal sweep.

Capt. Robert Nieman of Hinsdale, Ill., the 1976 American champion, will lead the U.S. squad. Spec. 4 Mike Burley of Berea, Ohio, and 1972 Olympian Sgt. John Fitzgerald of Skokie, Ill., national champion in 1973 and 1974, round out the team.

The only practice area for the pentathlon in the U.S. is at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

McRae still a scrapper

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Look at the scrappy kid who used to get chased out of the fruit orchards.

He's still scrappy, only now they call it competitive. And he has become one of the best hitters in the American League.

Designated hitter-left fielder Hal McRae has been batting in the .340 neighborhood all season as he and the Kansas City Royals mount the most serious charge toward a championship in this town's 21 years of major league baseball.

"I think we've got our best team this year," McRae said. "And I feel like I could have my best year ever."

From the time he was in the ninth grade in Avon Park, Fla., and playing sandlot ball with grownups to the present, Harold Abraham McRae has had to fight for a place on the team.

He came to the Royals in 1973 in a trade with Cincinnati and was not very consistent. He struggled along in the .180-.190 range for much of the season, constantly experimenting at the plate but always maintaining an aggressive all-out style and occasionally flashing signs of great promise.

He finished the year with a .234 average. The next year, with hard work and the patient tutelage of hitting instructor Charley Lau, he bloomed to .310. Last season he maintained the pace and finished at .306 to become the first Royals' player ever to record successive .300 seasons.

"Hal McRae has made himself into a great hitter," recently praised California fastball artist Nolan Ryan.

"He's about the best hitter I've seen in this league," said former Naional Leaguer Dave Roberts of Detroit. "I can't find a weakness on the guy."

It's ironic that Texas should be posing the biggest challenge to McRae and the Royals this season. Two of the darkest episodes of his career were connected with the Rangers.

In a 1973 game at Texas McRae, for the first he could remember, was yanked out for a pinch hitter.

"I walked around by myself all night," he recalls. "It was the lowest point I had ever reached. Always before I had pinch hit for people. I don't know what I would have done if I hadn't had a wife and two kids. I think I might never have played another game."

The next spring at Kansas City Texas pitcher Jim Bibby's fastball got away from him and struck McRae on the head. He was rushed to a hospital with a screaming headache and other signs of possible injury. The next day he was back in uniform but understandably nervous.

"Charley (Lau) knew what I was going through," he says. "He insisted that I play that night and told me to go to the plate and, no matter what, to stand as still as could be on the first pitch. He told me I'd be all right if I could stay motionless on the first pitch. I did, and I went 4-for-4 that night and it's never bothered me since."

It seems like McRae has had to fight and battle all his life. That's why he feels a special relationship with the fans in general admission.

"Avon Park, where I grew up, was a peaceful little southern town where everybody was poor. You didn't always feel poor cause your neighbor didn't have any more than you did.

"The kids played hard and tough, but we didn't have any gangs or anything like that. About the only thing we ever did was steal fruit to eat out of the orchards. And when we got caught they never did anything but tell our mothers.

"But we never had much money. And I know that when a working guy who doesn't make much money spends $20 or $30 to bring his family to the ball game it can be hard on him. I know what it's like to have to scruff around. I've been there. And I appreciate him coming, so I figure that if I go all-out and help make him feel like he got his money's worth...well, I'm satisfied."

Cindy Nelson fighting to remain top skier

NEW YORK (AP) — Cindy Nelson, America's top woman skier, is feeling the pressure from an 18-year-old youngster named Abbi Fisher who is threatening the limelight—and could help make the U.S. women's team one of the strongest in the world next year.

"I expect a lot from Abbi Fisher," said the 20-year-old Miss Nelson during a short break from schooling and dryland training in France. "She has the talent and everything it takes. She's my immediate ... well, the person most immediately at my side, pushing me."

Cindy wound up ranked eighth in the women's 1976 over-all World Cup standings, the same position she occupied the year before. But she is fighting two of the athlete's oldest nemeses: injury and age.

Miss Nelson has a bad left knee, and an operation is probably in her future. "I went to Heavenly Valley (Calif.) after Hunter Mountain (the Nations' World Series of Skiing last March) and the team doctor, another doctor and I decided not to operate.

"We looked at the knee and just decided that I would be better off with everything left in there for the time being," said Miss Nelson, who had flown to New York from France to help announce a new ski promotion.

Miss Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., will be 21 before the next World Cup season begins. Miss Fisher of South Conway, N.H., will be 19. The age difference doesn't seem too radical, until one considers that, at 25, the now-retired great, Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany, was considered the "Old Lady" of skiing. The average age on the U.S. women's team is 19.

Add to that the problem with her knee, and Cindy's competition looks even stronger.

Her problems were compared to those of the gimpy-kneed hockey star, Bobby Orr. A pained look crossed her tanned face: "Yeah, I feel sorry for him," she said.

Cindy is a downhill specialist—she won a bronze medal in the event at the Innsbruck Winter Games—with a good, fundamental ability in the slalom events. She is a fighter, a charger. During practice and just before or after a race, she is nearly unapproachable—her concentration is so intense.

"This should be a real good year for our girls. With the proper training, they could hold out," said the blonde Miss Nelson. "Last year, it was probably all the Germans. But Rosi Mittermaier is gone now and that leaves a big hole.

"I think our women's team can be the strongest in the world."

Training is a key, and one with which Miss Nelson has hinted some unhappiness. Last year, two of the team's top mentors — men's coach Hanspeter Rohr and women's coach Sylvain Dao-Lean — resigned.

"I went to school for two months in France—brushing up on my French," said Miss Nelson. "And then I trained for 10 days in Aiguilles. I worked with one of the French women's coaches who used to coach the American team, Sylvain DaoLena. I'm kind of sad that he's not coaching with us anymore. He was a very good coach.

"But he told me I could come up and stay until the end of the month. So I was over there eight days doing dry-land training, and now I'm going to Lasdeax Alps for testing camp."

Miss Nelson has not spoken with any of her teammates since the end of the season. Most of the American team has been undergoing training in Mt. Hood Meadows, Ore., and Hanover, N.H.

Miss Fisher was named to the U.S.A. Team in November, 1975 after a giant slalom victory at the Kundahar of the Andes in South America.

Although she did not crack the Top 20 in the over-all standings this past season, she was tied for 20th in the giant slalom standings.

She is evidence of the growing strength and depth of the U.S. women. Only three years ago, the Americans had just two women skiers in the top 17 in the slalom, one in the giant slalom and one in the downhill. They now have four in slalom, five in giant slalom and three in downhill. Miss Nelson is in the top seed in all three disciplines. Miss Fisher is in the top seed in downhill and giant slalom, and in the second seeed in slalom.

"In the giant slalom, Viki Fleckenstein will be good with a little more experience," said Miss Nelson, "along with Becky Dorsey, who's constantly been plagued with injuries. Jamie Kurlander is good in the downhill and giant slalom. She'll be a three-event skier along with Abbi—yes, and Viki easily will be a three-event skier.

"Lindy Cochran and Susie Patterson are both strong in slalom.

"In downhill, we don't have too much depth yet. There's me and Abbi, and Jamie Kurlander...and maybe Susie Patterson."

Two of the last three World Cup stops last season were in the United States—Copper Mountain and Aspen, Colo. At these two Rocky Mountain stops, the U.S. women had some of their best success ever in Cup competition.

At Copper, the American women had four skiers in the top 20—Cindy second, Miss Cochran sixth, Miss Fisher eighth and Miss Fleckenstein ninth. In Copper's slalom, seven U.S. women were in the top 20, again including Miss Nelson, 15th, and Miss Fisher, 18th. At Aspen, the downhill and giant slalom were held for women. In the downhill, three Americans were in th top 20, including Cindy's fourth-place tie and Abbi's 15th. Four American girls were in the top 20 in the GS, again including Cindy and Abbi.

"Our races in the U.S. last season were very successful," said Miss Nelson, "and they put on good races, as good as anyplace in Europe."

Business briefs

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines will stop flying to several Caribbean areas and Augusta, Ga., because the routes are not profitable, the firm says. No effective date was announced.

The air carrier also said Tuesday that it would apply for new routes to a number of domestic points.

"It is never an easy decision to withdraw service from any point," President Frank Borman said in a statement. "But we are determined to attain sustained profitability at Eastern, and to do this we must eliminate, losing operations, strengthen healthy markets and seek new routes to complement our existing system.

Eastern has told the Civil Aeronautics Board it will apply to fly between Savannah and Atlanta, Ga.; between Norfolk, Va., and Atlanta; between Dallas-Fort Worth and Las Vegas, Nev.; and between Columbia, S.C., and Atlanta.

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — Hilton Hotels Corp. says it had dropped plans to build a convention hotel on the site of the Boston Statler Hill-ton because of financing problems.

The hotel, which the company originally said it would close at the end of the year, will remain in operation.

The company said the project lacked investor interest.

Everything for the southpaws

ANAHEIM (AP) — The nation's southpaws ought to give Sue Alpert a hand.

Ms. Alpert, as she prefers to be known, runs a mail-order firm called The Left Handed Complement here that supplies such items as left-handed mustache cups, cameras and boomerangs to the estimated 15-20 per cent of the population that is sinistral, or left-handed.

It was a problem familiar to that minority — the aches caused by an uncomfortable desk — that led this right-handed mother of two to found her company. She inadvertanely had taken a left-hander's desk at the start of a three-hour psychology exam.

"It suddenly dawned on me," she says, "if I'm this uncomfortable in a three-hour class, how must lefties feel going through their whole lives? Then I watched my husband, who is left-handed, and saw what he had to overcome, what things annoyed him the most."

The upshot of this close-up study was Ms. Albert's company, started in her home two years ago with 15 items and now selling more than 125 products nationwide, including sinistral coffee pots, scissors (the biggest seller), can openers and potato peelers. There are also left-handed notebooks, ambidextrous ice cream scoops and, in what may be an effort to raise southpaws' consciousness, a long-playing record of a Ravel concerto described in the catalog as "an exceptionally dramatic work, played solely by the Left Hand."

Developing new products takes a lot of effort, according to Ms. Alpert, who had a hard time with manufacturers when she started.

'Hollywood's Greatest Love Stories'

He sought goddess

By Dick Kleiner

Aly Khan fell in love with Rita Hayworth almost immediately upon meeting her in 1948. Khan fell in love easily and often so it was understandable that the handsome, enormously rich prince would fall in love with Hollywood's sex goddess.

Aly Khan probably never did know who she really was, even after they were prince and wife. He had fallen in love with her screen image, as well as with her exquisite appearance. Because of his wealth, title and charm, he could have almost any woman he wanted. But he had never married a reigning queen of the screen, and so she represented a new and exciting challenge to his powers of conquest.

Her love for Khan was destined to fail from its beginning. He wanted the glamor of a big movie star. She wanted a husband who would give her security and a home.

In 1948, her marriage to Orson Welles was over. Her mother had died. And she had had a disagreement with Harry Cohn, who ran Columbia Pictures.

That spring, on the Riviera, she fell under Aly's spell.

But there were complications. First, his previous marriage was still in force. Then there was his royal status and her career. She had to pick up her final divorce decree from Welles in California and dropped in on Cohn at Columbia Studios to tell him she wasn't going to do the next film.

Cohn told her he would take her off salary which meant the loss of $248,000 a year.

The next problem was Aly's father, the aged Aga Khan.

"Get married to this paragon, my son," the Aga Khan advised. "If you marry her, it will put a stop to all these dreadful rumors in the dreadful newspapers."

Aly called in the press and announced that he and Rita would be married as soon as his divorce from his wife became final.

RITA AND ALY

The reporters asked if she would be happy as a member of a royal family.

She carefully failed to answer that question; rather she replied that she would be happy being Aly's wife.

A date for the wedding was set but Aly broke his ankle and the wedding had to be postponed. The delay gave Rita and Aly time to go wedding gown shopping in Paris. The gowns were modeled by Bettina, Jacques Fath's top model. Years later, Bettina would become Aly's mistress. She survived the accident which killed him when he crashed his sports car in 1960.

After the marriage, Rita let her hair go back to its original dark brown, as opposed to the red the world had known. She began wearing jeans around the chateau, slept late in the morning and lolled around most of the day eating candy and listening to records.

There were usually guests at the chateau, exclusively Aly's friends. When Rita would appear in her jeans and shirt, he was disappointed. He wanted the movie queen to make a regal entrance so he could impress his friends. She couldn't talk to most of the guests because she did not speak their language.

He was furious. Here he owned the pearl of feminity and she would not allow herself to be exhibited.

American director Charles Vidor sounded her out on a picture project. She said she was physically unable to accept the part. Vidor spread the story and the pregnancy rumor was given added imetus. Finally, she admitted she was going to have a child.

They hoped that the birth of their child would cement their crumbling marriage. Even though Princess Yasmin, when she arrived, was loved by both parents, she was not enough to overcome their gaping differences.

Aly could not overcome the habits of a lifetime, foremost of which was the pursuit of women.

For a while, the baby worked her magic. The next few months, Rita said, were the happiest of their entire relationship. But the idyll was short lived. Aly broke a leg in a skiing mishap and they flew back to the Riviera where he recuperated in his grand style.

The old Aga had despaired of his son's ever being more than a playboy. The aged monarch and the young beauty united in their hope that the man they both loved would become the man they both wanted.

But while Aly was beating through the jungle on a safari with friends and quaffing champagne, Rita knew the love affair was over. She felt certain now that she had to get a divorce.

She told her lawyer she wanted a divorce, and left for Reno, Nev., to establish residence. Rita went back to Hollywood and signed with Harry Cohn for the relatively paltry sum of $3,500 a week.

Aly sent many notes and lawyers bearing protestations of his undying love. She realized his efforts at reconciliation were a ploy to placate the ailing Aga.

That was the end of the romance that had captured the attention of the world. There were some ugly moments later, involving Yasmin's custody and trust funds. Each of them moved on to other love affairs, Aly's romance with movie stars Gene Tierney, and Rita's marriage to singer Dick Haymes.

Greek drama still thriving

ATHENS, GREECE (AP) — The land where western theater began 2,500 years ago is still busy with drama. There are in fact two very different seasons of thespic activity.

Summer brings the famous classic festivals, performed in ancient amphitheaters from the foot of the Acropolis here to the hills of Macedonia.

Then there is a season only natives really know, a seven-month foray when most tourists are gone into plays by modern domestic and foreign heirs of Aeschylus and Aristophanes.

"In both," insists Dimitri Malvetas, "we are expressing ourselves and our heritage."

The comment by one of the National Theater's leading actor-directors, is frequently echoed in the stage community.

Evident is a fierce determination to defend theater in Attica from travel ad insinuations that all the action is primarily designed to attract tourists.

"One might as well say the Parthenon is here for the sake of visitors," declares Dora Tsatsos, a choreographer who studied with Martha Graham and whose father Constantine is the nation's president.

An educated guess is that 70 per cent of summer audiences at big Epidaurus and rival arenas comprise homeland Hellenes.

As evidence of the particular pride the country still takes in being the birthland of stagecraft is a government regulation about actors.

A performer can get a permit to tread the boards only after three years of study at a drama school. No such license is required however to emote in movies or on television.

The 30-odd surviving scripts by the master playwrights of the age of Pericles are also exempt from the censorship possible on contemporary authorship. This immunity enabled opponents of the regime to insert a certain amount of subliminal political comment in classic presentations during the military junta which fell two years ago.

Two profs win awards

Salinger gets prize

PARIS (AP) — Former White House spokesman Pierre Salinger won a prize of $2,200 Friday for his book "France and the New World."

The prize was granted by a French committee honoring the U.S. bicentennial. Salinger's book deals with four centuries of French-American relations up to World War II.

A look at Carter's track record as governor

By The Associated Press

"As Maine goes, so goes the nation," they used to say. Now, Jimmy Carter is saying much the same thing about Georgia.

The former governor of the Peach State has been pointing to his record of reorganization of state government as an example of what he would do should he become president.

However, the record fails to show the savings Carter says he achieved in Georgia's government.

It is hard to iron out exactly what was accomplished in Carter's 1971-1974 term as governor. Supporters say Carter, the expected Democratic presidential nominee, saved the state money and cut bureaucracy. Critics say it was largely a facelift.

The record shows the state budget increased from $1.057 billion in fiscal 1971 to $1.675 billion in fiscal 1975, an increase of 58.5 per cent — less than the 61 per cent growth under Carter's predecessor, Lester Maddox, but more than the 38.1 per cent rise in the Consumer Price Index during that period.

State employment, exclusive of teachers, rose in Carter's tenure, from 34,322 to 42,400, an increase of 24 per cent. During Maddox's term, state employment went up 45 per cent.

Carter says he abolished 278 boards, bureaus and agencies in Georgia, leaving only 22 major divisions. Some of the numbers seem to depend on who's doing the counting, however.

A planning specialist who worked on Carter's reorganization, and who asked not to be identified, said there were only 66 budgeted state agencies before reorganization. The rest were bureaus, committees, councils and authorities, some of them small units with no funds.

The number of agencies left is also questioned. Carter's figure of 22 major divisions does not include independent agencies such as the Forest Research Council, various state retirements and authorities, all of which get state funds.

Carter says he eliminated 2,100 unnecessary state jobs, or about 5 per cent of the state payroll not including teachers. State Auditor Ernest Davis, a Democrat who opposed him on individual programs, says the jobs Carter supposedly cut were only paper jobs.

"I have personally not been able to identify any savings that resulted from reorganization per se," he said.

Charles Storm, an official of the State Merit System, said he could not confirm or deny any claims about the abolition of jobs.

However, Bill Roper, who was appointed by Carter to assist in the regorganization, said he identified savings of $34.3 million by the time he stopped monitoring the program in June 1974.

The reorganization is still controversial in Georgia, and one focus of controversy is the Department of Human Resources, a combination of the former separate departments of health, welfare and vocational rehabilitation.

Supporters say the new department helped deliver social services and caused savings by forcing health and welfare employes to work together on client needs.

Critics say the department is cumbersome, and the current governor, George Busbee, says it has "too many chiefs and not enough Indians."

Carter says clerical errors in the nation's welfare system cost the nation $1 billion a year and at least 10 per cent of welfare recipients could work. However, Carter did not propose any major reforms in Georgia welfare as governor and the error rate actually increased during his term.

Carter says that one "remarkably effective" tool he instituted in reorganization was a "zero-base budgeting" program in which each program has to justify its continuance annually.

Auditor Davis says the program gave Carter a good grasp of state government in theory but in fact department heads found a way to subvert the plan.

"When the governor asked, for instance, the commissioner of agriculture to assign priorities, the commissioner would put a low priority on things he knew had so much public support they couldn't be done away with and assign top priority to things he's close to."

Jody Powell, Carter's press secretary now and when he was governor, says Carter saw through that trick. "Jimmy had the authority to rearrange priorities after they were received," he said.

Two more campgrounds are closed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two more Northern California campgrounds have been closed because of the threat of bubonic plague, state health officials said Friday.

The two Mono County campgrounds, Holiday Overflow and Rock Creek, were closed after several golden-mantle squirrels were found dead and authorities suspected the plague killed them.

The campgrounds will remain closed for at least two weeks, officials said.

Joyce Brothers
Religious brainwash

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Our 19-year-old daughter ran away six months ago with an older man she was in love with. He is a religious fanatic and we believe he has brainwashed our daughter. Two weeks ago, she came home to visit. She seemed dazed and so taken with religion that she sounds as if she is chanting when she speaks. Many other young people worship at this man's feet, and work hard for him. My daughter swears they don't use drugs. But is it possible for her to be influenced by another human being that she would be so changed? — D. A.

Dear D. A.: Young persons whose ideas are still unformed and who hold no strong beliefs can be transformed under certain circumstances. This is especially true when the person is under physical and emotional stress. Even "falling in love" can produce a situation of stress. Young lovers are insecure and highly vulnerable. If the person they love is strong-willed and has a need for power, he can take advantage of the younger person's need to please. If he happens to be unscrupulous, he can mold the weaker person to whatever image he wishes.

The person who makes such a unforunate choice longs to be reassured of affection. He or she soon discovers that how one is treated depends on compliance. Gradually he or she becomes a victim without knowing it. In a sense, anyone who is "in love" is brainwashed in that his vision is clouded and he probably sees only the qualities he wishes to see. The kind of mind control involved in fanatical religious movements has some of the same characteristics involved in "falling in love," only the young people fall in love, or are mesmerized, by a group or a philosophy.

Some who have been under the influence of certain religious groups have been turned around when exposed to a different approach. This is extremely difficult, however, and exposure to new ideas sometimes has little effect.

In your daughter's case, I think it is encouraging that she visited you. It suggests to me that she wants and needs your support. Even though you disapprove of her views, try not to be too critical. Your main objective is to stay in communication with her. If she's willing to get it, professional help or advice would be most valuable.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We are moving to a large city after having lived in a small community for many years. My mother has been happy living in our home and we've felt privileged and glad to have her. She wants to come with us but I'm concerned as she's terrified because of what she's read about crime in the cities. Television shows add fuel to the fire. She's certain she'll be mugged, raped or killed. She enjoys her freedom and I'd hate to have her become a recluse through fear. — P. K.

Dear P. K.: If your mother obeys the rules of common sense, doesn't wander alone in dimly lit areas but stays on the main thoroughfares, she'll soon be a confident in the city as she was in her small town. Encourage her to go out in the daytime and not to hesitate to ask the police to help if she needs them. They are there to help and are usually eager to be of service.

Studies seem to indicate that an adult is more likely to be attacked — verbally, physically and mortally — by his or her own spouse than by any other person. This seems to suggest that there's more violence in the home than in the streets. This may be of some comfort to your mother.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHY DO SUNSETS LOOK RED?"

NANCY DUPONT RAYNHAM, MA

A. AT SUNSET, THE SUN'S RAYS TRAVEL THROUGH A THICKER BAND OF THE ATMOSPHERE. THE AIR FILTERS OUT THE SHORTER BLUE RAYS, AND ONLY THE COLORS OF THE LONGER RED AND ORANGE RAYS CAN BE SEEN.

DICK ROMERO 7/6

During the evening, when the sun is near the horizon, we may see a beautiful sunset. The reds and oranges of a sunset are caused by the filtering action of the sky.

Sunlight, as we know, is made of many colors. We can see the colors that make up sunlight when we look at a rainbow. As sunlight passes through the atmosphere, the different colors are scattered by the air.

During the day, when the sun is directly overhead, its rays do not have to travel through as much of the atmosphere to reach the earth. The sunlight is scattered in such a way that we see more of the blue rays.

But at sunset, when the sun is low in the sky, the light rays must travel through much more of the earth's atmosphere to reach the viewer.

As a result, the shorter blue rays are soon scattered out and we can see more of the longer orange and red rays of sunlight — and we have a reddish sunset.

The red color of sunrise is caused the same way.

Mexico elects new president

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A balding former schoolteacher with a fondness for the fine arts and karate has been elected Mexico's next president by the overwhelming majority the government party's candidate always gets.

Jose Lopez Portillo, the 56-year-old candidate of the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI), was o-posed by only two weak write-in candidates in the voting Sunday. Early unofficial returns gave him an insurmountable lead over Communist Valentin Campa and feminist Marina Gonzalez del Boy.

On Dec. 1, Lopez Portillo will become Mexico's 37th president, continuing nearly half a century of PRI dominance.

The strongest opposition party, National Action or PAN, had no presidential candidate because of internal squabbling. It did field candidates in 34 of the 64 senatorial districts and for 135 of the 196 seats in the Chamber of Deputies that are filled by direct election.

Under a complicated system of proportional representation, opposition parties could win as many as 25 seats without any one of their candidates winning a district outright. But PRI control of Congress is not in doubt.

Official returns will not be tabulated until midweek. But the early returns indicated that Lopez Portillo's 10-month campaign during which he crisscrossed the country was a success because the voter turnout was heavier than government opponents predicted.

PRI officials estimated that 60 per cent of the nation's 26 million voters went to the polls. In some presidential elections, 65 to 75 per cent stayed away.

Moments after the polls closed at 6 p.m. work crews from the city government spread through Mexico City removing political propaganda. By daybreak the posters and placards were gone.

Dual-Action Agitator

When it comes to large loads, most agitators can't move clothes around enough to get them all uniform! clean! The clothes on the bottom get plenty of agitation. But the clothes at the top receive less washing action than those at the bottom. But this revolutionary "Dual Action" agitator does more than slosh the clothes at the top back and forth! Its unique double-action design forces clothes on top down into the washing action to get the entire large wash load uniformly clean! In lab tests with 15 lb. AHAM test loads, the "Dual Action" agitator showed 58% more uniformity in cleaning than last year's Lady Kenmore agitator, the Penta Swirl!

Cyclist killed, 6 other persons hurt in holiday accidents

The three-day holiday for valley travelers ended in tragedy Monday with the death of a 19-year-old Ontario motorcyclist.

Three other motorcyclists, including an off-duty Los Angeles police officer, a Walnut man and a Corona woman, were injured in separate accidents Monday and three persons were injured in a three-car collision.

Ronald Joseph Sudol, 19, of 1638B S. Laurel Ave., Ontario, died Monday night at Ontario Community Hospital shortly after he lost control of his motorcycle in soft dirt on Phillips Avenue near Cypress Street about 10:20 p.m.

Police said that three street barricades with flashing yellow lights removed by thieves two hours before the accident may have been a contributing cause of the crash.

Police said a witness reported seeing Sudol pass him at about 50 miles per hour on Phillips Avenue. A moment later, the motorcycle flipped over several times in the dirt, throwing Sudol to the ground. The motorist told police that the motorcyclist, just before passing him, appeared to be weaving back and forth across the highway.

Police said that Sudol may have been drinking before the accident, but they are attempting to locate several youths seen removing the flashing barricades about two hours earlier. Police said the youths placed the barricades in a light blue pickup truck.

In the Diamond Bar area, a Walnut resident was injured Monday night when his motorcycle overturned on the Brea Canyon Road south of Colima Road.

Oscar Ford, 46, was treated at the San Dimas Community Hospital for facial lacerations and later transferred to the County-USC Medical Center.

He was riding south on the Brea Canyon Road and lost control as he attempted to negotiate a curve, said highway patrolmen.

Donald Lee Holloway, 36, of Ontario, an off-duty Los Angeles police officer was injured about 8:45 a.m. Monday when a car collided with his motorcycle on Mountain Avenue and Sixth Street in Ontario.

Police said that Holloway was making a right turn from Sixth Street to Mountain Avenue when a car northbound on Mountain Avenue apparently ran a red light and hit the motorcycle. Holloway was taken to Kaiser Hospital for treatment of multiple injuries and was later released.

Police said the driver of the car, Margaret Jean Pruett, 42, of Rialto was not injured in the accident.

A 26-year-old Corona woman was injured when a motorcycle she was a passenger on went out of control and slid on its side on Fourth Street west of Grove Avenue.

The woman, Joette Manning, was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital for treatment of an ankle laceration and later released.

The driver of the motorcycle, John Henry Broadly, 23, of 822 W. D St., Ontario, was not injured in the accident. Police said that Broadly was arrested for investigation of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Three persons suffered minor injuries Monday in a three-car, rear-end collision on the San Bernardino Freeway's Indian Hill Boulevard off-ramp in Claremont.

They were treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and later released.

The injured were Derrick Tinsley, 18, 630 Carlton St., Claremont, a driver; Denise Hutson, 23, Los Angeles, passenger in a second car, and Denise Minano, 14, 4536 N. Rhodela St., Claremont, passenger in the third vehicle.

Tinsley was driving east on the off-ramp and failed to stop for other vehicles waiting for a traffic signal, said highway patrolmen.

The Tinsley car hit an auto driven by Felix Oduyemi, 10372 Ramona Ave., Montclair, which was pushed into the third car operated by Rose Minano, 4536 N. Rhodela St., Claremont.

Demo governors endorse Carter

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Democratic governors performed the rite of endorsement today, pledging "our support and united efforts" to elect Jimmy Carter to the White House. The former Georgia governor promised them a place in administration counsels if he wins.

About 30 of the 36 Democratic governors had breakfast with Carter and voted without dissent to pledge him their backing. Among the absentees: Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, still a candidate for the Democratic nomination, and Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana, who is supporting Brown.

The other governors said Carter, the virtually certain nominee, "has demonstrated his ability to heal the divisions of the past and unify our national party."

Carter told a news conference here that he would interview Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., on Thursday in the second of his meetings with possible running mates. He met with Sen. Edmund Muskie on Monday.

Carter made an overnight trip to the National Governors Conference for the endorsement breakfast. He also got a Monday night briefing on foreign and security matters from CIA Director George Bush.

Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida, who once opposed Carter's nomination, presided at the caucus, and Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland, who had been sharply critical of the Georgian, sponsored the resolution of support.

The Democratic ritual was worked out in advance. National party chairman Robert Strauss met with the governors Monday to discuss the resolution of support, and talked to Mandel about sponsoring it. Mandel agreed. Then Strauss took the package to Carter on Monday night.

While Carter was promising cooperation and consultation with governors, he stood by his opposition to revenue sharing with the states, one of their favorite programs. He favors revenue sharing with county and local govermnents. But he said the governors, "very graciously," did not bring up that issue.

Carter said he favors a welfare reform plan nearly identical to one before the governors' conference, including a federally financed minimum income provision. He has said a full federal takeover of welfare expenses would be too costly.

But with the minimum income plan he endorsed, there wouldn't be much more for the federal government to take over anyhow. And Carter said he would seek to ease the welfare burden on states "as soon as that is financially feasible."

"I want to make a new partnership with the governors to evolve programs," Carter said. He said he would bring governors in on the ground floor as budgets and bills are drafted by a Carter administration.

Republican governors caucused, too, but they had no business to conduct so they campaigned against Carter. Gov. Dan Evans of Washington said Carter is like a skyrocket — "He's burst so spectacularly ... but he'll go down just as fast."

Evans said voters will turn to President Ford in the end. "They'll realize that solid accomplishment is more important than good teeth and a smile," he said.

In a statement prepared for a closed-door breakfast with his former colleagues, Carter reminded them that not since 1945 has a former governor (Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York) served as president.

"I promise you that if I am fortunate enough to be elected president, I will not preside over an administration which ignores the lessons of my own personal experience," Carter said.

"... It is time that the federal government recognized that states and localities retain a special knowledge of local problems and that responsive and flexible local leadership is essential to representative government in this nation," Carter said.

He also promised to work closely with the governors in welfare reform, saying there should be a simpler program "with one fairly uniform standard of payment adjusted to the extent feasible for cost of living differences by areas and with strong work incentives built in."

The governors have under consideration a welfare reform resolution with such provisions.

As Carter met with the Democrats, the National Governors Conference was working out the terms of a call for welfare reform to include a proposal that the federal government provide financing for a guaranteed minimum income.

Carter has opposed a federal takeover of welfare costs as too costly. But he told the governors he would seek a "phased reduction of the states' share as soon as that is financially feasible."

Mandel said Monday that once Carter sits down with the governors "and tells us what his position is, it's going to be very difficult for anyone to misunderstand it or change it." Mandel had earlier in the campaign accused Carter of shifting positions.

But a spokesman said the Maryland governor had agreed to the statement of campaign support for the sake of Democratic unity.

L.V. mother kills 2 young sons, self

A La Verne woman shot her two small sons to death and then killed herself sometime during the Fourth of July weekend, police reported.

The bodies of Joy Stewart Christian, 39, and her children, 4-year-old Matthew and 6-year-old Michael, were discovered late Monday morning in their apartment in the Los Arbolitos complex at 1849 Foothill Blvd.

Police said the building manager found the bodies just before noon when he went to the second-floor apartment to see why friends of the family had been unable to contact Mrs. Christian during the weekend.

Investigators said Mrs. Christian's body was in one bedroom. One boy's body was in another bedroom and the other was in the living room. All three victims apparently died of bullet wounds in the head.

Police said Mrs. Christian had been separated from her husband about two weeks, or just about the length of time she, Matthew and Michael had been living at the apartment. They also said a suicide note was found, in which Mrs. Christian blamed her action on mental depression.

The victims may have been dead since Friday, officers said.

A .38-caliber pistol found in the apartment was believed to be the weapon used in the double homicide and suicide, officers said.

The bodies were taken to the coroner's office for autopsies and the pistol was taken to the sheriff's crime lab for testing.

The slayings were the fourth and fifth in La Verne this year. In February, Mrs. Jeannie Beth Fitzjohn, 30, and her companion, Gary Ernest Keltz, 35, were slain in another double homicide in Mrs. Fitzjohn's apartment at 2421 Foothill Blvd. Mrs. Fitzjohn's estranged husband, Don Merrill Fitzjohn, 39, is awaiting trial in connection with those killings.

Discriminatory

U.S. nixes father-son, mom-daughter events

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials have decided that public schools may no longer sponsor father-son or mother-daughter events because they violate new rules against sex discrimination.

That's the word quietly passed to school administrators in Scottsdale, Ariz., last week, more than five months after the officials asked if such activities were still lawful under regulations approved by President Ford last summer.

In a letter cleared through Washington channels, John E. Palomina of the San Francisco regional Office for Civil Rights wrote to the officials telling them that "functions such as father-son or mother-daughter breakfasts would be subjecting students to separate treatment and would not be permitted."

And that decision applies, said a spokesman at Washington headquarters, even if the school offers separate events with equal facilities for both sexes.

Though no public announcement has been made on the issue, the spokesman said the Palomina letter represented a policy ruling that had been approved by rights office director Peter E. Holmes.

Violating of the decision could lead to a cutoff of federal assistance or even court action by the Justice Department.

The Palomina letter, dated June 25 and addressed to Dr. Ira King of the Scottsdale school system, declared that "If the purposes of such functions is to enhance community relations as your letter (of last February) states (they) would be just as effective if they were student-parent affairs.

"Such an arrangement would prevent a situation which would exclude a male student, for example, who does not have a father to accompany him to a father-son affair."

The Office for Civil Rights, part of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, drafted the new regulations last year.

Mandatory death penalty stricken

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today struck down Oklahoma's death penalty law.

The action followed the court's ruling last Friday that the death penalty is a constitutional punishment for murder but may not be imposed generally under laws which make it mandatory.

In Friday's decision the court struck down mandatory death penalty laws in Louisiana and North Carolina.

Ruling today in six Oklahoma cases, the court set aside the death sentences of six inmates and sent the cases back to the court of criminal appeals of Oklahoma.

"The imposition and carrying out of the death penalty under the law of Oklahoma constitutes a cruel and unusual punishment" in violation of the Constitution, the court said. The Oklahoma law makes death mandatory for a limited number of crimes.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist did not join in the ruling on the Oklahoma law but merely said they favored sending the cases back to the lower court for further proceedings in light of last Friday's ruling.

In another follow-up action to Friday's decision, the court sent 33 North Carolina death sentence cases back to the North Carolina Supreme Court for action in line with the Friday ruling.

Also sent back to a lower court for further proceedings were three cases from Louisiana.

The court refused to review nine death sentences from Georgia and six from Florida. The court upheld death penalty laws in the two states.

The North Carolina cases included that of Jesse Thurman Fowler. The court heard arguments on the case last term but failed to decide it then.

Fowler was sentenced to the North Carolina gas chamber for the fatal shooting of an acquaintance, John Griffin, in July 1973.

CIM escapee held in shooting of Novato policeman

Novato police this morning are holding a California Institution for Men escapee for the alleged shooting of a Novato police officer investigating a burglary, according to CIM officials.

CIM officials said they received a call from the Novato Police Department this morning informing them that escaper Dale Allen Tuttle was booked for the attempted murder of a police officer in their city.

Prison authorities said that the Novato police officer had been shot three times, but was not killed in the incident. Novato police said that the officer interrupted the inmate during the course of a burglary. Novato police told prison authorities that Tuttle may have been involved in a bank robbery in New York as well.

Tuttle escaped from CIM on May 14 after walking away from a minimum security section. He was serving a term for burglary.

Reagan gives 'important speech' tonight

ARRIVES FOR TAPING

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan waves to newsmen as he arrives at a Hollywood studio Monday night before taping a half-hour speech for national television to be aired tonight.

Former California governor hopes taped talk will persuade uncommitted delegates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan says he hopes his appearance on national television tonight (Ch. 7 ABC 10:30 p.m. PDT), will persuade uncommitted GOP delegates to vote for him.

"It's an important speech," the former California governor said Monday before taping the half-hour talk at a Hollywood studio.

He said President Ford's television exposure at Bicentennial events Sunday and Monday had nothing to do with his decision to present his nationwide message.

"We decided a long time ago to do this," Reagan said.

"Kansas City is drawing close and there are a lot of uncommitted delegates. I would have liked to have made the taping closer to the convention, but we had to take the time when it was available."

According to an Associated Press survey, Reagan has 976 delegates to Ford's 1,004 with 179 uncommitted and 98 delegates yet to be selected. A total of 1,130 delegate votes are needed to win the Republican nomination.

Reagan again predicted he would win the nomination on the first ballot at the August GOP convention at Kansas City, Mo.

Before the taping, Reagan would say only that the TV talk would emphasize his idea of "what America is, and what I believe it should be," but a campaign aide said that Reagan concentrates on his theme of excesses in government and inflation.

The aide said Reagan's message deals with the subject of whether government "cares about the Americans who keep the country going — the ones who fight wars, drive the trucks, raise the kids, the farmers, firemen, craftsmen and cops."

The aide said Reagan reiterates his attack that "inflation is theft by legislation."

"It is the government's way of getting more tax revenues without raising the rates," the aide said, quoting the text of the speech.

Reagan said Ford's Bicentennial exposure was "what would be expected of a president."

"If it helps him, it hurts me," Reagan said. "If it hurts him, it helps me."

Reagan said the stunning Israeli commando raid to rescue 100 airline passengers and crewmen from Palestinian terrorists reminded him "of the way Americans used to act.

"The tragedy of it is that we still live in a world where countries will not join in and make it plain that they will not put up with that terrorism."

Cannery workers plan walkout

Last-minute negotiations continue today

PALO ALTO (AP) — Lastminute negotiations were to continue today in efforts to prevent a walkout by 70,000 California cannery workers at 6 a.m. Wednesday.

A strike could halt operations at 95 per cent of the state's fruit canneries at the start of their peak season, leaving growers with no place to market most of their produce.

"The union has given us a counterproposal to our offer, and we will be bargaining in good faith," said a representative of the canners' group, California Processors, Inc. "In a situation like this, you just have to hope for the best."

Talks have been held sporadically over the past two months between canners and representatives of 13 Teamsters Union locals, which represent the workers. A three-year pact expired June 30 and 6 a.m. Wednesday is the deadline for a new agreement.

According to a union spokesman, workers are paid a base salary ranging from $4.23 to $6.50 per hour. The union initially asked for a $3.50 per hour increase to be spread over three years. Any changes in the proposal are being kept secret.

Monday, three members of state farm advisory boards urged the public to exert pressure to avoid a "disastrous cannery workers strike."

Paul Growald of the Apricot Advisory Board, and Jean Thom and Leonore Bravo of the Cling Peach Advisory Board, warned that a strike would seriously cripple California's peach, apricot and tomato industries and cause a multi-million dollar loss to the state's economy.

At a morning press conference here, the three government-appointed consumer advocates speculated that canners might not care about a quick settlement because 20 per cent of their goods from last year remain unsold.

Canners' representative Ross Wurm denied the charges and said the three were seeking "self-publicity."

Smoking areas: One supporter changes mind

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Of 49 Los Angeles County school boards given the option under a new state law to establish smoking areas in high schools, only eight have decided to take that route.

And one of those eight, so discouraged by the results, has decided to join the other 41 school districts in continuing a ban on smoking on its high school campuses.

The Los Angeles school board was among the overwhelming majority that refused to allow smoking on its high school campuses, and has, in fact, initiated a crackdown on student smokers.

"Our position was based on the fact that nicotine is poison to the human body," said Julian Nava, board member who recommended the crackdown.

However, some school districts that have lifted the ban against smoking find that it has created an improvement in student-teacher relations and has also resulted in cleaner restrooms, the site of illegal smoking activities.

"It has cut down on smoking altogether," said Lewis Grimard, principal of Duarte High School, where a smoking area was created. "There is no smoking in the lavoratory and no loitering in front of the school."

Agoura High School officials, though, were not quite so happy with their trial run at legalized smoking areas, saying that students still smoked in unauthorized areas.

Statewide, a random survey by the California School Boards Association showed 52 of the 126 boards responding had decided against authorized smoking areas, 42 approved the areas, and 32 were undecided.

State briefs

Sanitation workers strike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — County sanitation workers went on strike today in a contract dispute involving paid cleanup time.

Pickets were set up by members of the Service Employes International Union Local 66, AFL—CIO, at the Joint Water Pollution Control Plant, where 360 million gallons of sewage are treated daily.

Vic Hochee, general manager of Local 660, said the walkout was over "what's decent and equitable for people forced to work all day around raw sewage and garbage contaminants."

Hochee said that although his local had been offered a 5.1 per cent pay increase, the loss of paid cleanup time would mean a net loss in pay.

More than 425 million gallons of raw sewage and 15,000 tons of garbage are treated daily by the joint sanitation district which covers more than 70 communities in Los Angeles County.

A strike two years ago by sanitation workers was called off after three days when state health officials complained that untreated sewage was contaminating coastal waters.

Barley grown in salt water

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — Plant scientists say they have successfully grown a new strain of barley in salty ocean water, usually a killer of dry land vegetation.

Emanuel Epstein, professor of plant nutrition at the University of California at Davis, and research associate Jack Norlyn, conducted the research.

Epstein said in an interview they crossed 6,200 different barley strains from around the world to obtain the salt resistant varieties used in the experiments.

Epstein said the results were "amazing" and he predicted the day may come when sea water farming is possible.

He said some of the barley plants thrived in full-strength sea water and that only nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium fertilizers were used.

Two escape from Patton

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — Authorities were searching today for two patients who escaped from Patton State Hospital through an unlocked door.

Meanwhile, officials at the hospital, where 120 patients are confined, imposed a "lockdown" as a security measure. All the patients at Patton are penal code violators.

Hospital officials said the lockdown was imposed to prevent other escapes and to cut down the flow of drugs, weapons and other contraband.

Rubidoux man arrested in drug-sniffing deaths

RIVERSIDE (AP)—An 18-year-old man has been arrested for investigation of murder in the deaths of two youths who became fatally ill after sniffing a drug at a party, authorities said.

Raymond Glen Robison, 18, of Rubidoux, was arrested Monday while being treated at Riverside General Hospital for illness suffered after taking the drug himself, officials said.

Riverside County Sheriff's Department officials said that Rollin L. Steeg, 17, of Fontana, and John Stevens, 15, of Rubidoux, died after inhaling a white powder allegedly given to them by Robison.

The drug was not immediately identified by police. But doctors at Community Hospital, where several of the ill youths were taken, thought the drug might be procaine, a local anesthetic, authorities said.

Mike Barker, 18, and James Kent, 19, both of Rubidoux, were in stable condition, also after sniffing the drug, authorities said.

Det. Bill Russell of the County Sheriff's Department said Robison allegedly brought a pot of white powder to the house occupied by Carol Leslie and her daughter, Lydia, 16.

Lydia said there were about 10 young people at the house and that Robison purportedly produced a pot half full of the powder.

"I told them not to mess with it," Lydia said. "They didn't know what it was. About 10 minutes after they sniffed it, it started to get to Johnny (Stevens). He said his feet got real stiff, then his legs got bad, and he turned a real dark purple."

Police said Lydia phoned her mother and said the drugs had been taken by the boys and that some of them were sick.

The substance was sent by sheriff's officers to a laboratory for analysis.

Grand jury focuses on welfare fraud

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The county grand jury has urged the district attorney to prosecute welfare fraud "more vigorously" in efforts to reduce the amount of wasted welfare funds.

In a year-end report issued Monday, the panel also suggested that Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp set up a specially trained unit to handle child abuse cases.

The report said more than $1.5 million in fraudulent payments were uncovered by the fraud unit of the Department of Public Social Services between November, 1974, and October, 1975.

And, the report said, the fraud unit was unable to estimate the amount of undetected fraud.

"A primary concern in the deterrence of welfare fraud is the lack of emphasis by the district attorney's office on welfare fraud as a 'real crime,' coupled with the court's failure to impose strict sentences upon conviction.

"This has led to an attitude among offenders that a fee or low cost loan can be obtained by committing welfare fraud, repayable only if the offender is caught," the report said.

Referring to the problem of child abuse, the report noted that the sheriff, county counsel and Social Services Department already had established special child abuse units.

Van de Kamp said he was "generally in agreement" with the report.

Legislator denies deal with Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Clifford P. Hansen, R-Wyo., denied today that he promised to deliver the votes of seven uncommitted Republican National Convention delegates to President Ford in return for Ford's signature on a bill the administration has opposed.

"That statement is untrue," Hansen said in a Senate speech.

Report Mao not in poor health

TOKYO (AP) — A Chinese Foreign Ministry official says reports that Chairman Mao Tse-tung is in poor health are a "groundless fabrication," the Peking correspondent of Japan's largest newspaper, Asahi Shimbun, reported today.

Japan's Kyodo News Service reported from Peking last week that the Communist party central committee had decided the 82-year-old party chairman would no longer receive foreign visitors. A Foreign Ministry official said Mao was "too old and too busy," Kyodo reported.

The report heightened foreign speculation that Mao's health had deteriorated.

Elsinore fire injures three

LAKE ELSINORE (AP) — Three persons were injured, several small structures razed and more than 300 acres blackened as a raging fire burned through brush near Lake Elsinore before firemen quelled the blaze, authorities say.

Two California Division of Forestry fire fighters were injured Monday while fighting the blaze, authorities said.

Steve Fosmo, 28, of Woodcrest, suffered an allergic reaction to a bee sting while fighting the blaze, and was in stable condition after being treated for respiratory failure, officials said.

A woman fire fighter, Olga Vogt, 21, of Borrego Springs, was treated for second-degree burns and released, authorities said. Philip Williams, a 15-year-old resident of the threatened area, also suffered minor injuries while trying to ward off the flames, officials said.

New Viking landing site looks okay

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A giant radar dish in Arecibo, Puerto Rico, aimed at the spot chosen for Viking 1's landing on Mars, has so far failed to turn up anything that might reverse the decision.

As scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory went through the data from Arecibo Monday, Project Manager Jim Martin said: "I have heard no data that would shake our belief in the Northwest area."

The Northwest area is the flat plain — probably an ancient basin or dry lake — that became Viking's destination when the spacecraft's cameras found the original site to be inhospitable.

The cameras show the new site to be relatively free of mounds or boulders. But radar examination from earth can sometimes spot smaller hazards.

On Thursday, if the good news continues, Viking 1 will be ordered to adjust its orbit to bring it over the landing point. The landing is scheduled for July 17.

Photographs released here on Monday showed another region that could become the landing site for Viking 2, now on its way to Mars.

The pictures showed a cratered landscape that reminds many scientists of plains on the moon. Some of the craters were nearly filled with windblown sand — Dr. Michael Carr, a geologist with the Viking team, called them "ghost" craters — and around them, smooth deposits of sand or volcanic lava created featureless plains.

"This is the kind of material we would like to use to locate landing sites," Carr said.

Another photo showed the bottom of a canyon that is part of the 3,000-mile-long system of canyons rending the Martian crust near its equator.

The canyon bottom was filled with a field of sand dunes, each measuring about 1,600 feet across. The dunes were piled up by the fierce Martian winds that helped dig out the canyon.

Carr said the dune fields were much like those on the earth, particularly in Peru, Southern California and Arizona. He said Viking scientists had studied the earthly versions of the dune fields to better understand comparable features on Mars.

Though in some respects Mars does resemble the moon, recent information has shown it is much more active than earth's cold, dead satellite.

"There is a much greater range of morphology (surface features) on Mars because there are a greater number of processes to work on them," Carr said.

CROWDS SEEK CLOSER LOOK

Thousands of visitors wait in line at a Hudson River pier Monday to view one of the tall ships that participated in Op Sail July 4th celebration in New York.

Thousands jam piers to look at 'tall ships'

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of visitors have jammed the city's waterfront to get a closer look at the tall ships of Operation Sail and the men-of-war of the International Naval Review.

Police estimated that 60,000 were welcomed aboard 14 majestic square-rigged sailing ships at various docks, while about 135,000 were able to set foot on the 49 military vessels from all over the world also tied up along Manhattan's waterfront.

Those who didn't make it Monday were advised to return today or Wednesday and try again.

The Soviet square-riggers Kruzenshtern and Tovarisch were at anchor in the middle of the Hudson River off 79th Street and allowed no visitors. It was reported there had been threats of anti-Soviet demonstrations against them.

But to Leon Schertler, vice president of Operation Sail, that wasn't entirely a bad thing.

"I had been pushing all along to keep some ships out in the stream, where they'd be on full display," he said. The Soviet ships floating in bright sunlight proved his point.

Meanwhile, at the South Street Seaport Museum on the East River, where four of the tall ships were tied up, a huge crowd got so out of hand that police had to close off the pier and many visitors went away disappointed. Some streets in the area had to be closed off to keep still more crowds from pouring in.

But thousands got to walk the decks of the Op Sail host ship, the Coast Guard's Eagle. Or they got to visit the Danmark, or Norway's Christian Radich, or the Sir Winston Churchill, a favorite with its all-girl crew.

At Pier 86, where the Chilean ship Esmeralda was moored, several hundred demonstrators shouted against the current Chilean government and called the sailing vessel a "torture ship." Many managed to get onto the pier, but police kept them from boarding the ship.

But mostly it was one vast demonstration of international amity, good cheer and fun.

"I've never seen the city like this," said Jack Liczkowski of Wayne, N.J., who brought his family over to see the Polish ship Dar Pormorza. "New York is absolutely different, such a spirit of joy and celebration."

80 women going aboard at U.S. Naval Academy

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The U.S. Naval Academy, the oldest of the tradition-bound U.S. service academies, bowed to a new tradition today as women joined the ranks of the uniformed and regimented.

Eighty women freshmen — "plebes" — were scheduled to go aboard with 1,320 males.

On Wednesday, 110 women are scheduled to enter the U.S. Military Academy's freshman class.

But the Navy and the Army are playing second fiddle in the Air Force Academy in Colorado admitted women last week as its freshmen — or "doolies" — arrived.

The Coast Guard Academy in Connecticut also admitted its first women last week, but admission was voluntary since the school is run by the U.S. Transportation Department. The Merchant Marine Academy, run by the Commerce Department, admitted its first women last year.

The opening of Big Three academy doors to women was done under a law passed by Congress to cover the Defense Department-run schools.

The coming of women was fought by dyed-in-the-wool military men who said the academies were set up to train combat officers and federal law does not permit women in combat. But Congress prevailed, and women were ordered in for the first time this year.

Officials at the Naval Academy say the women will be treated the same as men with a few exceptions. Housing will be in coed dormitories.

One change in academy's rule book is that cadets of the opposite sex visiting each other in a dorm room must keep the door "open-fully."

The coeds, who are to be formally called midshipmen the same as their male counterparts, are not allowed to kiss or hold hands with male classmates in public and they may not date upperclassmen.

Since the law bars women from serving on combat vessels, the female freshmen will not be allowed to go on overnight cruises. Naval Academy officials said they hoped to change that rule by the time of the annual summer cruise at the end of the freshman year.

Football, wrestling and lacrosse are out for the women at Navy because they are body contact sports. But the coeds will be expected to take part in other athletic programs, both intercollegiate and intramural.

At the Air Force Academy's June 28 opening, the 150 new female cadets marched under the sign "Bring Me Men" leading into the campus in the shadow of the Rocky Mountains. They are part of the 1,600-student freshman class.

The entrance of women a year ago at the Merchant Marine Academy has been marked by controversy. A woman cadet resigned under pressure after being accused of sleeping with a male cadet — her fiance. School officials said the male cadet was allowed to graduate because he had a better academic record than the woman.

What it was like to sail on the 'tall ships'

NEW YORK (AP) — By the millions they crowded the concrete shore on their nation's 200th birthday, spectators from skyscrapers gawking at white-winged sailing ships.

These are the "tall ships" — quite small, in fact, next to this city. But there is majesty and magic in these vestiges of the past.

One hundred years ago, you wonder, what was it like at sea?

Here are some glimpses of what it was like aboard two of the sailing ships that went from Bermuda to Newport, R.I., and then to New York for the July 4 Parade of Sail:

Four days out of Bermuda, the becalmed British schooner Sir Winston Churchill finally found its wind—20 knots from the west, rolling the cobalt-blue waters 350 miles from Newport, R.I. The swells grew to eight to 10 feet.

Soon it was nighttime, thousands of brilliant stars above, the graceful curve of taut canvas stretched 100 feet up. You use few lights at sea — a dim red glow from the compass, a blue and white light atop the mainmast to show other ships you are there.

And what you hear is near-silence. The generator is off. So is the engine. Voices are muted so others can sleep.

The bridge is a raised open area, with lookout platforms on either side and a spoked wheel in the middle. You hear the rush of water, its crash at the bow. A block clanks in the rigging. The topsails luff, like freshlaundered towels snapping on a line.

We are heeled over, perhaps 20 degrees. Water gushes through the lee rail. It is hard to stand, but if you let your knees go loose it is easier. You sway with the ship as it bucks up and down.

The Churchill is a well-balanced ship, good when pointed into this wind. For 24 hours the wind pushes us over, but we roll very little. The cook, Derek Allen, gets a workout as grease splatters in the galley and cups fly through the petty officers' mess.

By day, many are seasick. The eight male officers and permanent crew are experienced at sea but most of the crew of civilian trainees, 42 young women, is not. When one lurches to the lee rail, another runs to clamp her into a harness so she isn't washed overboard. Nobody on watch is allowed to stay below, and very few ask to.

This ship, though light for a tall ship, is 150 feet long, 100 feet high. There are more than 50 people on board. It could easily go round the world. And its fore-and-aft sails — the important sails on a schooner — act a bit like wings when sailing into the wind. The wind rushes past the sails, creating a vacuum into which we rush.

The watch officer, Dr. A.P. McGowan of England's National Maritime Museum, says in a sense we are in a far more sophisticated machine than a motor vessel. The forces we harness are enormous, but we are just harnessing them — not making our own force. The key to handling them is balance.

For example, we go fast only in rough weather. But for 10 hours, the woman on the helm does not have to touch the wheel to hold it steady.

That much balance is extraordinary, says McGowan. But, he adds, "All sailing ships must be balanced to a certain degree. Without that no person would be able to steer her. No man by himself is capable of that kind of force."

A week later, the U.S. Coast Guard bark Eagle, sailing from Newport to New York, emerged from thick fog off the coast of Long Island.

A 295-foot bark rigged like an old-time trading ship or whaler, the Eagle can make as much as 15 or 16 knots in a 30-knot blow. She has five squaresails on each of the first two masts, a fore-and-aft sail called a spanker on the mizzen.

Now a wind was coming up. The ship was turned so the wind was behind it, and the command "Lay aloft" rang out. Gangs of cadets climbed the ratlines, to a first platform, a second, then the topmost yards. They braced their feet on footropes slung below the yards, throwing their torsos over the yards to keep balance.

They loosened the sails, let them drop a bit, then climbed down to the deck, where they unfurled the sails and set them taut by hauling on ropes linked to blocks and stretching upward.

It seems that so many things on this ship look the same — it is all rope and canvas, wire and masts. But each rope does something different, each wire has a purpose. The cadets must learn them all.

The commands, shouted by the sailing master from the quarterdeck, are an arcane vocabulary straight out of "Two Years Before the Mast": "Stand by to man the t'gallant braces. ... Tell him to haul on the starboard. ... Get everything bunted up and clewed up."

The sails tower 150 feet above deck, and great ropes the size of a man's wrist are used to set them. On some, the cadets work in relay teams, running forward in a line of 15. When the lead man runs out of room, he runs back to the rear of the line.

Soon the sails were billowing, and the great ship's bow was dipping and then rising out of the Atlantic. In a 10-knot breeze, we made five knots.

Two days later we sailed up the Hudson past the millions on shore.

There was only one problem. The wind would be behind us when we sailed downriver, but was directly against us all the way up.

But this exercise, for once, had little to do with seamanship. We set our sails anyway, the motor pushing us into the wind, our sails taking on an unseamanlike curve to the rear.

CWO "Red" Shannon, the ship's sailing master, looks like a master sergeant and is demanding with his crew. He knows that to be caught "aback" like this is an embarassment. But he smiled.

He looked at the millions who had been following his ship's exploits as it went from Bermuda to Newport, and now to New York, and he said they expected a good show.

"And," he added, "most of them won't know the difference."

New York City still can throw real party

NEW YORK (AP) — The shine of the Big Apple may be tarnished a bit by countless problems, but New York City showed as never before that it knows how to throw a party better than any place on earth.

For one glorious weekend, the city that was once acknowledged to represent the biggest and best of America acted as if nothing had changed.

Gone, if only fleetingly, were the specter of bankruptcy, the pain of deterioration and the cynicism for which New Yorkers are known.

Dirty, depraved New York did itself proud on the 200th birthday of independence.

"I've never seen anything quite like it," said one young lady who came here from California. "New York must be the most wonderful city in the world." This weekend it may have been.

For a nation born of the sea, New York put on the greatest maritime spectacle in America's history. Tall ships, the windjammers of another era, led a parade of magnificent sailing vessels past the Statue of Liberty, the welcoming beacon to millions seeking a better life.

Past skyscrapers and modern men of war in naval vessels. Past millions of people, into a celebration the likes of which the city has never seen.

But New York this weekend was more than sailing ships.

—It was 22 ethnic festivals, where the men and women and children who are the American melting pot celebrated their past.

—It was a nighttime parade up the Avenue of the Americas.

—It was street festivals and carnivals, families camping out along the shores of rivers and bays.

—It was the residents of one building, shielded from each other's view as they sat on balconies, joining each other in singing "God Bless America" as the tall ships sailed by.

—It was sailors jamming into the city at night, and prostitutes turning out in full force.

—It was the Statue of Liberty, brilliantly aglow in new lighting that made her four times brighter, and a fireworks display which sparkled above as thousands on shore sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

—It was Christopher Columbus the 17th, who came here by jetliner from Spain because "there is no better time for us to come in our happy circumstances of discovering a new world with our lives."

—It was international parties and block gatherings, a time to celebrate the past and forget the problems of the present.

And the future? Even in New York, at least on this weekend, there was reason to smile. And to hope.

Kjell Thorsen, captain of the Norwegian tall ship Christian Radich, said, "Never before have so many ships gathered like this in peace and friendship. I am a navy man, a fighting man. But it is time to stop fighting. This is a chance to get together for peace. It will not happen again, I shouldn't think. I hope this time it will work."

Queen Elizabeth opens six-day visit to U.S.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Britain's Queen Elizabeth II made a sentimental Bicentennial visit today to the historic city where American patriots 200 years ago declared their freedom from her nation.

She is spending the day in Philadelphia on the first stop of a six-day, nine-city American tour before she goes to Montreal to open the Olympic Games.

The royal yacht Britannia docked at Penn's Landing, where William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania, first came ashore in 1681.

More than 5,000 persons crowded along the Delaware River under heavy security to greet the queen and her husband, Prince Philip.

The welcoming group included about 50 demonstrators protesting the Bicentennial Bell, Britain's birthday present to the United States.

The protesters, led by the Rev. Carl McIntire, said the new bell should have a Biblical quotation like the old one. He said the fact there is no Biblical inscription "literally takes God out of our concept of freedom."

The Liberty Bell bears a quotation from Leviticus: "Proclaim liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." The inscription on the Bicentennial Bell says: "Let Freedom Ring."

The Rev. Mr. McIntire has called the new bell a phony and has said the Queen should take it back.

The 10-ton Bicentennial Bell, cast at the Whitechapel Bell Foundry in London where the Liberty Bell was made in 1752, hangs in a 130-foot-high brick bell tower at the new Visitors' Center.

Mayor Frank L. Rizzo led the official welcoming party as the Queen came down a long red carpet for a limousine trip 15 blocks to City Hall. She rode in President Ford's specially designed car, which was sent here for the trip.

As the royal yacht moved into the dock, helicopters flew overhead in the hazy sky and fireboats along the river turned on their hoses.

The queen is a great-great-great-great-granddaughter of King George III, the British monarch at the time of the American Revolution. She is also a second cousin, seven times removed, of George Washington.

The queen's Philadelphia itinerary includes a visit to Independence Hall; Carpenter's Hall, where the First Continental Congress met in 1774 to denounce British colonial policies; and the Liberty Bell pavillion where the famed, but cracked, Liberty Bell is displayed.

Half million bank robbery

MONTERREY, MEXICO (AP) — Guerrillas have made off with nearly half a million dollars in one of the smoothest and most audacious bank robberies ever seen in Mexico, police reported today.

"It was the biggest haul on record," said police officer Javier Garcia Montes in this third largest Mexican city 600 miles north of the capital.

He reported five members of the September 23rd Communist League, Mexico's most notorious guerrilla band, staged the hold-up Monday at the Bank of London and Mexico.

Soviets launch new space test

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched a Soyuz spacecraft with a two-man crew today to carry out "joint experiments" with the Salyut 5 space lab which was put into orbit on June 22, the official news agency Tass reported.

The Soyuz 21 spaceship was launched at 3:09 p.m. Moscow time (8:09 a.m. EDT) to carry out near-earth space exploration, Tass said.

Depree trial jury selection continues

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Three remaining jurors and two alternates were to be selected today, with testimony to follow in the trial of a white fundamentalist preacher's wife charged with killing a black man.

Nine jurors, one of them black and three of them women, were selected Monday as the first-degree murder trial of Sandra Dupree, 34, opened in Vance County Superior Court.

Just outside the city limits, a tent city of about 30 blacks, gathered to demonstrate for equal justice in the trial, spent a second night of mild harrassment and catcalls by whites passing by in cars and on motorcycles.

Arthur Vann III, a member of Mrs. Dupree's defense team, said he anticipates the prosecution will call only three or four of the 10 witnesses it has subpoenaed for the trial.

Vann said the defense expects to call more than 30 witnesses. He said only about six of them will be character witnesses.

Although attorneys for Mrs. Dupree entered a plea of innocent Monday, defense lawyers concentrated on the concept of self-defense while questioning prospective jurors. Defense lawyers, led by Arthur Vann Jr., asked potential jurors if they believed they could acquit someone charged with murder on grounds of self-defense.

While questioning prospective black jurors, Vann also asked whether they would be reluctant to acquit a white woman in the shooting of a black person. Defense attorneys excluded all blacks from the jury except the one chosen.

Dist. Atty. W.H.S. Burgwyn questioned jurors on their religious beliefs, rejecting those who professed fundamentalist Christian beliefs similar to those of the Duprees.

Mrs. Dupree, the mother of four and wife of Free Will Baptist minister Harvey Dupree, 33, is charged with the pistol slaying of Harry Lee Dickens, 21. He was shot once in the head while in his front yard in the town of Scotland Neck March 11.

Mrs. Dupree's son Mark, 14, had scuffled with several blacks while selling the newspaper "Grit" in the area about a week before the shooting. He was selling there again when the shooting occurred.

Twenty blacks, their mouths taped shut, stood for ten minutes at the U.S. Post Office in Henderson Monday afternoon as a silent demonstration for equal justice in the trial. Police were present but kept away from the demonstrators.

A tent used as headquarters for the protestors burned early Monday morning while its occupants were away, and leaders of the group blamed the fire on arsonists.

Mrs. Dupree, who has been free on $75,000 bond, has been the subject of protests by blacks in Scotland Neck. They said she got lenient treatment from authorities. Her bond was raised from $10,000 after initial protests. There have also been counter demonstrations by whites in Scotland Neck.

For V.P. nomination

Democrat delegates like Brown, Church

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter isn't saying who is at the top of his list for a running mate on the Democratic ticket, but delegates to the party's convention name Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Sen. Frank Church as their top choices for the second spot.

The delegates who will meet in New York City next week named more than 50 politicians and nonpoliticians as their choice for vice president, a continuing Associated Press survey of delegates found.

Carter, who has enough delegate votes to win the Democratic presidential nomination, says he will interview five possible running mates before the convention.

His first interview was with Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie in Plains, Ga., on Monday. Carter said that because Muskie was the first to be interviewed does not mean he is Carter's first choice.

The former Georgia governor, who has not released the names of the four other contenders besides Muskie, has said no one speaks for him on this decision.

And it is Carter's vote that will count at the convention. In the past, the convention always has approved the presidential candidate's choice for his running mate.

Brown, who defeated Carter in three late primaries, was named as the choice of 155 of the 988 delegates who stated a preference for vice president in interviews with The AP.

Another 153 delegates named Church, who also defeated Carter several times in later primaries.

In contrast, Muskie was named for the second post by only 15 delegates of the 2,222 who have been interviewed thus far in the AP survey.

About 54 per cent of the delegates did not give a choice for the vice presidential nomination when asked in the continuing AP delegate survey.

After Brown and Church, in order of total number of delegate mentions, were Sen. Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois, chosen by 115 delegates, and Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, by 81.

Both Stevenson, who was a favorite son contender, and Bayh, who dropped out of the presidential race midway through the primaries, drew much of their support from their home states. About a third of Stevenson's support was from Illinois, with almost half of Bayh's coming from Indiana.

Minnesota Sen. Walter Mondale, was named by 70 delegates, about 50 of whom currently are listed as Carter delegates in the AP survey.

Rep. Morris Udall, who amassed more than 300 delegates in his bid for the nomination, was named by 62 delegates for the second spot.

Six women and four blacks were among those mentioned by at least one delegate in the AP survey, but all those who ranked among the top 10 in total delegate support were white male politicians.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., was the choice of 38 delegates, while Ohio Sen. John Glenn also was named by that number.

Sen. Henry Jackson, whose presidential campaign stalled in May, and Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., rounded out the top 10 in delegate preference with 30 and 26 supporters, respectively.

The AP survey found that Brown, Church, Udall and Jackson still have support from a relatively large number of delegates for the presidential nomination, support that might be transferred into a vice presidential contest.

Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., was named for the second post by 19 delegates. Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley was named by two delegates, as was Georgia State Rep. Julian Bond.

Among the others named by less than 10 delegates:

And former presidential hopefuls Fred Harris, Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, Sargent Shriver, Texas Sen. Lloyd Bensten and Terry Sanford.

In Brazil

Descendents of Southerners plan own celebration

AMERICANA, Brazil (AP) — About 200 Brazilians will gather at a little red brick church near Americana Sunday to celebrate the U.S. Bicentennial. And the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy will be hung prominently and proudly alongside the Stars and Stripes.

The Brazilians are descendants of Southerners who fled to Brazil after their defeat in the Civil War. They are scattered throughout Brazil and have become assimilated into Brazilian life.

But every three months they gather at the little church in the rolling hills 10 miles outside Americana to hold religious services and have a picnic dinner.

"Brazil is our mother country, but the United States is our grandmother country," says Judith McKnight Jones.

In front of the church stands the Confederate Memorial, an obelisk displaying Confederate flags and the names of the families who settled in Americana. Behind the church is a little cemetery in which many of the early immigrants are buried; the Protestant Southerners had to have their own graveyard because in those days the Roman Catholic Church would not admit them to its burial grounds.

The American Descendancy Fraternity, formed by the descendants about 20 years ago to preserve their heritage, had bad luck trying to start a museum on the church grounds.

Jimmy Carter visited here in 1972 while he was governor of Georgia and laid the cornerstone for the museum building. But heavy rains apparently weakened the foundations of the building, and part of it collapsed. The fraternity hasn't decided whether to try to rebuild.

Mrs. Jones, who wrote a history of the American settlement, says about 3,500 Southerners came to Brazil in the 10 years after the Civil War. More trickled in until the turn of the century.

The hardships of the rough frontier country, disease and the difficulty of learning Portuguese drove many back to the United States. The only community that thrived was Vila Americana, or American City. Later the Vila was dropped.

The town 75 miles west of Sao Paulo was incorporated as a city in August 1875. Now an industrial and agricultural center of 80,000 people, it celebrated its centennial last year and adopted a coat of arms bearing the Confederate flag. A few streets still carry American names, but little else is visible to distinguish Americana from other medium-size Brazilian cities.

Mrs. Jones estimates that some 300 descendants of the exiled Confederates still live in Brazil. About 200 usually gather for the quarterly meetings.

The descendants have achieved prominence in medicine, farming, law and especially in education. Mrs. Jones' husband, James, a lawyer, dentist, farmer and former city councilman, feels it is no accident that Americana has one of the highest literacy rates in Brazil, one of the best school systems and a library with more than 10,000 volumes.

Samoa fete on July 5

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (AP)—An hour-long parade, a mix of native Samoan and American heritage, wound its way through this tiny city Monday, launching two days' of tardy celebration of the Fourth of July.

Because of the strict religious traditions here, Samoans did not join other Americans in celebrating the Bicentennial birthday throughout the country on Sunday.

Rica Laymon, of San Diego, Calif., who sailed into this South Pacific harbor with her husband last year, said, "they may have had their Fourth of July in the states first, but we've got the best one."

Natives in their traditional costumes carried the American Flag along with Samoa's flag to lead the patriotic floats parading past local dignitaries and a crowd of thousands.

Participants in the parade were dressed like colonialists and other characters of American history, many with powdered white wigs, not quite large enough to cover the bushy black hair common to most Samoans.

The patriotic speeches were carried out in the tradition of Samoa's talking chiefs, where a chief's second-in-command conducts a lengthy oratory.

The events Monday included a number of sporting events such as copra cutting, fire making, climbing a greased pole, catching a greased pig and basket weaving.

The big event was scheduled for Tuesday with a race of the fautasi, which are 90-foot-long boats powered by 44 rowers each.

In the helm of each boat is a beater, who pounds out the cadence on a large-square tincan while the rowers chant.

Mondale next for Carter

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Jimmy Carter said today he will interview Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota as a possible vice presidential running mate Thursday.

Mondale is the second vice presidential possibility with whom Carter has met. The former Georgia governor talked with Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine at his Plains, Ga., home Monday.

The man who is virtually assured of winning the Democratic presidential nomination next week has said he plans to meet with at least five vice presidential prospects before and during the convention.

Carter made his announcement about Mondale at a news conference held with Democratic governors.

Moynihan

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Hebrew University here has presented an honorary doctorate to Daniel Patrick Moynihan, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

In an acceptance speech Monday, Moynihan praised the Israeli rescue of those aboard a hijacked Air France plane in Uganda, calling it "the most explicit instruction ... that free men can and will prevail."

Moynihan, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for senator from New York, said the terrorist assault on the plane "has become a metaphor for the general assault on democracy and decency which is the sustaining ethos of totalitarianism in our time."

Gromyko

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko was the first member of the Soviet Communist party's ruling Politburo in recent years to attend the annual July 4 gathering here.

This year's Fourth of July party was to celebrate the American Bicentennial and was held at the official residence of U.S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr.

Gromyko, 67, a former ambassador to the United States, chatted at length with Stoessel and others at the reception, which drew between 2,000 and 3,000 guests, most of them Russians.

Kreisky

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — Chancellor Bruno Kreisky of Austria says the United States is going through "a process of self-purification" that will strengthen rather than weaken it.

In a Bicentennial speech, he mentioned "tough disputes" of recent U.S. domestic affairs, referring apparently to the Watergate affair and recent sex scandals in Washington.

Addressing the Salzburg summer school for American university students on Monday, Kreisky said America remained true to its 1776 principles when it provided a haven for the persecuted of Europe.

Elizabeth

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II has asked the Angolan government for clemency on behalf of three British mercenaries sentenced to death by a court in that country.

A spokesman said Monday that the queen sent a message over the weekend to President Agostinho Neto of Angola from the royal yacht Britannia, on which the queen was sailing from Bermuda to the United States.

The British mercenaries sentenced to death June 28 for their part on the losing side in the Angolan civil war are Costas Georgiou, Andrew McKenzie and John Barker. The fourth man sentenced to die is Daniel Gearheart, 34, an American Vietnam war veteran from Kensington, Md.

The text of the queen's message was not disclosed.

Out of arrogance flows compassion

From the ashes of Watergate...a 'new' Ehrlichman

By IRA BERKOW

At breakfast recently John Ehrlichman wiped a splotch of poached egg off his face — off his brambly greying beard, actually. He looked at the fellow with him through steel-rim glasses that shield very penetrating, very intelligent hazel eyes. He raised in thought a bushy right eyebrow which set in motion a score of squiggles in his broad forehead.

"Do I like myself?" He repeated the direct question just asked of him.

"It's not a question of like or dislike," he replied without belligerence. "I think it is a question of evidencing or embodying the things which I know to be true about me."

What did he say? What was he saying? Such was often wondered of Ehrlichman when he served as one of the nation's most powerful and haughty men, assistant to President Nixon for domestic affairs, from 1969 until the spring of 1973 when Nixon was forced to "terminate" him under pressure during the Watergate disclosures.

Ehrlichman is now appealing a five-year conviction for obstruction of justice for his part in the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist by the now infamous "plumbers," for whom he was near the top of their chain of command.

Ehrlichman, wearing dark blue tie and light blue shirt and light blue suit with the jacket buttoned over his expansive belly, was in Manhattan to promote his recently published novel, "The Company," in which he attempts to describe what life is like in the White House.

"I laid this book over three administrations deliberately," he said. "I wanted to deal with the hypothesis that what goes on in the White House is strongly influenced by precedent. You must deal with what appears to be a trap, or a Catch-22 situation.

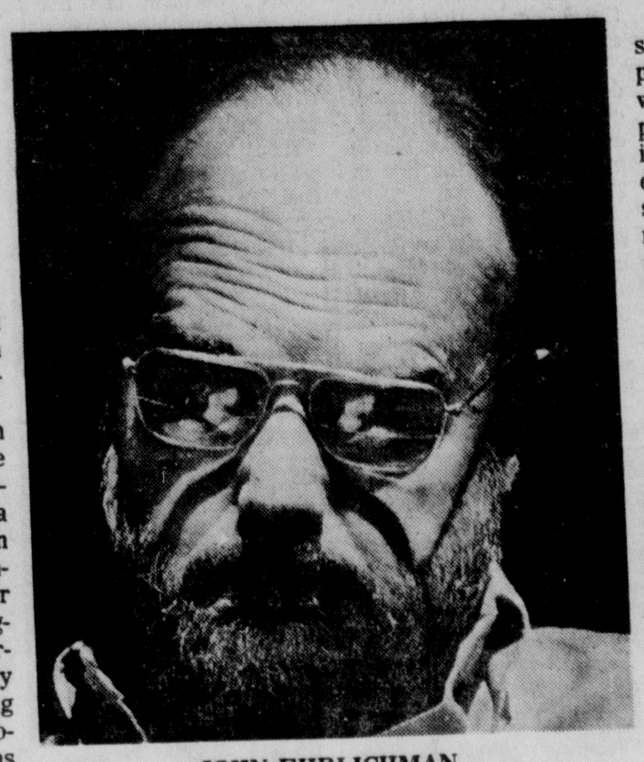
"When you set foot in the White House, the roles and actions of previous occupants play a very important part in the actions of the incumbent. It's rather subconscious, it's hanging from the four corners of the rooms. Very seldom does something pop up that's disassociated from the actions of others.

"For example, let's take presidential home improvements. We had a standard or high-water mark. We decided we shouldn't be any more elaborate than building something comparable to Lyndon Johnson's construction of a private airfield near his home in Texas.

"Well, as is normally the case, each succeeding administration goes a little beyond the previous. And the so-called improvements and security structures at San Clemente were what we called a matter of quantified excess.

"As for political spying, well, it's public now that previous administrations pioneered it. And I'm not sure it reached its apex in the Nixon administration.

"But here's the catch. When you're making a legal or moral judgment, should you be held to the standard of the past or to the standard of the future? It's a kind of time warp.



JOHN EHRLICHMAN
'Lost sight of what was important'

"This may sound like an implicit cop-out. I don't know if it is or not.

"Now, I have no trouble with the concept of accepting responsibility for one's actions. It's called 'respondiat superior,' that is, the principal is liable for the actions of his agent which are authorized. It was what the Nuremberg trials were all about, it was what the Eichmann trial dealt with.

"But obviously there are limitations. And they get kind of fuzzy. In the tradition of government service, you either follow orders or you leave. There are no other alternatives. There was a pattern set in the framework of the White House, and all of us followed it. Even when I'd say to Bob Haldeman, 'Gee, what the hell can the President be thinking of?' And Haldeman would say, 'John, you know the President is right.'

"I sometimes did not carry out certain orders because I thought the President was just in a pique. Later, he realized his mistake and appreciated my action. But there are limitations there, as well. If the President decides on a matter of high national interest, how is he going to get decisions effected if you've got a bunch of philosophers talking into skulls with ravens on their shoulders? The White House cannot be a Socratic school. So this is the dilemma.

"Only two people in our administration quit, and they did so just before they were going to be fired. There are things keeping you on, even when you know things are going wrong. It's almost a physical force, centripetal I think the word is. It holds you in the center.

"First, you feel if you stay you can accomplish things. I thought I was one of the few people who could communicate with the President. Second, the whole system of blandishments makes it so comfortable to stay. Cars, human bodies to help you, adulation of the community, summer cottages on lakes for your family — it was seductive.

"And then, well, I guess I felt I deserved such things by accident of birth. I was brought up in a socially prominent family in Seattle. I became a lawyer with good social standing. All my life I never questioned what I thought, what I'd do the next day. Never was challenged. I guess there was a kind of implicit arrogance. Poor people? Who knows poor people? I could intellectualize about them. They were a problem. But I didn't know poor people. None of us in the White House did. I've got regrets. You bet I do.

"I've been living in Santa Fe for the last couple years, in a small adobe. And I'm learning more about life, more about myself. I've worked with Indians, with Mexicans — I've seen for the first time the depths of their problems. Who had ever considered, for example, the hurdles kids like these must try to overcome when they enter school without knowing English?

"My writing and my artwork have also expanded me. For the first time, I'm more interested in the process than in the product. I'm striving to learn what is truly important. What happened in the White House, that cataclysm, may have been the best thing to ever happen to me. It blew away all of my mores. Now I live day to day, living by unstructured volitional dictates. And for the first time, I have a compendium of unanswered questions."

He was asked if he felt perhaps that the nation should sympathize with him, that we ought to say, "There but for the Grace of God go I?"

"No," he said, "I think they should say, 'I'd have been smarter than that dumb bastard. He let his vanity get in the way of his good sense. He began to believe his press clippings, of how powerful he was. He lost sight of what was important. Maybe he knew what was important, but it was so deep down that it had a hell of a time surfacing.' "

Latest computer game has grim sense of humor

SEATTLE (AP) — The latest computerized game at the local bar or poolroom is called "Death Race." For 25 cents, you can pretend you're running down pedestrians with a car.

The game puts the player behind a steering wheel and accelerator pedal and lets him chase "gremlins" across an electronic playing board for 99 seconds.

The skeletal figures bear a strong resemblance to people. When hit by a car, they emit a shrieking sound — something like the scream of a child — and turn into gravemarkers.

"If people get a kick out of running down pedestrians, you have to let them do it," said Paul Jacobs, director of marketing for Exidy, the Palo Alto, Calif., company that designed and distributes the game.

Jacobs said "Death Race" has been distributed nationwide but that it's a "trade secret" how many there are. He did say the game "happens to be our most popular game at this time. In fact, the business it attracts far outvalues any of the other games we've ever marketed."

The game scores points for each figure run down, and when it's over the player is rated on a scale ranging from a futile "skeleton chaser" to an accomplished "expert driver."

"The name 'Death Race' may shock a few people," Jacobs said, "but we find the game humorous."

"We decided to put a twist on that idea, so we added the graveyard effect and the shrieking sound, which makes for a lot more excitement," he said.

Jacobs said the game offended some distributors who refused to contract for it.

Bill Aubbon, director of the Seattle Center arcade, said the game has been in the arcade for about two weeks, "and so far no one has complained."

When first contacted, Aubbon said he wasn't aware of the game, but "it sounds a little hard to imagine." Checking further, he said he was relieved to find out "those are gremlins that you run down. You're not supposed to think they're people."

Intended or not, "I suppose they do resemble human forms," Jacobs said. "I don't think people really get off on thinking they ran down a pedestrian. I think they just like to see how good a marksman they are."

Dr. Byrde Meeks, a Seattle psychologist who once worked with aggressive inmates at California's San Quentin Prison, disagrees.

"A game like that appeals to the morbidity in a person," she said. "That type of preoccupation with violence was common in the prisoners I dealt with. They would have loved the game. ...

"Someone could argue that people act out their hostilities by playing games, but it has been proven time and time again that violence often comes from modeling."

Jacobs maintains the game is harmless.

"Most people take it in the right frame of mind," he said. "They laugh about it and enjoy it, and that's what it's for."

Snake charmer, but not by choice

NEWPORT, Tenn. (AP) — Nellie Pack is a preacher's wife who has six children and keeps a copperhead snake in a dirt-filled wooden box on top of her refrigerator.

"I'm scared to death of them. Just the thought of them," she said. "I can't even pick up one of those red worms when we go fishing."

But Mrs. Pack has more than gotten used to the poisonous snake because it is a part of her family's religion. Her husband, the Rev. Liston Pack, is pastor of the Holiness Church of God in Jesus Name, which believes the Bible directs believers to "take up serpents."

The Rev. Mr. Pack, a truck driver during the week, handles the snakes at weekly religious services. Members of the congregation, including his wife, also handle the reptiles.

"I guess I'm the only woman that does now," she said. "I just talked to the Lord about it."

Mrs. Pack said that after praying, she felt the power of the Lord and was able to put her hands into the box full of writhing snakes.

At first, she said, she handled only one snake at a time, but felt moved at a later service to pick up eight serpents at one time.

"When the annointing of the Lord is there, it's amazing," she said.

Cocke County authorities do not bother the small congregation in the hollow, even though snake handling is against the law in Tennessee.

"We're not out looking for them. Just so they don't bring the snakes to town," said Dist. Atty. Alfred Schmutzer Jr.

The Rev. Mr. Pack has served a jail sentence for his beliefs and the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear his appeal challenging the law against snake handling. But the high court's decision has not changed anything among his congregation.

"The Bible doesn't say if they take up serpents, it says they shall," he said. "Them fellows keep you walking straight with God."

Fires damage four Pomona structures

Flames apparently caused by fireworks resulted in $9,000 damage to a house owned by Cleophas Simmons of 1047 Blakely Court, Pomona, Monday at 2 p.m.

Two firemen, Capt. Jerry Wetzler and fireman Mike Hewitt, were overcome by smoke while fighting the fire. They were treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and returned to duty.

Children had been playing with fireworks in the area all morning, firemen were told. The blaze started on the roof and destroyed two-thirds of it.

A fire at the home of Robert Fisher, 2278 Belinda Ave., Pomona, caused $1,900 worth of damage today shortly after 2 a.m.

Fisher was awakened by the smell of smoke in his bedroom. He had no phone and went next door to a neighbor's to call the Fire Department.

Cause of the fire, which destroyed the bedroom and its contents, is under investigation.

Fire caused $3,500 in damage Monday to a two-story barn which had been converted to a shop and storage building at 640 E. Kingsley Ave., Pomona.

The blaze started at 10:55 a.m., apparently from electrical equipment in the downstairs shop area, and spread to the second floor. The property is owned by Jack Burks.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed half a vacant house at 1030 Ashfield Ave., Pomona, late Sunday night, said Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes.

Loss estimate on the repossessed structure was $10,000.

Fowlkes said the blaze had started in the livingroom area at the front of the house.

Cause is under investigation.

Ken Pine may need surgery

Ken Pine, a member of the Pomona school board, may have to undergo surgery to correct a painful spinal condition which has kept him hospitalized since June 14.

Pine attended the school board meeting that evening to cast his vote for Charles C. Carpenter as superintendent of the school district.

He is kept in traction at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, to relieve pressure caused by three locked discs.

Doctors say there is a "99 per cent chance" of surgery, Pine said Monday.

Australian flag found

Upland city officials this morning carefully replaced its sister city's Australian flag in the permanent City Hall Bicentennial display after it had been reported stolen Sunday.

The flag, presented to Upland by its Australian sister city, Madrid, turned up stolen from the display Sunday night. Monday the flag, still in good condition, was returned to the city by an Ontario woman who reported taking it away from several youths.

Cal Poly club's giant ant gone

Ontario police wouldn't be surprised if someone were to call today to report that a giant "ant", about 10 feet high, and five feet wide with five black legs was on someone's driveway.

The giant ant, an entrant by the Cal Ply Circle K Club in the All States Parade Sunday, turned up missing sometime Monday from its parking place at Chaffey High School. The theft was reported about 7 p.m. by Richard Holder of the All States Parade Committee.

Ontario building permits climb

June was "busting out" all over in Ontario in the construction of new homes.

City officials reported issuing building permits for 227 houses valued at $6,938,228.

This boosted the total number of house permits issued the first six months to 679 with a $22,150,341 valuation.

And officials believe the new home construction will continue as the June permits included seven for model homes in two developments.

The Mize Co. plans to build three model homes on S. Fern Ave. These are valued at $81,210. In addition, the Chevron Construction Co. proposes to construct four model homes valued at $145,792 on Placer Place.

The building firm, Presley of Southern California, was issued permits for 162 homes valued at $4,788,929 for three developments. These include 78 homes valued at $2,126,139 on Latana Avenue, Tropicana Court, Valentine Court, Jacaranda Street and Eucalyptus Court; 42 homes valued at $1,169,840 on Quince and Montezuma courts; and 42 homes valued at $1,492,950 on Cypress Avenue, Jacaranda Street, Locust Street and Zenia Court.

The American National Housing Corp. received permits to construct 57 homes, valued at $1,891,434, on Cedar Ridge Place and Desert Forest Avenue.

For the month of June, officials issued 160 permits with a $7,316,302 valuation for all building projects.

In addition to new homes, these included:

—Alterations to dwellings, 62, $173,895 valuation; commercial building, one, $71,280; and additions and alterations to commercial and industrial buildings, 10, $55,205.

The June building activity boosted the six months total to 776 permits and a $27,872,159 valuation.

The Chino City Council will consider adoption of the 1976-77 fiscal budget following a public hearing at tonight's meeting.

The $8 million budget prepared by City Manager Bob Fast, has already received glowing praise from councilmen. Approval of the fiscal plan is expected to be handled routinely at the 7:30 p.m. meeting in the Community Building.

Spotlight on area crime

Pizza Hut held up by two armed men

Two men, each armed with nickel-plated revolvers, robbed the Pizza Hut at 320 E. Foothill in POMONA late Monday morning, police reported.

Manager Robert A. Steadman, 32, said the pair entered his office, pulled the weapons and ordered him to lie on the floor. After taking money they forced him inside the walk-in cooler and told him to remain there until they had gone, he said.

Steadman described the robbers as white. One was about 23 years old, 5 feet 8 weighing 140 pounds. He had dark brown hair and wore a light-colored short-sleeved shirt and blue jeans.

Sheriff's deputies captured an UPLAND man and three juveniles after they fled in a stolen truck with $2,349 worth of power tools and office equipment taken from an ETIWANDA business firm.

Kenneth E. Larson of 1085 Loma Place, Upland, and the three youths were booked in connection with the burglary at San Diego Prestressed Co., 12167 Arrow Highway, Sunday.

Deputies said they spotted the three suspects near the plant after the burglary. They allegedly had taken a company truck valued at $1,600, used to transport the stolen property.

The suspects were forced to abandon the truck after it became disabled, however. They fled on foot and were soon captured, deputies reported. The truck and all the stolen tools were recovered.

A 47-year-old Ontario man was booked in the West End Jail this morning after he allegedly fired several shots at a Chino woman near Walnut Street and Bon View Avenue in ONTARIO, Sunday night.

Jack Adolph Wilson of 7709 Walnut Ave., was arrested by West End sheriff's deputies and Chino police in a horse barn at the rear of his home, minutes after Kathleen Marie Robinson, 25, of 12534 Magnolia Ave., Chino, reported being shot at.

Miss Robinson was not injured in the incident, deputies said.

Deputies said that Wilson was hiding in the barn, but had no weapon at the time of his arrest. He is being held in jail for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Two Ontario men were undid by the items they stole in the MT. BALDY area, West End Sheriff's deputies reported today.

The items were three beehives full of bees.

The pair, Richard Rice, 20, of 1855 Riverside Drive and Steven Warner Leuck, 21, of 1178 Nocta St., were booked by deputies Sunday after allegedly taking the beehives valued at $225 from a bee keeper south of the ranger station on Mt. Baldy Road.

Deputies said the men picked up the beehives in the Mt. Baldy area. Shortly after, Rice, driving a pickup truck, was attacked by the bees. His truck turned over on the road and the beehives spilled onto the highway.

Further investigation led to the capture of the thieves, said deputies. Owner of the hives was Arthur Haynes of Garden Grove.

Busing failure of Riverside

If someone a few years ago had come up with a scheme that would have increased racial discord in the nation, caused disruptions in the schools and fomented violence in the streets, he would have been branded a menace to society.

Well, they did come up with such a scheme. They called it busing. The tragedy of the situation is that where busing has worked, it has worked well, at least in its logistical aspects. Where it has not worked, as in Boston, it has been disastrous.

Almost entirely forgotten in the controversy, however, is the question of whether school busing to achieve desegregation, workable or not, accepted by a community or not, actually results in any academic or other benefits for minority children.

Riverside is about as far away from Boston as it is possible to get, geographically or by any other measure. A 10-year-long study of the impact of voluntary school desegregation in that city of 150,000 reveals that not only has busing failed to improve the self-esteem of minority children but that they "did not gain in achievement, either absolutely or relative to national norms."

The study was conducted by psychologists Dr. Norman Miller of the University of Southern California and Dr. Harold B. Gerard of UCLA, who report in Psychology Today magazine that when they undertook their study they were true believers.

"We expected to document the successes of the whole program: busing to achieve ethnic balance in school, the rising competence and ambition of minority children and their subsequent academic rise to equality with whites. We have been profoundly disappointed."

Indeed, they discovered that not only did minority grades not improve, they went down after desegregation, and even after several years there appeared to be no change in minority achievement motivation. Ironically, though, white children from families in the bottom five per cent of the socioeconomic ladder did show gains in self-esteem, which seems to be about the only positive accomplishment of Riverside's experiment with busing.

"We cannot expect busing programs to lead straight to better minority education," the author authors conclude. "It was quixotic, if not arrogant, to have thought at the outset that sitting next to white classmates would cause Mexican-American and black students to take on good, white middle-class values and enter the mainstream of American society.

"It just did not happen. We found, instead, that the children in each ethnic group became more and more cliquish over the years and less accepting of those outside their own group."

If it could be shown that busing achieves worthwhile goals for which it is designed, it might be worth all the turmoil. But when it results in precisely the opposite effect and leaves minority children worse off than they were before, even in a city like Riverside which undertook its program voluntarily, how much longer can this scheme be defended?

Drug ads don't make addicts

Does exposure to proprietary drug advertising on television — headache nostrums, cold cures, etc. — encourage youths to experiment with illegal drugs?

The charge received widespread publicity a few years ago, as well as legislative concern in the form of Senate hearings. About that time, NBC undertook a study of the subject.

Over a three-year period, information was obtained five different times from the same lower and middle-income teenage boys, white and black, in two medium-sized cities. Additional information was obtained from their parents, friends and schools. The sample of boys was mostly 13 to 15 years of age when the study began — the years in which experimentation with drugs begins — and 16 to 18 when the last data were collected.

The results of the study have been reported in The Public Opinion Quarterly, published by Columbia University Press, and its overall conclusion is that exposure to TV drug advertising "neither directly nor indirectly leads young people to use illicit drugs."

In fact, the key finding of the study is that the greater the exposure to TV drug advertising, the less the use of illicit drugs. Independent research by others shows the same result, says NBC.

In addition to examining the direct connection between TV drug advertising and illicit drug use, the possibility that such advertising fosters an attitude of "readiness" to take drugs and an acceptance of "pill popping" and thus indirectly leads to illicit drugs was also investigated.

While there was a slight tendency for those boys who saw more TV drug advertising to use more proprietary drugs, the suspected second link in the chain was found not to exist. That is, the use of proprietary drugs does not lead to illicit drugs.

Cozy lives of congressmen

Dear Editor:

The letter from Commander Holmgard, "Jim Lloyd works hard," doesn't address the features of the Hays mess which have so aroused the public's ire. We aren't worried about Wayne Hays' sex life- that's incidental to his ability to serve in Congress. What outrages me is the revelation that Hays, Lloyd and all of the other Washington politicians spend millions of dollars of our tax money to make their lives as Congressmen as cozy as possible.

The Congressional pay raise approved last year is a prime example of how our congressmen are duping the American public, picking our pockets to improve their lot. What is worse, there was hardly a whisper of this raise which has been in effect for nearly a year, until the Hays scandal prompted a full scale inquiry by the press into other congressional abuses of our tax dollars. It seems that Congress quietly passed this bill last July by including it as a "rider" to an insignificant Post Office bill. Jim Lloyd voted to raise his pay while the rest of the country was making personal sacrifices to cope with the recession.

I don't care if Jim Lloyd has one hundred mistresses, so long as they aren't being supported by my tax dollars. But I do care when Lloyd casts the deciding vote to raise his pay (the issued passed by one vote) while the rest of us are scraping to make ends meet.

The Bolles story—Part II

WASHINGTON — The loudest cries of outrage over the brutal murder of Don Bolles, investigative reporter for the Arizona Republic, have come from members of the political establishment.

Since his death last month, the state legislature has whittled away at the wrongs he had exposed, including the Funk-Emprise dog racing monopoly, and has come up with $100,000 for the murder investigation.

Yet during all the years Bolles was warning how hoodlums were robbing the taxpayers, Arizona officials squirmed a little but did nothing. Bolles would have condemned the hypocrisy.

We sent one our own investigative reporters, Larry Kraftowitz, to Phoenix to follow up the stories that Bolles never finished. Kraftowitz learned that Bolles had been in secret contact with a Phoenix businessman, named Fred Porter Jr., who was battling the Funk-Emprise dog racing interests.

In an earlier column, we reported that the two had worked together closely right up to the day Bolles was blown up in his car. Among the last words he gasped were: "Mafia . . . Emprise . . . They finally got me."

The frightened Porter sought protection from the Phoenix police who kept him under guard for three days. The same day the guard was withdrawn, Porter was slugged over the head twice with a pipe and left for dead on the ground.

Retracing Bolles' steps, Kraftowitz also learned that the Arizona Republic reporter was working on another story. Six days before he climbed into his bomb-rigged car, Bolles contacted Phillip E. Jones, who had helped to prepare a legislative staff report on land fraud.

We can now publish the story that Bolles probably would have uncovered if he had lived. We have learned that the land fraud report was mysteriously torn up. The research division, which drafted the report, was also disbanded as part of a staff reorganization. Several of the staff members were fired.

Some powerful legislators apparently were unhappy over their investigative zeal. The suppressed report, according to sources who saw it before it was destroyed, accused certain regulatory agencies of failing to cooperate with land fraud investigations. The report also hinted that high state officials were aware of the land frauds but were treating them with massive indifference.

Two watered-down reports eventually were published. But the staff members who worked on them were harassed. When portions of the second report leaked to the press, the staff man who wrote it, Leone Beene, was chewed out by his supervisor, Harry Gutterrman. At the time, Gutterman reported to the legislative leadership.

Tersely, Gutterman warned Beene never to make a move without first consulting him. Beene continued to meet secretly with police investigators, nevertheless, warning that he'd be fired if caught.

Footnote: Beene confirmed he had drafted the reports on land fraud but refused to discuss his reprimand. Gutterman had no comment.

CREEPING CORRUPTION: The corporations that do business in Washington seldom resort to anything so gross as bribing public officials. Rather, the corporate pleaders engage in creeping corruption so gentle that the officials often don't recognize that they have been corrupted.

By a series of small favors, the influence artists seek to instill in the officials a feeling of personal obligation. The favors range from theater tickets and imported liquors to French perfumes and free transportation. It is the accumulation, rather than any single gift, that gradually obligates the courted officials.

Throughout the process, the officials often persuade themselves that there is no connection between the favors they receive and the decisions they make. But they wind up losing their sense of dedication to the public and feel a greater loyalty to their new corporate friends.

Aerojet-General, for example, wanted to sell about $2 million worth of rocket equipment to a Japanese firm. This required an export license from the State Dept., which consulted the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for advice on the Aerojet contract.

One of NASA's deputy assistant administrators, Steve Doyle, played an important role in providing the State Dept. with the answers about Aerojet. Suddenly, the corporation sought out and befriended this obscure official.

Doyle was wined and dined by Aerojet executives. One executive, Tony Piantes, took Doyle and his wife to dinner and the theater. Aerojet also offered Doyle some scarce Washington Redskin football tickets and invited him to a corporate Christmas party.

Footnote: Doyle acknowledged that he had been a luncheon and dinner guest of Aerojet. He was invited to the football game, he said, but did not attend. Doyle conceded that he had "participated" in reviewing cases involving Aerojet for the State Dept. but both Doyle and Piantes strongly denied any wrongful intent.

Our declaration of dependence

In our nation's Declaration of Independence there is a significant declaration of "dependence," also. And one without the other won't work. Our text for today is taken from the next to last sentence in our nation's Declaration of Independence.

Understand, I am no preacher. The pulpit is a responsibility infinitely higher than any to which I would aspire. But I am an historian and inevitably our professions overlap.

Our nation's recent Fourth of July celebrations have tended to focus on the word "freedom." Yet even as our nation's founders offered their lives and fortunes to win for our fledgling nation "freedom" from British rule, in that same eloquent document they sought the guidance and blessing of the Almighty.

They appealed "to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our institutions." "Rectitude" — God's standard of integrity and honesty.

Our founders proclaimed themselves "free" to do whatever they might want? Hardly. They declared themselves free to do "what they'd ought." They prayed, "THY KINGDOM come, THY WILL be done on earth . . ."

They bound themselves to God's will, and that is when, in an instant as historical time is measured, our 6 percent of this planet's population began to accumulate more than half of all the world's good things — collecting on God's written promise that "believing" in certain things and "behaving ourselves" all else would be added.

And so it was. It was only in recent generations that Americans, mouthing platitudes about "freedom," have obscured the very meaning of America and now all over the bleak, black and bloody front page it is apparent that self-government without self-discipline won't work.

You can say that another way: Capitalism without God is no better than communism. The Third Reich was a classic example of capitalism without God. The land which had produced Bach, Beethoven and Brahms ended up producing Auschwitz, Dachau and Buchenwald.

Self-government without self-discipline won't work. Today once-free Americans have to be searched before they can board an airliner — not because there is a dictator in Washington, but because a handful of irresponsible ingrates are running around loose.

Because some who are free don't deserve to be none of us can be. They are taking away our Fourth of July fireworks and threaten to take away our guns because some misuse theirs. Because some sickies hide razors in apples, whole states have had to outlaw Halloween.

Again, not because there is tyranny in government, but because there is anarchy in the unbuttoned brains of a handful.

And it's down the road of thumbing our noses at rightness and wrongness that whole nations go from regulation to regimentation to tyranny.

Much more important than our nation's Declaration of Independence from foreign domination is our nation's declaration of dependence on Divine providence and sacred honor.

Ignore the "guidance system" that was built into our republic and we are, like any unguided missile, inevitably destined to self-destruct.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

In a country where accentuating the minimal has become one of the more productive methods for winning friends and influencing people, it is not at all surprising that some automobile manufacturers are making a big thing out of the fact that cigarette lighters are now standard equipment on their cars. This in spite of the Surgeon General's warning that cigarette smoking can be a health hazard.

Shakespeare called such practices "Much Ado About Nothing," but to hear the auto manufacturers tell it, it's the greatest automotive achievement since whip sockets were removed from automobile dashboards. Which, so far as I am concerned, is just further proof that today's advertising experts are not only psychotic, neurotic and erotic but also about 90 percent tommyrotic.

Speed law being defied

By EARL G. WATERS

Enacted in haste as a method of saving energy, the 55 mile speed limit is being perpetuated on the claim slower speeds are reducing death and injury on the highways.

That the restrictive law has saved fuel or lives can be debated although government, reveling in the increased revenues from fines, and the Highway Patrol, glorying in an excuse to justify more troops and heretofore unacceptable enforcement methods, advance statistics to prove their case. What is not debatable is that is is an unpopular law, and as such is widely defied by the public.

The whole idea of reducing speed was a fallacy. If the need to conserve energy was real, then high-powered cars should have been ruled off the road. The public wouldn't have held still for that but they did go along with what they thought was a temporary measure in the spirit of cooperating with the supposed energy crises. That need seems to have gone.

As for safety, if 55 MPH is safer than 70, than 45 is even safer and 35 is safer than that. Traffic fatalities on city streets, where speeds are limited to 35, seem to refute that logic.

The speed law ignores the fact California highways were designed to support traffic at speeds of 75 and higher. It also ignores the differences for safe speed caused by congestion, inclement weather and darkness, to say nothing of the type and condition of vehicles.

The state was blackmailed into passing the law. At the time Senate Transportation chairman, Senator Larry Walsh, resentful of federal officials dictating this state's laws, openly admitted sponsoring the reduced speed law for no other reason than avoiding the loss of federal highway funds. Since Gov. Jerry Brown has all but halted highway construction in his effort to compel "lowered expectations" by forcing people to mass transit which doesn't exist, the threat of losing federal highway money becomes an idle one.

Far more important than either the energy or safety issue is what the 55 MPH law is breeding in law enforcement. Not only is it diverting huge funds and resources to the apprehension of one of the most minor law violations conceivable in the face of police inability to cope with violent crime, it is also creating a tolerance for police methods which in the past have been deemed reprehensible.

Thus the CHP is now spying in the sky, demanding electronic spying devices, and complaining about not having unmarked cars to further their cloak and dagger police operations. All to catch some guy whose only offense is that he is driving at a speed which, until the energy crunch, was determined to be both legal and safe.

It is a galling irony that near Gestapo methods should be sanctioned to catch citizens whose only crime is a speed violation when neither the public nor the courts will permit the use of spying devices upon organized crime and violent criminals.

In their suggestion that the CHP should be allowed radar and unmarked cars it is clear that there is a frightening lack of understanding as to the proper role of peace officers. As the name implies their mission is to maintain the peace. Only by being most visible can they best do the job of preventing law violations. That is why police wear uniforms and drive well marked cars.

Of course, if the idea is to put everyone in jail, then do away with not only the marked cars but the uniforms as well. Put everybody to spying on everyone else and the country can really become a police state.

If such ideas are repugnant in the efforts to control violent crime, why are they acceptable when proposed to enforce an unpopular minor infraction? Sir Robert Peele, who founded the modern British police system, said any law which does not have public support is a bad law. Prohibition proved just how bad a law can be.

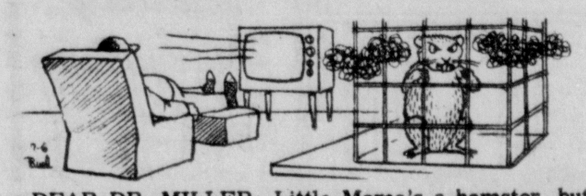
Better adhere to pet's sked



DEAR DR. MILLER: Little Mama's a hamster, but she never has been a mama because she's always alone. I'm disappointed, but that's the way it is. She's another disappointment. She sleeps all day and wants to play at night. This is bad because I want to watch television. How can I rearrange her sleeping schedule so I can play with her during the daytime? — C. C.

DEAR C. C.: It's more logical for you to do the schedule-switching, since Little Mama is a nocturnal animal. It's natural for her to be sleepy in the day and then sociable at night. To be the best of playtime pals, you'll either have to give up some of your TV or, and this may prove difficult or impossible, find programs she's willing to watch with you.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When I first noticed our Cocker had this bad odor, I thought it might be his ears and I checked, but it wasn't. It sort of seems to be coming from his mouth and yet his breath isn't really that bad. Besides, all his teeth are clean and white and his gums look perfectly natural. No redness or anything. The strangest thing is, the odor os more on one side of his head than the other, but no swellings and Dandy feels just fine. Where could this strong, sickish odor be coming from, anyway? — S. N.

DEAR S.N.: Dandy's doctor will undoubtedly detecth the source of that odor in a hurry. I can't from here. I can say, though, from your description, that one possible cause could be an ulcerative process involving the lower lip area along the side of the jaw. The skin in this area, particularly in a heavily-coated dog, may be kept constantly moist by an overflow of saliva. As the area becomes increasingly irritated, it tends to become odoriferous, inflamed, and eventually ulcerated.

In the very early stages of this "stinking saliva" syndrome, simply wiping the affected lower lip area twice daily with cotton and a safe, mild astringent solution to remove accumulations and allow the area to dry may be all that's necessary. But the condition would tend to recur, so recheck frequently for malodor or signs of that lower lip irritation.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Someone said that crow is on the rare and endangered bird List? They've got to be kidding!? — D. F.

DEAR D. F.: They're not kidding in the Hawaiian islands. The Hawaiian crow, the Alala, is, along with a dozen and a half other Islands birds, on that rare and endangered list.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're prone to take foolish risks today, both materially and where work or career is concerned. Leave your checkbook at home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Guard against placing too much stock today in someone you're not sure is really deserving. You could be backing a loser!

GEMINI (May 21-July 20) Make realistic evaluations today. Don't try to kid yourself or others. You still can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It would be folly to be neglectful today and put major projects off till the last minute. As time grows short, so do your talents.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) It's nice to be generous, but it's just plain foolish to be too open-handed and so extravagant that you indulge all your whims today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today, you may feel you have to come on strong to impress your friends. Being boastful does not become you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Very little will be gained today if you try to defend or expound upon issues you know nothing about. Silence can truly be golden for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Think twice today before you lend something to one who treats his possessions carelessly. Do you think he'll handle yours differently?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to misdirect your energies today in pursuit of goals that are of small purpose. Aim towards things that really matter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you're very self-reliant. Today you may try to palm off your duties at the first opportunity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Social gatherings you normally enjoy, ones with large groups of new faces, may not appeal to you today. It'll be tolerable if you don't expect too much.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Reevaluate your goals today. Something you have placed a high priority on acquiring may not be worth the price.

your birthday July 7, 1976

Opportunities may be available to you this year through established friends. However, if they feel you don't make the most of them, you may get a second chance.

Ann Landers

Schools for the non-achiever?

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest your comment, "The sooner we get back to basics in our schools the better." As one who has worked in education for 30 years, I share your concern.

The problem lies in the philosophy of education today. Instead of stressing academic achievement, the idea is to make the student "feel good about himself." A child is allowed to progress at his own rate, which means he can move ahead if he feels like it. Discipline is at the lowest ebb in the history of the public school system. Teachers must spend valuable teaching time maintaining order in the classroom.

Memorizing facts is considered old hat. Competition and rivalry are said to be damaging, because they "create pressure." Grades are "bad," because they can be hard on a child's ego. Our schools are geared to the non-achiever. The result is mediocrity.

In our day we learned how to compete and cope with the world. Now students are encouraged to "do their own thing." If they don't learn anything, the world is supposed to cope with THEM.

Teachers are no longer the focal point for education. They have been replaced by a fanatical preoccupation with programs. So, Ann, what can be done to get schools back to teaching children? May I suggest that parents attend local school board meetings and demand that their tax dollars be spent to educate their children? Thanks for the forum. — From The Athens Of The Midwest — Madison, Wis.

Dear Athens: Several teachers and principals wrote to express a similar point of view, but you said it best. Thanks to all who wrote. I couldn't agree more. (Are you listening, parents?)

Dear Ann Landers: Please answer in the paper so our whole family can see it. We are split right down the middle on this one and you are going to settle the argument.

Sis will be married sometime in August. My folks are going to give her a beautiful wedding. It will cost a lot of money. We want everything to be perfect. The problem is my mother's brother and his wife.

This uncle has a very foul mouth. He tries to get personal with every woman he talks to, family or not. He also has a serious drinking problem. My aunt is under psychiatric care and there are times when she doesn't make a whole lot of sense. Between the two of them you can never be sure of what will happen next.

Some of us think they should not be invited to the wedding. Others say we MUST invite them or they will be mad at us for the rest of their lives. Please say yes or no. Thank you. — The Tribe

Dear Tribe: I'm saying yes — and with your kind permission I'd like to add a few more worlds.

To exclude your uncle and aunt would be inexcusable. Invite them — but have a "rescue squad" on the alert. At the first sign of unacceptable behavior, four individuals should quietly usher the two of them out and they should be driven home.

CONFIDENTIAL to Stuck On the Gossip Treadmill and Can't Get Off: Why don't you stop talking about it? The way to make a mountain out of a molehill is to keep adding the dirt.

Hays case stirs imagination

This thing with Congressman Hays, who allegedly hired a secretary who couldn't type or answer the phone, has really opened up a can of worms.

Some men are so devious. One guy told his wife he hired a secretary who was handicapped. It turned out she was married.

A group of us were working on an embroidered sampler the other afternoon and were talking about our husbands' secretaries.

"Come to think of it," said Jan, "John's secretary doesn't type, take dictation, answer the phone or file."

"Why not?" we asked.

"Don't be ridiculous!" she said. "She doesn't speak English. She's French."

"That sounds reasonable. A man needs to expand his mind," we nodded.

"Joe's secretary is bright enough," said Marci. "In fact I helped him select her."

"That's smart," we said.

"Only one thing bothers me. On her application under 'sex' she wrote in 'yes.'"

"A man needs a secretary with a good sense of humor," we nodded.

"Ken's secretary is a real stitch," said Margaret, "I don't have to worry about her. She really keeps Ken loose all the time."

"Like how?"

"Like they assigned her to the secretary pool and she reported wearing a bathing suit."

"A man needs someone around who can relieve tensions once in a while," we nodded.

"Well, I trust my husband implicity," said Judy, dialing her husband's office number. Speaking into the phone she said, "Hello, darling. Miss you. Come home early. I'm at Erma's and we just had the most stimulating discussion. Why don't you call me at home at three?"

"You got straight through to your husband without going through a secretary?" we asked.

"Oh she doesn't answer the phone," said Judy. "I was recording my message on tape."

"Maybe they're at lunch," we suggested.

"She doesn't come in that early," said Judy.

We all worked in silence on our sampler which read, "NO MAN STANDS SO TALL AS WHEN HE STOOPS TO HIRE A HOMELY SECRETARY."

Dr. Lamb

Low blood sugar controversy

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 59 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall with a large frame and weigh 165 pounds. Recently I had a thorough physical examination and tests. A five hour glucose tolerance test showed that I am hypoglycemic and blood tests showed that my cholesterol is elevated to 312 milligrams.

Being somewhat overweight I have been advised to lose weight and keep it off. I understand that I am to eat high protein foods to control the hypoglycemia and low cholesterol foods to bring down the cholesterol. My problem is that I do not know what to eat, when to eat, how much to eat and still lose weight too. Can you help me?

DEAR READER — My first problem would be in agreeing with the diagnosis of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar). I do not think such a diagnosis is valid at all unless the blood test shows a low level at the same time the person is having typical symptoms. Too often a patient has a test like you had and one or more readings are low. Despite the fact the patient doesn't have one symptom that could be caused by low blood sugar he gets the diagnosis. The truth is that lots of normal people in tip-top health have intermittent low blood glucose readings. One of the more recent reports of this was in the Journal of the American Medical Assn. of a study done at Fitzsimmons Army Hospital. Healthy people had levels below 40 milligrams and no symptoms. Unless you had symptoms with your low reading I think your diagnosis is incorrect.

Assuming that you did have symptoms and that your diagnosis is correct then you will have to construct a diet based on lean meats, lean fish, lean poultry. Cut all the fat away. Prepare by broiling, boiling (poaching) or roasting. Lean fish would include sole, cod, flounder, turbot. Young chicken and young turkey is lower in fat than larger birds. Remove the skin to eliminate fat and use only the white meat for the least fat.

For the rest of your diet concentrate on leafy vegetables that you would get in a salad and do not use fatty salad dressings. Use some of the dietetic low calorie dressings. You can use cabbage, lettuce, broccoli and bulky vegetables of this type and raw vegetables such as carrots.

You need some cereal and I would suggest a bowl of Bran Buds or All Bran each day to maintain some bulk in your diet. You can reverse the order of your meals each day if you really have had symptoms of hypoglycemia. By that I mean have the meat and vegetables in the morning and at lunch. Eat the cereal at night before going to bed. Be sure to include at least seven ounces of meat, fish or poultry in your diet each day. You could eat a whole pound of lean round steak (raw weight) and it would only contain 600 calories.

Now you may not need to limit your carbohydrates as much as I have indicated if you have no symptoms of hypoglycemia. In that case you could use a normal reducing diet. I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar: Hypoglycemia, to give you more information. Others who want information on this subject can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I suspect that if you can eliminate your weight problem your high cholesterol will take care of itself. You should also start a daily exercise program. Start with a walking routine and increase your daily walking activity.

What people say

"If our GM employes were writing their own checks for hospital care, they'd do two things. They would demand to know why the costs are what they are and they probably would use the hospital a little less."

— Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of General Motors, saying that fringe benefits to employes added $407 to the price of every vehicle the company produced last year.

"Of all the follies of modern man, the waste of one-tenth of the world's wealth, year after year, on war and militarism is the greatest, and the successful attack on this problem will lead to the greatest benefit to mankind."

Jacoby's bridge

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Remember the mountain climber who wanted to climb a mountain because it was there. Some bridge players like to take finesses because they are there. Most of the time they are playing correctly, but there are a few times when they should shun a finesse like the plague.

South was one of those automatic finessers. He couldn't wait to play the jack of spades from dummy at trick one. East produced the queen and our hero won with the king and plunked the queen of diamonds on the table.

That finesse lost to East's king and a second spade was led. After this start there was no way for South to score nine tricks.

It was incorrect for South to play the spade jack at trick one. Had he played small and then taken the diamond finesse East would not have been able to clear the spades for his partner and South would have been sure of 10 tricks.

Also, after losing the spade finesse at trick one South could have recovered by leading a club at trick two. If West held back his ace South could go after diamonds; if West took the trick one spade duck would save South's goose from the cooking pot.

A Virginia reader wants to know the correct opening bid in standard American with:

♠ A K 8 6 5 4 ♥ A K 2 ♦ 3 2 ♣ A 10.

This hand should be opened with one spade. It is a mighty good hand, but with only 18 high-card points and eight probable winners it is a trifle too weak to start with a forcing two.

Client asks how public officials involved in the recent sex scandals could be so lacking in good judgment. Shrug. But the query brings to mind the case of the municipal judge who innocently decided to do something extraordinary about a certain woman after her third arrest on charges of soliciting. He sentenced her to stand for three days outside the city hall with a sing that read: "I've been convicted of prostitution." Only later was he informed that she handed out business cards during her sentence and subsequently expanded her client list ten-fold.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q "In what part of the human body are the blood vessels most concentrated?"

A. In the feet. And the sweat glands are more concentrated there than elsewhere, too.

Q. "Where did the Ohio city of Akron get its name?"

A. Comes from the Greek word "summit." Akron was built on the high divide between two rivers.

Q. Is it possible for a brown bear and a polar bear to mate?"

A. Possible, yes. It happened in the Washington Zoo. But there's no record of such ever occurring in the great outdoors.

DOGS

Among the more common mistakes made by city families who buy a little acreage in the outer suburbs is the way they deal with their dogs. Now that they're in the country, they tend to believe, they can let their pups run loose. Too bad. Owners of cattle and sheep and goats know better, and so do chicken raisers. Their mutually respected unwritten rule lets them shoot unattended dogs that come onto their properties. Only the green newcomers object to that bit.

It was the bridegroom, not the bride, who wore white at the wedding in 1776. Knee pants of white velvet. White brocade vest. White wig. White stockings. White shoes. The bride in those days wore light blue which was supposed to signify first love. Chet Switell told me that, too.

Foreign journalists can't find 'typical' American

GARRETSON, S.D. (AP) — They think our bread is like putty. They can't seem to find the "typical" American. But they know that a truck with a CB antenna is a "front door to a high-speed convoy."

After 10 days of a four-week tour of the United States, a group of foreign journalists has developed some strong first impressions of America and its people on their Bicentennial.

The journalists are trying to reconcile the image of Americans they had formed at home with what they have encountered here.

On her way to a state park where the group of 30 families camped recently, Ilona Thies of Spain's Europa Press said she "passed a village of 241 population which seemed so rich.

"There were silos and huge farms and big cars. There was more money in this small town than all over Spain."

"I've been pleasantly surprised to find the average American is just an average person who is willing to listen and not ram down your throat how great his country is," said Liz Brook, a photographer for a New Zealand news service.

Like all tourists on a tight schedule, the journalists believe they are missing some essential parts of the America they read about.

"I want to visit the black communities," said Mulumba Kinkiey, Paris, a correspondent for a Zaire newspaper and secretary general of the French paper Black Hebdo.

"I enjoy the visits to the parks, but there is another picture of the United States we don't see. I want to visit many towns."

The tour was sponsored by the Wally Byam Foundation, Discover America and the Society of American Travel Writers. The group is accompanied by a staff member of the U.S. Information Agency.

On the Washington-to-Seattle tour, the visitors are driving donated large American cars hauling camper trailers.

Although warned to drive at 50-55 miles per hour while towing the trailers, the writers soon found they were holding up traffic.

"Now we know about CB," said Gottfried Aigner, a writer from the German magazine D.M. "Now if we see a big truck with an antenna, if he's running at 65, we move behind him. So we learn quickly!"

They also learned quickly that American bread is not homemade.

"It's a real problem," said Gottfried. "In Germany we have 200 kinds of bread, here maybe 20. But all the bread is like putty."

Miss Brooks also remarked on American food and on its results, saying she was "horrified" to see so many fat people, men, women and children. "What's the reason? Too many French fries, or riding lawn mowers? Everything in America is too easy."

But Z.U. Kahn, chief diplomatic reporter for Pakistan's Daily Jang, saw something not so easy — work. "When you see the people working," he said, "then you know how this nation has progressed after 200 years of work.

"The feeling of nationhood is there. They work as a nation in every sphere. After 200 years, the prosperity is quite visible. Everybody has a car, and a good home, stores and parks nearby. This is God-given prosperity."

Dead or alive, he's still Alex Monroe

MIAMI (AP) — Sixty-two-year-old Alex Monroe is alive and well in Miami only months after his daughter, aunt and sisters mourned at his funeral as they gazed on his body in an open casket.

"I'm not dead," Monroe said recently after visiting with his daughter, Mamie Higgs, and talking to police. "I just came from North Carolina."

Miami detective Richard Bohan said somebody else was in Monroe's grave. And that somebody else was named Alex Monroe, too.

Bohan also said:

—Each Alex Monroe was 62 years old, 5-feet-9 and 140 pounds.

—Each Alex Monroe lived in downtown Miami. Although their homes were just six blocks apart, Alex Monroe never met Alex Monroe.

The dead Monroe was fatally shot last April during a fight in which he had gone to a friend's defense, Bohan said. A cousin of the dead man identified him correctly at the scene and said his relatives were in Nassau. But police said they couldn't locate them.

Then the funeral home which had been designated to give the dead man a pauper's funeral at county expense tried to find the relatives. A man delivering some flowers saw a note on the funeral home bulletin board, and said, "I know his daughter." He notified Mrs. Higgs. By then, the man had been dead 18 days.

"I thought it was him," Mrs. Higgs said. "I hadn't seen him in a year. The scar was on the same place — from the temple to the cheek. He had the same small ears, the same salt-and-pepper hair."

So Mrs. Higgs, 31, took out a $500 loan to pay for her father's funeral. And Monroe's family and friends mourned.

Monroe said he returned to Miami and was walking down a street when a friend driving past slammed on her brakes and shouted, "You're dead."

He denied it. The friend called Mrs. Higgs.

Revealing reflections in diary

Autopsy on Aiken's last Senate years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate was overrun with presidential hopefuls in the several years prior to his retirement in 1974, George D. Aiken, a senator for 34 years, says in his diary.

He said the presidential hopefuls were more interested in gaining publicity and advancing their own ambitions than in attending to legislation and furthering the public interest.

"Too many candidates for promotion simply constitute a costly nuisance and impede the work of those who want to serve their state and the country well," he wrote.

Aiken, now 74, was a Republican senator from Vermont and was the senior Republican in the Senate and top-ranking minority member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee when he retired.

In his book — "Aiken: Senate Diary," published by the Stephen Greene Press — he records his impressions as he dictated them at the end of each week during his last three years in the Senate.

These were the years of the wind-up of the Vietnam war, the Watergate break-in, resignations of President Richard M. Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, the Arab oil embargo and other historic events.

The book has no startling disclosures of "inside" information, but it is a revealing account of how the Senate operates, of clashes with the White House and Aiken's assessment of many of his colleagues.

He tells of a Senate stalled by absenteeism, of Senate committees and subcommittees overloaded with staffers to promote the chairmen, of the influence of corporate and labor lobbies, and of members ducking tough issues by passing the buck to the President.

At one point he wrote: "I have never seen so many incompetent persons aspiring to high office ... Politics and legislation have become more mixed and smellier than ever ... Good legislation seems to be unimportant compared to voter appeal."

On the Watergate, he said, "The raid on the Democratic headquarters at the Watergate a few weeks ago smells to high heaven." But throughout his diary he accuses the Democrats of trying to make political hay out of Watergate and of ignoring campaign skeletons in their own closet.

When the Senate's special Watergate investigating committee finally folded, Aiken called it "a good riddance." But in the end he said it had become obvious to him that Nixon "had tried to protect the guilty parties."

Aiken was among 15 members of Congress called to the White House to be told by Nixon of his decision to resign, in advance of the announcement to the nation.

"It was an extremely sorry and emotional occasion with many tears being shed, including those of the President himself," Aiken said in describing the meeting in the Cabinet room.

"How he recovered his poise enough to speak on TV a half hour after the meeting with us was a surprise to me," Aiken wrote.

Aiken deplored the "face-saving" war in Vietnam, just as he did the Watergate break-in. But here also he finds Democrats trying to take advantage politically.

"The war in Indochina has been the vehicle upon which many normally sane members of Congress and of the Democratic party hope to ride to glory," he said in one entry in his diary.

He said some people were determined to prevent completion of U.S. withdrawal until after the election, in the belief it would help the Democratic presidential candidate.

Aiken said that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger "oozed conceit from every pore" and that "the thirst for publicity appears to be the overwhelming characteristic of Mr. Kissinger.

But after Nixon announced a Vietnam cease-fire agreement, Aiken wrote, "I now have to admit that the work done by the President and Henry Kissinger and his associates appears to be a masterpiece of diplomacy."

And still later is this entry about Kissinger: "His apparent desire to be the most important man in history may be fully justified."

When Aiken returned to Vermont after his retirement he found it "a welcome relief from the atmosphere in our nation's capitol for the last few years."

At times, he had written earlier, he got "very discouraged with our democratic form of government, but then I think, what would be better? And my mind fails to come up with the answer."

HEADS UP

Portland's John Rodgers, left, and Los Angeles' Ron Davies soar high in air to head ball during North American Soccer League game in Portland Monday. Aztecs won, 2-1.

Burt Hooton's mastery of Phils continues, 6-0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — On a night when you get shutout 6-0, manage only two hits, smell out the joint before a record crowd and a national television audience it's hard to find a silver lining. Right?

Not for Dave Cash, the irrepressible second baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, the player most experts credit with changing the attitude of the club from losing to winning.

"The Pirates lost eh," said Cash after the Phillies were beaten by the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday night. "That ought to tell you something."

Cash wasn't concerned that Dodgers pitcher Burt Hooton had humbled the Phillies for the seventh consecutive time dating to 1974. He wasn't upset that his team had played one of its poorer games on a festive evening, replete with holiday fireworks, singing of "America the Beautiful," and the Happy Birthday America theme.

"I don't see anybody panicking," Cash said. "Our record stands for itself coast-to-coast. We just have to hang in there, show up tomorrow (Tuesday). This one is history. What have we got, two games more in this series? We can still win the series."

The 26-year-old Hooton and teammates Bill Russell and Steve Garvey upstaged the Phillies. Hooton, who pitched a no-hitter against the Phillies in 1972, gave up two hits, a single in the third and a double in the eighth, both by Garry Maddox. He walked just one, pinchhitter Tim McCarver in the sixth, and McCarver was eliminated in a doubleplay.

Garvey gave the Dodgers a 1-0 lead in the first inning with his seventh homer of the season and had three singles, one driving in a ninth inning run. Russell, now 14-for-29 for a .483 average and eight RBI against the Phillies, made it 2-0 with a second inning home run, his fourth, and followed a Reggie Smith triple with an RBI single in the fourth.

Hooton, of course, was asked about this mystery he appears to hold over the Phillies, one of baseball's hardest hitting teams. He beat them late in 1974, four times last season and twice already in this bicentennial year. Does he feel as if he can just throw his glove out on the mound and beat this team?

"No, I just go out there and challenge them," said the blond Hooton, a former University of Texas pitcher. "They're challenging me. They're like Pittsburgh when it comes to hitting. You try to stay close to your pattern of pitching, hope if you make a mistake it doesn't hurt you."

Hooton, now 6-9, hadn't won a game since he last beat the Phillies 3-2 in Los Angeles June 9. He's lost four games since.

"I haven't pitched as bad as the record indicates," Hooton insisted. "The Mets beat me 2-1, San Francisco 1-0. I've thrown a few bad pitches and they hurt me. I had been thinking negative though. And I decided on the plane coming here (Philadelphia) to eliminate the negative aspects."

Hooton shrugged his shoulders when asked to explain his hold on the Phillies, a team playing .700 baseball.

"I don't know. Why don't you ask them?" he suggested.

Cash talked for "them."

"I guess he figures he can do it everytime he goes out there," said Cash, hitless in four at-bats, despite hitting the ball hard each time. "I think the big secret is his ability to stay ahead of the hitters against us.

Angels stage heavy attack

ANAHEIM (AP) — California Angels Manager Dick Williams could scarcely believe his eyes. Pitcher Gary Ross could hardly believe his good fortune.

Something different occurred at Anaheim Stadium Mondy night—an outpouring of hits and runs by the home team.

Before a Family Night gathering of 20,240, the Angels exploded for a seasonal high of 15 hits and Ross displayed his appreciation with a five-hitter as California whacked the Cleveland Indians 8-1.

"That was nice and enjoyable," grinned Williams, unaccustomed to such luxury. "These kind of nights have been so few and far between."

Gary Ross knows all too well.

Ross began the season by dropping his first five decisions, mostly due to a steady diet of non-support.

But he has endured and today his record is 6-9.

"He has worked himself right up there with Nolan Ryan and Frank Tanana in our rotation," Williams lauded. "We gave him a chance to pitch and he grabbed it. His record could easily be 10-5 if we would have given him any kind of help early in the year.

Ross has been especially effective at Anaheim Stadium recently.

In the last 36 1-3 innings at home, Ross has permitted just two earned runs.

He fanned three and walked one Monday to win his fourth straight at home, losing a shutout on a pair of singles, his lone walk and Boog Powell's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the fourth inning.

The victory was California's fifth in a row over Cleveland and also represented the Tribe's fourth successive defeat.

Bobby Bonds, emerging from a slump, slammed a double and two singles—as did rookie Dan Briggs—while Dave Chalk and Andy Etchebarren drove in three runs apiece to highlight the offensive fireworks for California.

Bonds said he wanted to start the second half with a fresh outlook.

"I know I've been going bad," he admitted, "but I haven't really been that worried. Basically, I think it's because I've consciously been trying too hard to hit home runs.

"I'm just not going to think home run in the second half. I'd much rather get my average back up. I'll shoot for .300."

Ten-game winner Pat Dobson, who entered the game looking for his eighth straight win and a 2.79 ERA, left with his sixth loss and a 3.27 ERA. Dobson was tagged for seven runs and seven hits in 2 2-3 innings.

Verhoeven promoted by Angels

ANAHEIM — La Verne College product John Verhoeven has made the big jump to the major leagues in just two seasons when he reported to the Angels Monday prior to the game against the Cleveland Indians.

Verhoeven was promoted by the Angels from their top farm club at Salt Lake City after compiling a 7-2 record with eight saves and a 2.25 earned run average in the Pacific Coast League.

The Angels are hoping Verhoeven, who signed with the Halos after being drafted in June of 1974 after leading La Verne to a third place finish in the NAIA World Series, will prove to be the stopper in the bullpen.

While Verhoeven was a starter at La Verne, he has been used as a relief pitcher in the Angels' chain. He compiled an 1-0 record with a 3.14 ERA for Quad Cities in the Class A Midwest League in 1974 and was 4-0 with an 1.60 ERA at El Paso (Class AA Texas League) last year before being promoted to Salt Lake City. He was 3-1 with a 4.50 ERA at Salt Lake.

The 23-year-old righthander will replace Andy Hassler on the Angels' staff.

Hassler, a 24-year-old lefthander, was sold to the Kansas City Royals for an amount in excess of the $20,000 waiver price Monday.

Verhoeven, a product of Valley Christian High in Artesia, played just one season (1974) at La Verne after transferring from Westmont College.

He compiled a 14-1 record at La Verne with a sparkling 1.22 earned run average to earn NAIA All-American honors.

Angels' general manager Harry Dalton decided on bringing up Verhoeven after watching him pitch for Salt Lake last Friday and made the sale to Kansas City to make room for him.

West Covina takes Legion crown

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

"I really didn't expect to win the award," West Covina catcher Mark Bridgewater said after learning that he had been named the most valuable player of the 16th annual Upland American Legion Baseball Tournament.

West Covina stopped Ontario on four hits to win the tourney championship 6-0 for the third time Monday night at Upland Memorial Park. Glenn Swires iced the title with a three run homer in the seventh inning.

Pomona, hoping to win the consolation title, was blanked on just three hits by a pair of Redlands' hurlers. Redlands took the title with a 1-0 whitewash job over Post 30.

Bridgewater, who attends Mt. San Antonio College, earned the award by knocking out eight hits in the four day tournament. He had a double and triple, threw out several runners at second, and Bridgewater caught Groh's perfect game.

"I was very surprised at the selection," noted Bridgewater after the announcement was made. "I knew that I had done very well in the tournament but we have a whole team of guys hitting the ball well.

"We've been averaging almost 14 or 15 hits a game. Any team that hits the ball that well shouldn't have any one guy picked out to receive an award. We've won the tournament with just a great team effort."

West Covina jumped off to an early 2-0 lead and behind the four hit pitching of Mark Weimann went on to take the tournament crown. Weimann, who only lasted three and two-thirds innings Sunday against La Verne, came back to pitch a strong game. He fanned nine Ontario batters while walking just two batters.

Bridgewater doubled to open the second inning and scored moments later on a bloop hit down the left-field line by Jerry Mendoza. Mendoza advanced to third on a base hit by Steve Bridgewater and came home on a base hit by Weimann.

The two runs were enough for Weimann but West Covina added a single run in the fourth to lead 3-0 before adding three more runs on Swires three run round tripper over the 348 marker in left-field. The ball was a towering drive that sailed over the fence giving West Covina a commanding 6-0 lead.

Ontario's only chance of the night to break the shutout was in the fifth inning. Tom Bessetti walked and advanced to third on a ringing double to left off the bat of John Torres. But Weimann rose to the occasion and whiffed Randy Johnson before John Mattke grounded out to the second baseman.

West Covina's Gil Hawkins noted, "We played a very good game tonight. It was a little better than the last two games we had played which were slugfests.

"We knew we had fairly decent pitching despite the two slugfest games but Mark Weimann came back to throw an excellent game.

West Covina's 12 hit attack was paced by M. Bridgewater (two-for-three), Mendoza (two-for-three) and Weiman with two hits.

Pomona Post 30 was completely stiffled by hurlers Don Smith and Tim Driver of Redlands as the Pomona outfit never got a baserunner any farther than second base. Mike Keegan's fourth inning double to left-center was wasted as the next three batters made out. Seven Post 30's batters struck out as Redlands' only allowed to fly ball outs.

Redlands' Chet Dawson's triple to open the third frame and Francis Connor's double broke a scoreless pitching duel between Pomona's Gregg Handy and Smith. It was the only run Handy allowed as he held Redlands to just two hits over the final three innings he worked.

Redlands threatened to add another tally to their 1-0 lead in the fifth frame but Post 30 third baseman Joe Chapa robbed Connor of a run producing single with a great back hand stop at third. He got to his feet and forced the Redlands' runner sliding into second to kill the uprising.

Anthony Munoz has size, talent

Anthony Munoz doesn't fool anybody. He's built like a football player.

And he plays like one.

"I have no doubt in my mind he'll be playing pro ball someday. He'll be outstanding in college," declared clyde Francisco, for 23 years the athletic director at Chaffey High.

The 6-foot-6, 280-pound Munoz, bound for USC this fall, will represent Chaffey as one of the 56 outstanding pre-college athletes selected from throughout Southern California to participate in the 25th Shrine All-Star Football Classic Saturday evening, July 17 at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena.

The Shrine game, from which all net proceeds help support the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children in Los Angeles, annually features such stars as Greg Horton (Rams), Lionel Aldridge (Chargers), Jeff Siemon (Vikings), George Kunz (Falcons), John Vella (Raiders) and Marv Fleming (Packers).

Size has helped make Munoz an outstanding tackle, but he also has enormous talent, according to Francisco.

"Anthony has all the tools — the physical ability and the mental temperament," Francisco said. "He's quick, he's got good lateral speed and tremendous agility for such a big person."

Chaffey utilized Munoz on the tackle-eligible play, on which he gained 45 yards for the deciding touchdown in an 8-7 win over San Marcos last season. In addition to his first-teams all-Citrus Belt League, all-CIF Southern Section 4-A and prep all-America honors, he was second-team all-CIF in baseball. He played third base, first base and pitched for Chaffey last season.

"He received tremendous publicity in Little League," Francisco said. "He's always been a super athlete and he's always been large. We've been looking at him since he was an 11-year-old in Little League.

"But he's been able to handle it and keep his head — it's never fazed him one bit. He's a great, great person with regard to attitude," he said.

Francisco said he thought Munoz would have been selected in the pro baseball free agent draft if he hadn't decided to attend USC.

Tickets for the Shrine game, Munoz' last pre-college event, are available at the Shrine Football Office, 655 West Jefferson Blvd., Los Angeles, or by calling the office at (213) 749-0166. All seats are reserved and priced at $5.25 and $2.25. Parking at the Rose Bowl is free.

Aztecs top Timbers, 2-1

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A header by Ron Davies on a George Best corner kick started Los Angeles on its way to a 2-1 victory over Portland on Monday night in North American Soccer League play.

The shot wobbled into the cage with 29:56 left in the first half.

Although Portland controlled the ball in Los Angeles' territory for more than 29 of the game's 90 miuntes and took 14 shots on the goal against four for Los Angeles, the Timbers were unable to penetrate a tight Aztec defense. Los Angeles had little trouble penetrating Portland's defense.

The Timbers botched several close-in scoring opportunities in a game that ended to boos and exploding firecrackers for many of the 19,375 fans.

Fidrych, Tanana on All-Star team

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie sensation Mark "the Bird" Fidrych and five-time 20-game winner Catfish Hunter head the American League's nine-man All-Star pitching staff, announced today by Boston Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson.

Johnson, manager of the American Leaguers for the 47th All-Star Game July 13 at Philadelphia, hopes his staff of five starters and four relievers can reverse the trend that has carried the National Leaguers to victory in 12 of the last 13 midseason games, including last year's 6-3 triumph.

Four of the nine hurlers are All-Stars for the first time, including Fidrych, the exciting nonconformist of the Detroit Tigers, whose crowd-pleasing antics include talking to the ball and getting down on his hands and knees to smooth out the pitching mound. He leads the regular AL pitchers with a 1.85 earned run average and has a 9-1 record. The other All-Star newcomers are AL strikeout leader Frank Tanana of the California Angels, Bill Travers of the Milwaukee Brewers and relief ace Dave LaRoche of the Cleveland Indians.

Completing the staff are Boston's Luis Tiant, selected for the third time, Oakland's Rollie Fingers, also for the third time, and second-timers Rich Gossage of the Chicago White Sox and Sparky Lyle of the Yankees.

The veteran of the staff is Hunter, the New York Yankees ace righthander, who has been named for the eighth time—six times while he was with the Oakland A's. Hunter has appeared in five All-Star Games. He was tagged for two of the three runs the National League scored in the ninth inning last year, when it broke a 3-3 tie and sent Hunter to his second All-Star loss. He was the loser in the 1967 game.

The regular starters include Hunter, 10-7; Tiant, 10-5; Tanana, 10-5; Travers, 9-6, and Fidrych. Tanana and Travers are the left-handed hurlers among the group.

Tiant's two appearances on the AL All-Star staff both have resulted in losses, in 1968 when he was with Cleveland and in 1974 when he was with Boston.

The relievers on the squad are lefthanders Lyle and LaRoche and righthanders Fingers and Gossage, who has doubled as a starter and reliever this season.

Lyle tops the relievers with 16 saves, while Fingers has 11 and LaRoche has 10.

Johnson said he hasn't made up his mind yet on which pitchers will get into the game, and in what order.

Borg won't enter Grand Slam tourney

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Bjorn Borg, the 20-year-old Swedish tennis player who captured this year's Wimbledon mens' singles crown, won't be playing in the first Grand Slam of Tennis tournament in Myrtle Beach.

He will be replaced by Jimmy Connors, who agreed Monday to compete in the three-day tourney that gets under way Friday.

Tourney officials said Borg aggravated a muscle strain he had at Wimbledon and would be unable to compete. He has been ordered by doctors to rest.

Designed to pit the winners of the game's most prestigious tournaments against each other, the four-man competition will bring together on the clay composition court 1975 Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe, 1975 U.S. Open winner Manuel Orantes, Masters champion Ille Nastase and Connors.

In future years, the tournament field will be made up of the previous year's Wimbledon, U.S. Open, French Open and Grand Slam winners. If any player should win more than one of the tournaments, the winner of the Italian or the Australian Open will be invited to compete. The tournament is expected to become an annual event held each January at different locations.

The three-day event offers a total purse of $150,000, with the winner claiming $75,000. Second place will be worth $40,000, third place $20,000 and fourth place $15,000.

Olympics boss looks for solution

MONTREAL (AP) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, is seeking a solution for the Taiwan question at the Montreal Games, which are only 11 days away.

The IOC and the Canadian government appeared still at odds over Taiwan though External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said officials of his department are willing to meet Killanin.

Some observers saw a turn for the better Monday when Killanin—while non-committal—did not reject a government proposal that the IOC revive a 1960 formula under which Taiwanese athletes competed in the Rome Olympics only as Taiwanese without carrying the name of the Republic of China.

The Irish peer, who came to Canada Monday, asserted, however, that Canada's action— prohibiting use of the Republic of China's name, anthem and flag—could establish a dangerous precedent for the 1980 Moscow Games and other Olympics in the future.

Meanwhile, a Peking broadcast demanded that Taiwan— under whatever name—must be eliminated from Olympic competitin because only the All-China Sports Federation can represent China in international sports contests.

The mainland-based federation "is the sole legitimate national sports organization governing sports in the entire territory of China, including Taiwan province."

MacEachen told the Commons he has rejected demands by the People's Republic of China that Canada bar entry of Taiwanese Olympic athletes.

But the minister reiterated government policy that those athletes may enter the country only as Taiwanese—not under the banner of the Republic of China as demanded by the IOC.

Prime Minister Trudeau and MacEachen called on the IOC to extend Canada the same rights accorded Italy in 1960 regarding Taiwanese.

"I will not commit myself in any way," was the comment of Killanin, and he repeated accusations earlier made in Europe that the government had violated IOC rules by denying Taiwan athletes their republican name, their anthem and their flag at the Games.

Conservative opposition members jeered the government's Taiwan statements, which were made at about the same time as Killanin arrived in Montreal on a transatlantic flight in an effort to solve the crisis that blew into the open last Thursday.

He met reporters only to make a statement and answer a few questions. While giving no details of possible talks with federal officials, he said discussions with leaders of world sports federations and national Olympic committees would take at least two or three days.

While confirming that the Taiwanese went to Rome in 1960 on the terms outlined in the Trudeau-MacEachen statements, Killanin noted the Taiwanese athletes unfurled a banner proclaiming their protest in the Olympic stadium.

Observers recalled that the 1960 formula was laid down by the IOC in the course of a fruitless attempt to work out a two-Chinas Olympic policy. That attempt was scuttled by Peking and the National Olympic Committee of the Republic of China was later recognized in an IOC vote.

Canada extended official recognition to the Peking government in diplomatic terms in 1970, withdrawing recognition from the Nationalist government on Taiwan.

MacEachen told newsmen that while Canada could not comply with Peking's demand for banning Taiwan athletes it could not accord official recognition to another group which says it represents China.

But Killanin said in Montreal and Conservative MPs contended in the Commons that the government should accept the Taiwanese as representatives of the Republic of China because it had been given an undertaking in 1969 when Montreal was awarded the Games that it would accept teams recognized by the IOC.

Killanin also differs widely from government spokesmen as to when he was made aware of the government position. The IOC chief declared Monday he knew nothing about any change until only five weeks ago, while government officials say he was made aware of it more than a year ago.

Killanin said he was extremely surprised to receive a telephone call May 28 from James Worrall, IOC member in Canada, apprising him of the government's intentions regarding the Taiwanese, who had been invited by the Olympic organizing committee.

"In April last year, I met with representatives of the department of external affairs who asked me questions regarding participation of Rhodesia and China," Killanin reported.

He gave his "personal views" that probably Rhodesia would be excluded from the Olympic Games at the next IOC session in Lauzanne. The prediction proved correct.

"I also told them that, as far as I could see, I thought there would be no change in the China situation," Killanin recalled.

Canada had guaranteed free access to the Games when Montreal made its bid against Moscow and Los Angeles in 1970 and without that guarantee the Canadian city would not have been awarded the Olympics.

"Beyond that the rules are clear. It is not the business of the government or the national Olympic committee to tell any other national Olympic committee what its flag and anthem should be. This is their business. Even we at the IOC are not involved.

"The nomenclature given the National Olympic Committees is normally approved by the IOC and in the opening ceremony the name of the committee is normally shown as the name of a country," Killanin added.

Sports briefs

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — A record $201,045 purse has been set for the Aug. 8 running of the Talladega 500 Winston Cup Grand National stock car race.

Officials at the speedway said the purse is 28.8 per cent larger than last year's total prize money — $156,070. The Talladega 500 purse boosts total awards past 0470,000 for all events at the 2.66-mile track this year.

The winner of the August race will receive $20,060 plus a portion of $9,400 in lap money. Qualifying for the race starts Aug. 5. The winner of the qualifying will receive $1,000 in addition to the first pole position at the start of the race.

In May, drivers at the Winston 500 race at Talladega split $216,235 in prize money. During that race, Buddy Baker set a record 500-mile race average speed record of 169.887 miles per hour.

OTTAWA (AP) — Rookie quarterback Joe Barnes threw an eight-yard touchdown pass to Brock Aynsley in the fourth quarter to give the Montreal Alouettes a 26-22 victory over the Ottawa Rough Riders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Monday night.

LOS ANGELES — Earl Anthony, averaging 218, held the lead after the fifth round of the Professional Bowlers Association's $60,000 Southern California Open bowling tournament.

LE CASTELLET, France — Britain's James Hunt, driving a McLaren, won the 62nd French Grand Prix, taking the checkered flag ahead of France's Patrick Depailler in a Tyrrell.

MADISON, Ind. — Bill Muncey, driving the Atlas Van Lines, finished 11 seconds ahead of Miss U.S. to win the 28th Madison Regatta and Indiana Governor's cup for unlimited hydroplanes.

SAPPORO, Japan — Takashi Murakami of Japan rallied with a closing, five-under-par 67 and won an international golf tournament by three strokes over countryman Masashi "Jumbo" Ozaki.

BOSTON (AP) — Royal Ski, owned by former Boston Bruins goalie Jerry Cheevers, won the 42nd running of the $27,300 Mayflower Stakes at Suffolk Downs Monday.

The winner, ridden by Don Meade Jr., beat out Wally Pop by three-quarters of a length and covered the six furlongs in 1:11.4. It was the final day of Suffolk's 132-day meet.

Cheevers received a Paul Revere Bowl for the horse's victory.

McKay, Bucs ready to work

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — "We'll work on the fundamentals of the game," Coach John McKay said as his gung-ho Tampa Bay Buccaneers prepared for their first workout today.

McKay, who took the helm of the National Football League expansion team after winning four national collegiate championships at Southern California, said twice-daily drills will start Wednesday.

When about 90 rookies, free agents and veterans reported Monday, there were no secret plays on the blackboard. The chalk scrawl only said, "blackboard."

McKay is literally starting with a clean slate. He's said that nobody has been assured a place on the team roster, so most veteran players showed up even though only rookies were ordered to report. The veterans are not required to report until next Tuesday.

McKay said he's excited about starting his first pro football season.

"It's going to be fun seeing young players mature into a team," McKay said, "and the fans should look at it the same way."

The coach has said the only way he would move from collegiate to pro football was with an expansion club, because of the challenge.

"Statistics show that expansion clubs win 2.7 games in their first season," he said. "Maybe I can find out in the preseason games where that point-seven comes in."

The Buccaneers will make their base in a new building next to a luxury motel. They'll train on real grass because Tampa Stadium is one of the few NFL stadiums that hasn't been converted to synthetic turf.

Meanwhile, the Bucs Monday purchased the rights to kicker Rod Garcia from the Baltimore Colts, team officials said. Garcia, 5-feet-9 and 170 pounds, played the past two years in the World Football League. He was drafted as a seventh-round choice out of Stanford in 1974 by the Oakland Raiders, who traded the draft right to Baltimore.

The Bucs also announced signing of their last remaining draft choice and two free agents, all defensive backs. Mel Washington, 5-feet-11 and 170 pounds from Colorado State, was the Bucs' 11th-round draft pick. He signed a series of one-year contracts for an undisclosed amount of money, team officials said.

Also added to the team were free agents Robin Sinclair, a rookie from Washington State, and Pete Rome, a rookie from Miami of Ohio. Both are six feet tall and weigh 190 pounds.

NFL officials have not set the maximum size for team rosters this year, but some have said they may allow the new expansion franchises, Tampa Bay and Seattle, a few more players than established teams. The team limit last year was 43 players without a taxi squad.

The first cut will come after the Bucs' July 31 opener against the Los Angeles Rams in the Los Angeles Coliseum — McKay's home turf during his coaching career at Southern California.

Taiwan supported

TAIPEI (AP) — The Olympic committees of Chile, Puerto Rico and Venezuela cabled their support for Nationalist China on the China issue at the Montreal Olympic Games, an official of the Nationalist Chinese Olympic Committee here said today.

In their separate messages, the three Latin American Olympic committees denounced the Canadian government's decision to bar the Nationalist Chinese team from competing under the name of the Republic of China or displaying the Nationalist Chinese flag.

A spokesman of the nationalist world sports body said the three cables were sent by Luis Felipe Rodriguez, president of the Venezuelan Olympic Committee, Armando Gellona, president of the Chilean Olympic Committee, and Jose Enrique Arraras, president of the Puerto Rican Olympic Committee.

He did not say when the Taiwan team will leave for Montreal. However, Shen Chiaming, president of the nationalist committee, said earlier over the weekend the 51-member delegation from Taiwan would proceed to Canada as originally planned.

Red Sox ready to 'zoom to top'

By Associated Press

In 1967, the Boston Red Sox pulled off "The Impossible Dream."

In 1976, would you believe "The Possible Dream?"

"We had a lot of hits today and that's what we need to get going," outfielder Rick Miller said Monday after the Red Sox rapped out 11 hits and trounced the Chicago White Sox 11-2 to climb into a second-place tie with the Cleveland Indians in the American League East. "Now we can zoom to the top. If the Yankees lose 10 and we win 10, we're there. That's wishful thinking maybe, but that's the way we have to think."

If the Yankees lose 10 and Boston wins 10, the Red Sox will actually be one game in front. They trail by nine—it was 11½ a little more than a week ago—since New York dropped a 2-1 squeaker to the Kansas City Royals.

Elsewhere, the Texas Rangers rallied to beat the Detroit Tigers 8-6, the California Angels whipped the Indians 8-1, the Oakland A's downed the Baltimore Orioles 4-1 and the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Minnesota Twins 3-2.

Rookie Butch Hobson and Cecil Cooper drove in three runs apiece and Luis Tiant scattered 11 hits for his 10th victory as the Red Sox won for the sixth time in their last eight games and reached the .500 mark (37-37) for the first time since April 29.

Hobson, called up from the minors last week, hit a sacrifice fly in the fifth and singled home two runs in the sixth. Cooper delivered a sacrifice fly in the third and a bases-loaded single in the eighth.

Royals 2, Yankees 1

The Royals scored both their runs with two out in the first inning on George Brett's double and singles by John Mayberry, Hal McRae and Al Cowens. Paul Splittorff posted his sixth consecutive victory with help from three relievers, including Steve Mingori, who put down a bases-loaded, one-out threat in the ninth.

The Yankees played the game under protest. In the ninth inning, Kansas City center fielder Amos Otis injured his shoulder trying to make a diving catch and was replaced by McRae, the designated hitter. Yankee Manager Billy Martin cited an American League rule specifying that any substitute other than a pitcher is only allowed five warm-up throws. Umpire Lou DiMuro, the crew chief, agreed with Martin that McRae took more than five although DiMuro tried to stop him.

Rangers 8, Tigers 6

Tom Grieve's bases-loaded single keyed a four-run seventh-inning rally that rallied the Rangers to victory after they blew an early 4-0 lead. Five Rangers hit safely in the seventh, including Gene Clines, who had four hits, and Jeff Burroughs, who cracked a pair of doubles. Grieve's two-run shot came between run-scoring singles by Mike Hargrove and Lenny Randle.

Burroughs opened the scoring with a bases-loaded double in the first inning as Texas remained 3½ games behind Kansas City in the AL West.

A's 4, Orioles 1

Phil Garner's three-run homer and 22-3 innings of scoreless relief pitching by Rollie Fingers paced Oakland's victory. The A's got all their runs in the fifth inning against Rudy May on a walk, an error, Garner's homer, a double by Bill North and a single by Bert Campaneris. Fingers struck out Terry Crowley with the bases loaded in the seventh and went on to preserve Mike Torrez' first triumph since May 31.

Brewers 3, Twins 2

Milwaukee used a pair of errors by Minnesota first baseman Rod Carew to score three unearned runs in the seventh inning and Bill Travers scattered seven hits for his ninth victory. Gorman Thomas opened the seventh with a walk and Carew mishandled Jack Heidemann's bunt. Art Kusnyer also bunted but Carew's throw to third, in plenty of time to force Thomas, was wild, allowing both runners to score. Kusnyer eventually tallied what proved to be the winning run on Robin Yount's single, a walk to Don Money and Hank Aaron's checked-swing grounder.

"It's the worst inning I've ever experienced," said Carew."

Reds 11, Expos 2

Joe Morgan drove in five runs, four on a grand slam home run, and Jack Billingham pitched an eight-hitter as Cincinnati walloped Montreal. Billingham, 6-6, walked two and struck out six in picking up his first victory in two decisions against Montreal this year.

The only runs off Billingham came on Pete Mackanin's leadoff homer in the fifth and Andre Thornton's homer leading off the seventh.

The Reds scored five runs on just one hit, Morgan's grand slam, in the sixth inning, to turn the game into a rout as they rocked five Montreal pitchers.

Braves 8, Pirates 6

Darrell Chaney capped a seven-run eighth inning with a three-run triple, helping Atlanta beat Pittsburgh.

A crowd of 48,467, drawn partly by the prospect of a giant fireworks display afterwards, saw Atlanta break a seven-game losing streak to the Pirates, who had not lost to the Braves this season. Atlanta wiped out a 6-1 Pirate lead with their rally.

"I've seen a lot of comebacks in my life," said Chaney, "but this one has to be the best. Even the Big Red Machine (Cincinnati) didn't do this sort of thing. The fans sure got their money's worth tonight."

Cubs 1, Padres 0

Steve Renko and Joe Coleman combined for a three-hitter and Chicago scored an unearned run in the sixth inning to beat San Diego. Brent Strom was the victim of poor defensive work by his San Diego teammates when the Cubs broke a scoreless tie in the sixth.

Two of the three hits allowed by Renko, 3-4, who left after seven innings, were of the infield variety. Strom, 8-8, has been the victim of shutouts in four of his last eight starts.

Giants 6, Cardinals 4

Bobby Murcer smashed a double leading off the eighth inning and eventually scored on a double play to snap a 4-4 tie and help San Francisco beat St. Louis. Murcer's hit, his third of the game, came off St. Louis right-hander Harry Rasmussen, 3-7, and helped San Francisco left-hander Gary Lavelle to his third victory against four losses.

Astros 7, Mets 3

Bob Watson's two-run homer ignited a six-run Houston fourth inning, leading the Astros over New York. Houston right-hander Joe Niekro, 4-7, scattered seven hits over the first 6 2/3 innings before retiring in favor of reliever Ken Forsch.

TV creates instant fans

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing creates instant fans faster than television exposure of a classic sports event.

The sensationally dramatic 1975 World Series turned countless lukewarm baseball fans into rabid followers of the Boston Red Sox and the Cincinnati Reds.

And television makes the Olympic Games no different. The statisticians at ABC are already predicting a combined audience—instant fans and bona fide followers—of 170 million Americans for TV coverage of the 1976 Summer Games which open in Montreal on Saturday, July 17.

As usual the superlatives are abundant. ABC promises more coverage, more announcers, more prime time programming and more hours of television from Montreal than from Munich in 1972 and Innsbruck in February.

Network sources estimate that the total production coasts for the 79 hours of television coverage (including specials) of events from Montreal will be approximately $35 million. ABC plans about 15 more hours of television from Montreal than it produced from Munich four summers ago.

Don't expect any spectacular changes in ABC's approach to Olympic coverage though. The marriage between the network and the Olympics has been a happy one punctuated mostly with rave reviews of ABC's Olympic techniques.

Pressed as to what new element the TV viewer might find in ABC's Montreal treatment, a network spokesman thought a minute and pointed to the addition of artist LeRoy Neiman as "color commentator" of sorts.

Artist Neiman has been associated with various sports events, including the 1972 Olympics in Munich, for several years. His primary task in Montreal will be to create a nine-by-12-foot mural of Montreal Olympic action which TV fans will watch unfold behind the anchor as he did in Munich. Neiman's talents might also serve to keep the viewer in touch with places which the television cameras are not allowed to visit.

But ABC's Olympic success never was based on change. More a result of steady, and informed, but flexible, looks at the competition. The network promises that those approaches will not change this year in Canada.

ABC's top announcers will provide the basic "play-by-play" type reporting and a large group of experts—the list reads like an Olympic competitors list—will provide the color comentary.

"Mobility will be the key to our coverage," promises Geoff Mason, ABC's director of planning who has already spent weeks at the Olympic site in Montreal. "The more we can move around, the more effective we can be. We want to be able to go wherever we want at anytime of day or night."

ABC will use five mobile units for coverage of track and field, swimming, diving, gymnastics, boxing, basketball and wrestling. Only two mobile units were used at the winter games in Innsbruck.

In addition to the mobile units, ABC will also deploy four Electronic Sports Gatherers, self-contained miniaturized cameras and compact power sources, which can be carried in a backpack. The ESG's will be used, too, for the extensive off-beat feature coverage that ABC will provide on the Olympic participants, both in the Olympic Village and from the City of Montreal.

Faces are bound to be familiar. Jim McKay, whose handling of the terrorist incidents at Munich in 1970 revealed his broadcast versatility, will once again anchor all the Olympic telecasts. He will coordinate the heavy schedule of weekend programming and the primetime coverage, the majority of which will be shown between 7:30 p.m. and 11 p.m., EDT, weekdays.

Each day's events will be wrapped up from 11:30 p.m. to 11:45 p.m. each night by Warner Wolf, one of the three broadcasters on ABC's Monday Night Baseball.

Television coverage will start with the opening ceremonies from 2:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday, July 17. Weekend programming will be heavy. Over the weekend of July 24 and 25, for instance, ABC will originate 15 hours of coverage. The network promises at least one live prime-time event each night.

Although the Olympics will close officially on Aug. 1 with five hours of coverage, the network will review the Games via a two-hour special from 9 to 11 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 3. Monday Night Baseball will resume after a month's vacation on Monday, Aug. 2.

As many as 15 former athletes, many of them Olympic champions, will provide the color commentary. Bill Russell, a member of the 1956 Olympic gold medal team and coach of the NBA's Seattle SuperSonics, will do basketball. Mark Spitz, who won seven gold medals for swimming in 1972, will cover swimming events. Medal-winning Olympian Bob Seagren, in 1968 and 1972, will cover track and field events.

NEARLY READY — While Canadian workers put finishing touches to a board for infield of Olympic stadium, relay runners, one of them carrying the Olympic torch, arrive during a dress rehearsal. Runners carried torch over four miles through downtown Montreal.

U.S. team shoots for pentathlon medal

NEW YORK (AP) — The modern pentathlon has long been a European-dominated event and the 1976 Olympics shouldn't be any different, although the United States squad could break the medal monopoly.

The sport, considered a minor one here, consists of five events in which athletes compete over a five-day period—swimming, fencing, running, shooting and riding.

The first event, considered the most challenging, is horsemanship. It takes place on a 1,000-meter course and includes an assortment of jumps and obstacles. The final event is a 2½ mile cross country run.

In the 1975 World Championships in Mexico City, the Americans finished a surprising second behind Hungary although Russia's Pavel Lednev took his third straight individual title.

Lednev is the favorite for the gold medal at Montreal but the competition should be very close for the remaining medals.

The American squad, composed entirely of Armed Forces personnel, will be different from that at Mexico City but has a good chance at preventing a European medal sweep.

Capt. Robert Nieman of Hinsdale, Ill., the 1976 American champion, will lead the U.S. squad. Spec. 4 Mike Burley of Berea, Ohio, and 1972 Olympian Sgt. John Fitzgerald of Skokie, Ill., national champion in 1973 and 1974, round out the team.

The only practice area for the pentathlon in the U.S. is at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

McRae still a scrapper

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Look at the scrappy kid who used to get chased out of the fruit orchards.

He's still scrappy, only now they call it competitive. And he has become one of the best hitters in the American League.

Designated hitter-left fielder Hal McRae has been batting in the .340 neighborhood all season as he and the Kansas City Royals mount the most serious charge toward a championship in this town's 21 years of major league baseball.

"I think we've got our best team this year," McRae said. "And I feel like I could have my best year ever."

From the time he was in the ninth grade in Avon Park, Fla., and playing sandlot ball with grownups to the present, Harold Abraham McRae has had to fight for a place on the team.

He came to the Royals in 1973 in a trade with Cincinnati and was not very consistent. He struggled along in the .180-.190 range for much of the season, constantly experimenting at the plate but always maintaining an aggressive all-out style and occasionally flashing signs of great promise.

He finished the year with a .234 average. The next year, with hard work and the patient tutelage of hitting instructor Charley Lau, he bloomed to .310. Last season he maintained the pace and finished at .306 to become the first Royals' player ever to record successive .300 seasons.

"Hal McRae has made himself into a great hitter," recently praised California fastball artist Nolan Ryan.

"He's about the best hitter I've seen in this league," said former Naional Leaguer Dave Roberts of Detroit. "I can't find a weakness on the guy."

It's ironic that Texas should be posing the biggest challenge to McRae and the Royals this season. Two of the darkest episodes of his career were connected with the Rangers.

In a 1973 game at Texas McRae, for the first he could remember, was yanked out for a pinch hitter.

"I walked around by myself all night," he recalls. "It was the lowest point I had ever reached. Always before I had pinch hit for people. I don't know what I would have done if I hadn't had a wife and two kids. I think I might never have played another game."

The next spring at Kansas City Texas pitcher Jim Bibby's fastball got away from him and struck McRae on the head. He was rushed to a hospital with a screaming headache and other signs of possible injury. The next day he was back in uniform but understandably nervous.

"Charley (Lau) knew what I was going through," he says. "He insisted that I play that night and told me to go to the plate and, no matter what, to stand as still as could be on the first pitch. He told me I'd be all right if I could stay motionless on the first pitch. I did, and I went 4-for-4 that night and it's never bothered me since."

It seems like McRae has had to fight and battle all his life. That's why he feels a special relationship with the fans in general admission.

"Avon Park, where I grew up, was a peaceful little southern town where everybody was poor. You didn't always feel poor cause your neighbor didn't have any more than you did.

"The kids played hard and tough, but we didn't have any gangs or anything like that. About the only thing we ever did was steal fruit to eat out of the orchards. And when we got caught they never did anything but tell our mothers.

"But we never had much money. And I know that when a working guy who doesn't make much money spends $20 or $30 to bring his family to the ball game it can be hard on him. I know what it's like to have to scruff around. I've been there. And I appreciate him coming, so I figure that if I go all-out and help make him feel like he got his money's worth...well, I'm satisfied."

Cindy Nelson fighting to remain top skier

NEW YORK (AP) — Cindy Nelson, America's top woman skier, is feeling the pressure from an 18-year-old youngster named Abbi Fisher who is threatening the limelight—and could help make the U.S. women's team one of the strongest in the world next year.

"I expect a lot from Abbi Fisher," said the 20-year-old Miss Nelson during a short break from schooling and dryland training in France. "She has the talent and everything it takes. She's my immediate ... well, the person most immediately at my side, pushing me."

Cindy wound up ranked eighth in the women's 1976 over-all World Cup standings, the same position she occupied the year before. But she is fighting two of the athlete's oldest nemeses: injury and age.

Miss Nelson has a bad left knee, and an operation is probably in her future. "I went to Heavenly Valley (Calif.) after Hunter Mountain (the Nations' World Series of Skiing last March) and the team doctor, another doctor and I decided not to operate.

"We looked at the knee and just decided that I would be better off with everything left in there for the time being," said Miss Nelson, who had flown to New York from France to help announce a new ski promotion.

Miss Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., will be 21 before the next World Cup season begins. Miss Fisher of South Conway, N.H., will be 19. The age difference doesn't seem too radical, until one considers that, at 25, the now-retired great, Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany, was considered the "Old Lady" of skiing. The average age on the U.S. women's team is 19.

Add to that the problem with her knee, and Cindy's competition looks even stronger.

Her problems were compared to those of the gimpy-kneed hockey star, Bobby Orr. A pained look crossed her tanned face: "Yeah, I feel sorry for him," she said.

Cindy is a downhill specialist—she won a bronze medal in the event at the Innsbruck Winter Games—with a good, fundamental ability in the slalom events. She is a fighter, a charger. During practice and just before or after a race, she is nearly unapproachable—her concentration is so intense.

"This should be a real good year for our girls. With the proper training, they could hold out," said the blonde Miss Nelson. "Last year, it was probably all the Germans. But Rosi Mittermaier is gone now and that leaves a big hole.

"I think our women's team can be the strongest in the world."

Training is a key, and one with which Miss Nelson has hinted some unhappiness. Last year, two of the team's top mentors — men's coach Hanspeter Rohr and women's coach Sylvain Dao-Lean — resigned.

"I went to school for two months in France—brushing up on my French," said Miss Nelson. "And then I trained for 10 days in Aiguilles. I worked with one of the French women's coaches who used to coach the American team, Sylvain DaoLena. I'm kind of sad that he's not coaching with us anymore. He was a very good coach.

"But he told me I could come up and stay until the end of the month. So I was over there eight days doing dry-land training, and now I'm going to Lasdeax Alps for testing camp."

Miss Nelson has not spoken with any of her teammates since the end of the season. Most of the American team has been undergoing training in Mt. Hood Meadows, Ore., and Hanover, N.H.

Miss Fisher was named to the U.S.A. Team in November, 1975 after a giant slalom victory at the Kundahar of the Andes in South America.

Although she did not crack the Top 20 in the over-all standings this past season, she was tied for 20th in the giant slalom standings.

She is evidence of the growing strength and depth of the U.S. women. Only three years ago, the Americans had just two women skiers in the top 17 in the slalom, one in the giant slalom and one in the downhill. They now have four in slalom, five in giant slalom and three in downhill. Miss Nelson is in the top seed in all three disciplines. Miss Fisher is in the top seed in downhill and giant slalom, and in the second seeed in slalom.

"In the giant slalom, Viki Fleckenstein will be good with a little more experience," said Miss Nelson, "along with Becky Dorsey, who's constantly been plagued with injuries. Jamie Kurlander is good in the downhill and giant slalom. She'll be a three-event skier along with Abbi—yes, and Viki easily will be a three-event skier.

"Lindy Cochran and Susie Patterson are both strong in slalom.

"In downhill, we don't have too much depth yet. There's me and Abbi, and Jamie Kurlander...and maybe Susie Patterson."

Two of the last three World Cup stops last season were in the United States—Copper Mountain and Aspen, Colo. At these two Rocky Mountain stops, the U.S. women had some of their best success ever in Cup competition.

At Copper, the American women had four skiers in the top 20—Cindy second, Miss Cochran sixth, Miss Fisher eighth and Miss Fleckenstein ninth. In Copper's slalom, seven U.S. women were in the top 20, again including Miss Nelson, 15th, and Miss Fisher, 18th. At Aspen, the downhill and giant slalom were held for women. In the downhill, three Americans were in th top 20, including Cindy's fourth-place tie and Abbi's 15th. Four American girls were in the top 20 in the GS, again including Cindy and Abbi.

"Our races in the U.S. last season were very successful," said Miss Nelson, "and they put on good races, as good as anyplace in Europe."

'Hollywood's Greatest Love Stories'

He sought goddess

By Dick Kleiner

Aly Khan fell in love with Rita Hayworth almost immediately upon meeting her in 1948. Khan fell in love easily and often so it was understandable that the handsome, enormously rich prince would fall in love with Hollywood's sex goddess.

Aly Khan probably never did know who she really was, even after they were prince and wife. He had fallen in love with her screen image, as well as with her exquisite appearance. Because of his wealth, title and charm, he could have almost any woman he wanted. But he had never married a reigning queen of the screen, and so she represented a new and exciting challenge to his powers of conquest.

Her love for Khan was destined to fail from its beginning. He wanted the glamor of a big movie star. She wanted a husband who would give her security and a home.

In 1948, her marriage to Orson Welles was over. Her mother had died. And she had had a disagreement with Harry Cohn, who ran Columbia Pictures.

That spring, on the Riviera, she fell under Aly's spell.

But there were complications. First, his previous marriage was still in force. Then there was his royal status and her career. She had to pick up her final divorce decree from Welles in California and dropped in on Cohn at Columbia Studios to tell him she wasn't going to do the next film.

Cohn told her he would take her off salary which meant the loss of $248,000 a year.

The next problem was Aly's father, the aged Aga Khan.

"Get married to this paragon, my son," the Aga Khan advised. "If you marry her, it will put a stop to all these dreadful rumors in the dreadful newspapers."

Aly called in the press and announced that he and Rita would be married as soon as his divorce from his wife became final.

The reporters asked if she would be happy as a member of a royal family.

She carefully failed to answer that question; rather she replied that she would be happy being Aly's wife.

A date for the wedding was set but Aly broke his ankle and the wedding had to be postponed. The delay gave Rita and Aly time to go wedding gown shopping in Paris. The gowns were modeled by Bettina, Jacques Fath's top model. Years later, Bettina would become Aly's mistress. She survived the accident which killed him when he crashed his sports car in 1960.

After the marriage, Rita let her hair go back to its original dark brown, as opposed to the red the world had known. She began wearing jeans around the chateau, slept late in the morning and lolled around most of the day eating candy and listening to records.

There were usually guests at the chateau, exclusively Aly's friends. When Rita would appear in her jeans and shirt, he was disappointed. He wanted the movie queen to make a regal entrance so he could impress his friends. She couldn't talk to most of the guests because she did not speak their language.

He was furious. Here he owned the pearl of feminity and she would not allow herself to be exhibited.

American director Charles Vidor sounded her out on a picture project. She said she was physically unable to accept the part. Vidor spread the story and the pregnancy rumor was given added imetus. Finally, she admitted she was going to have a child.

They hoped that the birth of their child would cement their crumbling marriage. Even though Princess Yasmin, when she arrived, was loved by both parents, she was not enough to overcome their gaping differences.

Aly could not overcome the habits of a lifetime, foremost of which was the pursuit of women.

For a while, the baby worked her magic. The next few months, Rita said, were the happiest of their entire relationship. But the idyll was short lived. Aly broke a leg in a skiing mishap and they flew back to the Riviera where he recuperated in his grand style.

The old Aga had despaired of his son's ever being more than a playboy. The aged monarch and the young beauty united in their hope that the man they both loved would become the man they both wanted.

But while Aly was beating through the jungle on a safari with friends and quaffing champagne, Rita knew the love affair was over. She felt certain now that she had to get a divorce.

She told her lawyer she wanted a divorce, and left for Reno, Nev., to establish residence. Rita went back to Hollywood and signed with Harry Cohn for the relatively paltry sum of $3,500 a week.

Aly sent many notes and lawyers bearing protestations of his undying love. She realized his efforts at reconciliation were a ploy to placate the ailing Aga.

That was the end of the romance that had captured the attention of the world. There were some ugly moments later, involving Yasmin's custody and trust funds. Each of them moved on to other love affairs, Aly's romance with movie stars Gene Tierney, and Rita's marriage to singer Dick Haymes.

Greek drama still thriving

ATHENS, GREECE (AP) — The land where western theater began 2,500 years ago is still busy with drama. There are in fact two very different seasons of thespic activity.

Summer brings the famous classic festivals, performed in ancient amphitheaters from the foot of the Acropolis here to the hills of Macedonia.

Then there is a season only natives really know, a seven-month foray when most tourists are gone into plays by modern domestic and foreign heirs of Aeschylus and Aristophanes.

"In both," insists Dimitri Malvetas, "we are expressing ourselves and our heritage."

The comment by one of the National Theater's leading actor-directors, is frequently echoed in the stage community.

Evident is a fierce determination to defend theater in Attica from travel ad insinuations that all the action is primarily designed to attract tourists.

"One might as well say the Parthenon is here for the sake of visitors," declares Dora Tsatsos, a choreographer who studied with Martha Graham and whose father Constantine is the nation's president.

An educated guess is that 70 per cent of summer audiences at big Epidaurus and rival arenas comprise homeland Hellenes.

As evidence of the particular pride the country still takes in being the birthland of stagecraft is a government regulation about actors.

A performer can get a permit to tread the boards only after three years of study at a drama school. No such license is required however to emote in movies or on television.

The 30-odd surviving scripts by the master playwrights of the age of Pericles are also exempt from the censorship possible on contemporary authorship. This immunity enabled opponents of the regime to insert a certain amount of subliminal political comment in classic presentations during the military junta which fell two years ago.

Two profs win awards

A look at Carter's track record as governor

By The Associated Press

"As Maine goes, so goes the nation," they used to say. Now, Jimmy Carter is saying much the same thing about Georgia.

The former governor of the Peach State has been pointing to his record of reorganization of state government as an example of what he would do should he become president.

However, the record fails to show the savings Carter says he achieved in Georgia's government.

It is hard to iron out exactly what was accomplished in Carter's 1971-1974 term as governor. Supporters say Carter, the expected Democratic presidential nominee, saved the state money and cut bureaucracy. Critics say it was largely a facelift.

The record shows the state budget increased from $1.057 billion in fiscal 1971 to $1.675 billion in fiscal 1975, an increase of 58.5 per cent — less than the 61 per cent growth under Carter's predecessor, Lester Maddox, but more than the 38.1 per cent rise in the Consumer Price Index during that period.

State employment, exclusive of teachers, rose in Carter's tenure, from 34,322 to 42,400, an increase of 24 per cent. During Maddox's term, state employment went up 45 per cent.

Carter says he abolished 278 boards, bureaus and agencies in Georgia, leaving only 22 major divisions. Some of the numbers seem to depend on who's doing the counting, however.

A planning specialist who worked on Carter's reorganization, and who asked not to be identified, said there were only 66 budgeted state agencies before reorganization. The rest were bureaus, committees, councils and authorities, some of them small units with no funds.

The number of agencies left is also questioned. Carter's figure of 22 major divisions does not include independent agencies such as the Forest Research Council, various state retirements and authorities, all of which get state funds.

Carter says he eliminated 2,100 unnecessary state jobs, or about 5 per cent of the state payroll not including teachers. State Auditor Ernest Davis, a Democrat who opposed him on individual programs, says the jobs Carter supposedly cut were only paper jobs.

"I have personally not been able to identify any savings that resulted from reorganization per se," he said.

Charles Storm, an official of the State Merit System, said he could not confirm or deny any claims about the abolition of jobs.

However, Bill Roper, who was appointed by Carter to assist in the regorganization, said he identified savings of $34.3 million by the time he stopped monitoring the program in June 1974.

The reorganization is still controversial in Georgia, and one focus of controversy is the Department of Human Resources, a combination of the former separate departments of health, welfare and vocational rehabilitation.

Supporters say the new department helped deliver social services and caused savings by forcing health and welfare employes to work together on client needs.

Critics say the department is cumbersome, and the current governor, George Busbee, says it has "too many chiefs and not enough Indians."

Carter says clerical errors in the nation's welfare system cost the nation $1 billion a year and at least 10 per cent of welfare recipients could work. However, Carter did not propose any major reforms in Georgia welfare as governor and the error rate actually increased during his term.

Carter says that one "remarkably effective" tool he instituted in reorganization was a "zero-base budgeting" program in which each program has to justify its continuance annually.

Auditor Davis says the program gave Carter a good grasp of state government in theory but in fact department heads found a way to subvert the plan.

"When the governor asked, for instance, the commissioner of agriculture to assign priorities, the commissioner would put a low priority on things he knew had so much public support they couldn't be done away with and assign top priority to things he's close to."

Jody Powell, Carter's press secretary now and when he was governor, says Carter saw through that trick. "Jimmy had the authority to rearrange priorities after they were received," he said.

Two more campgrounds are closed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two more Northern California campgrounds have been closed because of the threat of bubonic plague, state health officials said Friday.

The two Mono County campgrounds, Holiday Overflow and Rock Creek, were closed after several golden-mantle squirrels were found dead and authorities suspected the plague killed them.

The campgrounds will remain closed for at least two weeks, officials said.

Joyce Brothers
Religious brainwash

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Our 19-year-old daughter ran away six months ago with an older man she was in love with. He is a religious fanatic and we believe he has brainwashed our daughter. Two weeks ago, she came home to visit. She seemed dazed and so taken with religion that she sounds as if she is chanting when she speaks. Many other young people worship at this man's feet, and work hard for him. My daughter swears they don't use drugs. But is it possible for her to be influenced by another human being that she would be so changed? — D. A.

Dear D. A.: Young persons whose ideas are still unformed and who hold no strong beliefs can be transformed under certain circumstances. This is especially true when the person is under physical and emotional stress. Even "falling in love" can produce a situation of stress. Young lovers are insecure and highly vulnerable. If the person they love is strong-willed and has a need for power, he can take advantage of the younger person's need to please. If he happens to be unscrupulous, he can mold the weaker person to whatever image he wishes.

The person who makes such a unforunate choice longs to be reassured of affection. He or she soon discovers that how one is treated depends on compliance. Gradually he or she becomes a victim without knowing it. In a sense, anyone who is "in love" is brainwashed in that his vision is clouded and he probably sees only the qualities he wishes to see. The kind of mind control involved in fanatical religious movements has some of the same characteristics involved in "falling in love," only the young people fall in love, or are mesmerized, by a group or a philosophy.

Some who have been under the influence of certain religious groups have been turned around when exposed to a different approach. This is extremely difficult, however, and exposure to new ideas sometimes has little effect.

In your daughter's case, I think it is encouraging that she visited you. It suggests to me that she wants and needs your support. Even though you disapprove of her views, try not to be too critical. Your main objective is to stay in communication with her. If she's willing to get it, professional help or advice would be most valuable.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We are moving to a large city after having lived in a small community for many years. My mother has been happy living in our home and we've felt privileged and glad to have her. She wants to come with us but I'm concerned as she's terrified because of what she's read about crime in the cities. Television shows add fuel to the fire. She's certain she'll be mugged, raped or killed. She enjoys her freedom and I'd hate to have her become a recluse through fear. — P. K.

Dear P. K.: If your mother obeys the rules of common sense, doesn't wander alone in dimly lit areas but stays on the main thoroughfares, she'll soon be a confident in the city as she was in her small town. Encourage her to go out in the daytime and not to hesitate to ask the police to help if she needs them. They are there to help and are usually eager to be of service.

Studies seem to indicate that an adult is more likely to be attacked — verbally, physically and mortally — by his or her own spouse than by any other person. This seems to suggest that there's more violence in the home than in the streets. This may be of some comfort to your mother.

During the evening, when the sun is near the horizon, we may see a beautiful sunset. The reds and oranges of a sunset are caused by the filtering action of the sky.

Sunlight, as we know, is made of many colors. We can see the colors that make up sunlight when we look at a rainbow. As sunlight passes through the atmosphere, the different colors are scattered by the air.

During the day, when the sun is directly overhead, its rays do not have to travel through as much of the atmosphere to reach the earth. The sunlight is scattered in such a way that we see more of the blue rays.

But at sunset, when the sun is low in the sky, the light rays must travel through much more of the earth's atmosphere to reach the viewer.

As a result, the shorter blue rays are soon scattered out and we can see more of the longer orange and red rays of sunlight — and we have a reddish sunset.

The red color of sunrise is caused the same way.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Mexico elects new president

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A balding former schoolteacher with a fondness for the fine arts and karate has been elected Mexico's next president by the overwhelming majority the government party's candidate always gets.

Jose Lopez Portillo, the 56-year-old candidate of the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI), was o-posed by only two weak write-in candidates in the voting Sunday. Early unofficial returns gave him an insurmountable lead over Communist Valentin Campa and feminist Marina Gonzalez del Boy.

On Dec. 1, Lopez Portillo will become Mexico's 37th president, continuing nearly half a century of PRI dominance.

The strongest opposition party, National Action or PAN, had no presidential candidate because of internal squabbling. It did field candidates in 34 of the 64 senatorial districts and for 135 of the 196 seats in the Chamber of Deputies that are filled by direct election.

Under a complicated system of proportional representation, opposition parties could win as many as 25 seats without any one of their candidates winning a district outright. But PRI control of Congress is not in doubt.

Official returns will not be tabulated until midweek. But the early returns indicated that Lopez Portillo's 10-month campaign during which he crisscrossed the country was a success because the voter turnout was heavier than government opponents predicted.

PRI officials estimated that 60 per cent of the nation's 26 million voters went to the polls. In some presidential elections, 65 to 75 per cent stayed away.

Moments after the polls closed at 6 p.m. work crews from the city government spread through Mexico City removing political propaganda. By daybreak the posters and placards were gone.
